Vegetable, Fruit Prices Rise 13.2% In Month

Cost of Some Basic Items Increases 40% in Face of OPA Freeze Order

Through the Ceiling

Actual selling prices of fresh fruits and vegetables increased 13.2 per cent during the month ending March 15, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday when releasing its belated cost-of-living index for that period.

This increase took place in the face of OPA action freezing the retail costs of seven basic vegetables at February levels. Cabbage and green beans, two of the "frozen" basics, advanced 40 per cent during the month. Sweet potatoes also went up 40 per cent, white potatoes 18 per cent, and apples 13 per cent.

The upward push of food prices was the chief reason given by the bureau for an increase of 1.5 per cent during the month in the overall cost of living for city workers.

Prior to Hold-Line Order

To lighten the impact of the index figures, BLS pointed out the rises occurred prior to the President's "hold-the-line" order of April 8 and declared preliminary estimates indicate the increase in food prices from March 15 to April 15 will be smaller.

At the same time the cost-of-living index was being released, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor was issuing a statement declaring the "price control program with regard to foodstuffs has broken down" and blaming OPA for its "half-hearted efforts" to keep prices in check.

"Despite repeated promises," the council statement declared, "there has been no sincere and effective attempt to roll back prices to a reasonable level. Instead, the Office of Price Administration has created confusion and chaos in the Nation's food markets by a continuous series of complicated and contradictory rulings which have made a mockery of price control.

Artificial Shortages

"In fact, the giddy policies of the OPA have made it possible for profiteers to create artificial food shortages in basic commodities and to reap unconscionable profits through black market operations.

"Indeed, the OPA complains fearfully that it is powerless to enforce price ceilings and to suppress the black markets with its limited staff, but this agency has no one to blame but itself for failure. Its timid, piecemeal and ineffectual attack on the problem encourages law evasion and price profiteering."

The OPA's abandonment of grade labeling, announced Tuesday, was termed one of the agency's "most outrageous surrenders."

The council called upon the Government to roll prices of foods

Civilian Canned Food Supply Given Big Boost

The War Food Administration yesterday reduced its set-aside order for canned fruits and vegetables from the 1943 packs by 7 and 23 million cases, respectively.

At least this number of cases, 30 millions, previously marked for Government purchase, will be added to the civilian supply prospects. Ration point values for canned goods, however, will not be immediately affected, WFA said.

Ban to Stop Pleasure Driving Today

A new ban on nonessential driving "to be backed up by all possible enforcement," in the District and 12 Eastern States plus eight eastern counties of West Virginia was announced by the OPA last night to become effective at noon today.

"This action was taken to meet a gasoline supply crisis resulting from tremendously increased military demands, and to assure adequate gasoline for the transportation of food," an OPA statement said.

The 12 affected States are Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia.

"The emergency, signalized by filling stations' running dry in various cities, including war plant centers, along the Atlantic Coast, makes drastic action throughout the general Eastern area necessary to make sure that our available gasoline supplies—which have hit an all-time low—are not dissipated in nonessential uses," Prentiss M. Brown, OPA administrator, declared.

"The situation is so serious that thousands of tractors operated in vital food production areas from Virginia to Maine might stand idle

Lewis Seeks Mine Union's Return to A.F.L.

Application to Get Prompt Attention Of Executive Council

By Ben W. Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

A formal petition to return the powerful United Mine Workers of America to the American Federation of Labor was filed with the Federation's executive council by John L. Lewis, A. F. of L. President William Green revealed yesterday at a hurriedly-called press conference.

Lewis, president of the U. M. W., who forced a split in the labor movement in November, 1935, by forming the C. I. O. which he left seven years later, asked for reaffiliation, pointing to the "need for a unified labor movement," Green said.

The executive council, holding its annual spring meeting in Washington, acted on the request and authorized the appointment of a committee "to proceed in an orderly way to take up and arrive at an understanding."

Green's Statement

Green released the following prepared statement for the executive council:

"The United Mine Workers made formal application to the executive council for reaffiliation with the American Federation of Labor. The council welcomed the receipt of the application and is proceeding to consider and act upon the application in an orderly and sympathetic way.

"The executive council interprets the application of the United Mine Workers for reaffiliation as a response to its repeated appeals to those organizations originally chartered by the American Federation

5 Escaped War Prisoners Retaken

Camp Clark, Mo., May 19 (AP).—Five Italian prisoners of war were captured in a barn 7 miles south of Carthage, Mo., today a few hours after they had escaped from a prison camp here.

Highway Patrolman Charles P. Corbin and Ed Bilyeu, an inspector for the Missouri Public Service Commission, trailed them to the barn from the place where they had abandoned a stolen automobile. Unarmed, the men surrendered without resistance.

Enemy Troops Face Virtually Certain Death Or Surrender

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Japanese troops were cornered last night on a narrow peninsula of Attu Island after being driven from their strongest natural defense line—the rocky ridge that forms the island's backbone.

With their backs to the sea, the remaining Japs faced virtually certain death or surrender in a small pocket around Chichagof Harbor at the northeastern corner of the bleak Aleutian Island.

Only a strong Japanese naval force might save them, and the opinion here was that the Nipponese high command would not make the attempt. Bringing supporting sea forces to Attu would put them within easy range of our Aleutian air bases and possible annihilation.

Might Take a While

No one here, however, was willing to make a definite prediction as to how long Japanese resistance on Attu might continue. If the Nipponese follow their usual practice of fighting a last-ditch stand, it may take some time to clean out each machine gun nest and strong point in the rugged terrain of the island.

Good weather would hasten the process, for then our bombers and fighters from Amchitka—only 200 miles distant—could work over the narrow area constantly, and the big guns of our land artillery and warships just off shore could blast them with much greater accuracy.

The pocketing of the Japs was accomplished by American Army troops Tuesday, a Navy communique revealed. One force driving inland from Holtz Bay had taken the 3000-foot ridge southeast of the bay by that morning. Earlier our forces took possession of part of this important high ground and with this advance made impossible further enemy hold on the Holtz Bay area.

2 Forces Met in Pass

Meanwhile, the larger American force, which landed on the southern side of the island at Massacre Bay, was advancing northward. These two columns—forming the prongs of an irresistible pincers movement—snapped shut during the day Tuesday. Advance patrols of both forces met in a pass through the mountain ridge and during Tuesday afternoon cleared it of Japanese.

The enemy then "withdraw toward Chicahagof Harbor, leaving only snipers behind," the Navy stated. Presumably then, American troops continued their attacks on the retreating Japs, driving at the enemy positions from both the west and south.

Several enemy 3-inch antiaircraft guns were captured by the Yankee soldiers, and "are being used by our troops," the Navy said. Apparently this meant they were put in position ready for action or perhaps are being used against the Jap ground forces, as there have been no reports of any enemy planes in the air over Attu.

Yesterday's Navy communique made no reference to any American air operations over the island, but authoritative circles here understood that the fog had abated slightly, enough for some air action.

The Navy announcement also reported an attack by our naval divebombers on the Japanese seaplane base at Rekata Bay on Santa Isabel Island in the Solomons. Results were not observed, it was said.

Midwest Rivers Rage Along 500-Mile Front

Workmen Labor To Bulwark Levees, Protect War Plants

By the Associated Press

An army of troops and workmen labored yesterday to bulwark levees and protect plants menaced by rampant rivers in a 500-mile wide flood zone in the Midwest.

Engineers, Coast Guardsmen and policemen joined hundreds of soldiers in patrolling and strengthening sea walls in the five-State area where a dozen overflowing streams halted operations in approximately 50 mines, threatened factories and power units, broke through dikes, and swished across thousands of acres of fertile farm land.

It was estimated, officially and unofficially, that aout 22,000 persons were homeless in the inundated regions. Many roads and bridges were closed. Rail traffic was interrupted in several sectors.

Worst in History

The floods were the most serious in a generation or longer in some sections, but the loss of life was comparatively small. Nine persons—five in Indiana, three in Missouri and one in Oklahoma—were reported drowned.

Warnings that the worst floods in Oklahoma's history were impending drove hundreds from their houses in the Arkansas and Verdigris River Valleys. Douglas G. Wright, manager of the Grand River Dam, gigantic Federal hydro-

Senate Group Votes Change In Trade Pacts

'Emasculating' Amendment Passed By 1-Vote Margin

By a one-vote margin the Senate Finance Committee yesterday approved an amendment to legislation extending the reciprocal trade law which Committee Chairman George (Democrat) of Georgia asserted would "emasculate" the act if accepted by the House and Senate.

The amendment was approved with two Democratic Senators voting in the affirmative, as the committee favorably reported a House-passed bill to extend the act for two years, instead of the customary three.

The amendment provides that six months after the President determines the war to have ceased, Congress by joint resolution or the Chief Executive by proclamation may terminate trade agreements made under the act.

While Senator George maintained that the amendment would effectively destroy the trade agreements program, Senator Danaher (Republican) of Connecticut, its sponsor, told reporters that the amendment merely writes into law an authority which Secretary Hull has conceded Congress already has.

A joint resolution of Congress, Danaher pointed out, is subject to a Presidential veto so that, in the final analysis, it would take a two-thirds vote of both houses to set

Son of Halifax Accents War in Capitol Crowd

The blood-and-tears realities of war were brought home to the historic session of Congress that heard Winston Churchill yesterday by a handsome young man who gave his legs to the Allied cause in North Africa.

The young man was Lieut. Richard Wood, who arrived early in the House chamber riding in a wheelchair pushed by his sober-faced father, Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador.

For him there was no applause, none of the thunder of ovation that greeted the Prime Minister, none of the roaring tribute by which Congress and the galleries demonstrated that they have not forgotten the man who relinquished a throne to become the Duke of Windsor and make an American woman his duchess.

For the young lieutenant there were handclasps and encouraging words from men who appreciated that in him who gave his legs, the fundamental story of war was told simply, yet more forcibly than it lay within the fabulous word-power of the Prime Minister to relate.

Lord Halifax Speaks

Said Halifax for his son after Churchill had finished speaking and he had wheeled the uniformed young man through Capitol corridors and out to a waiting limousine on the plaza:

"He got quite a thrill out of it—seeing Congress and the Prime Minister all at once. It's his first time here you know."

It remained an open question last night which ovation was greater—that given the day's star performer, Churchill, or that accorded the Duke and his Duchess. Both were tremendous.

A few minutes before the Prime Minister, escorted by ranking party members of both houses, took his place on the House rostrum, Windsor and the former Wallis Simpson appeared at the door of the diplomatic gallery.

They had moved only a few steps in the direction of their front-row seats, when every man on the floor jumped to his feet, did a right-face and cheered and clapped for a good

Sen. Chandler Replies to Talk By Churchill

Calls Upon Him to Avoid Suspicion of Delaying War on Japs

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

The only United States Senator who ever was answered on the floor of Congress by a British prime minister, last night handed to reporters a 4¼-page statement of rebuttal.

Senator Chandler (Democrat) of Kentucky called upon Winston Churchill to "avoid any suspicion" that Britain is holding back in the war with Japan "by making use, along with us, of every facility at his command to speedily relieve Burma so that the brave and noble Chinese people can be given the help without which they cannot continue successfully in the war."

Speech Reportedly "Inspired"

In a speech reportedly inspired and supported by high United States authorities, Chandler last Monday charged in the Senate that the British have failed to make a determined fight against the Japanese and that Russia has lent "aid and comfort" to the foe in the Pacific.

In the historic joint session of House and Senate, Chandler received his answer from Britain's eloquent first minister:

"Lots of people can make good plans for winning the war if they

Allies Capture U-Boat, Whole Crew

Rio de Janeiro, May 19 (INS).—Capture of a German submarine and its entire crew by Allied naval units in the South Atlantic was disclosed officially in Rio de Janeiro today.

Pledges U. S. Aid To Last Breath; Scans War Aims In Ringing Talk

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Prime Minister Winston Churchill yesterday assured Congress and the Nation that Britain will fight side by side with the United States in the Pacific until Nippon's munitions centers and cities are reduced to ashes—"for in ashes they must surely lie."

At the earliest possible moment, he pledged, the R. A. F. will join United States airmen in bombing the Japanese homeland to ultimate destruction.

Before a joint session of Congress jampacked with state and military leaders of both nations, Churchill in a 52-minute crackling, sparkling speech barked this bulldog answer to suggestions that Britain might drop out of the fight once the war in the west is won:

"I am here to tell you that we will wage that war side by side with you in accordance with the best strategic employment of our forces while there is breath in our bodies and while blood flows in our veins."

Churchill's 52 minutes covered the whole gamut of Allied global military strategy, jibed at "the military intuition of Corporal Hitler" which placed the initiative in Allied hands, promised a partnership victory with "honor for all," warned: "Heavier work lies ahead."

Reply to Senator Chandler

But the burden of his speech was almost a personal reply to Senator A. B. (Happy) Chandler (Democrat) of Kentucky, who on Monday questioned Britain's intentions to see the Pacific war through to the end. The Prime Minister vigorously "repudiated" the thought.

"Lots of people can make good plans for winning the war if they have not got to carry them out," said Churchill. "I dare say if I had not been in a responsible position I should have made a lot of excellent plans and brought them to the notice of the executive authorities."

Aid for Russia, China

In the next breath he assured Congress he had not brought Britain's three top Eastern military commanders all the way to Washington to "improve the health and happiness of the Mikado of Japan."

As in his last dramatic appearance before Congress during the dark aftermath of Pearl Harbor, the mastiff-jawed British war leader carried his audience with him all the way. The applause and rebel yells that welcomed his Pacific finish-fight pledge, thundered again

Bradley Crashes Food Parley Gate For All Congress

Hot Springs, Va., May 19 (INS).—Representative Fred Bradley (Republican) Michigan, tonight crashed the gates of the International Food Conference and established a forty-sixth delegation in the name of Congress.

The determined Congressman arrived in a big black limousine tonight and before any one could say "cheese-it-Congress!" Judge Marvin Jones, president of the conference and chairman of the United States delegation, received, welcomed and registered Bradley.

He invited Bradley to attend any session of the conference that interested him and added that any Representatives and Senators coming down to Hot Springs would be "most welcome" and given the run of the place—including executive sessions.

Kate Smith, 1st Lady of Radio, To Appear at War Bond Game

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Kate Smith, the Washington girl who made good as the undisputed First Lady of Radio, is coming back to her home town Monday night—as a special feature of The Post's war bond baseball game under the lights at Griffith Stadium.

Ted Collins, manager of the famed songstress, yesterday accepted on her behalf The Post's invitation to appear at the game between the Nats and the Norfolk Naval Training Station team.

Miss Smith, an enthusiastic war bond worker since the first bond drive, will make an appearance at home plate in the stadium as the feature attraction of the pregame show. She will make one of her notable bond-buying speeches which the Treasury Department counts as one of its most effective appeals.

At her own expense, Miss Smith is making the trip to Washington to appear on the baseball show. Her regular noon-day broadcast will originate from the Capital that day over Station WJSV.

Reared in Washington, Kathryn Elizabeth Smith proved a talented child who was singing in vaudeville when she was 11. She graduated from Business High School here, and in 1926 was invited to go to New York for a musical comedy role by a producer who had seen her in a Washington show. She

U. S. Airmen Fire U-Boat Bases; Brave Nazi Fighters in 2 Raids

By Gladwin Hill
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, May 19.—Newly reinforced American Flying Fortress units smashed through a heavy German fighter screen today to set fires in the Kiel and Flensburg submarine yards of northwestern Germany.

Flying 1000 miles unescorted, the big bombers knocked down many of the challenging fighters during a two-hour running battle from which six bombers failed to return.

"Bombing results were good," said the headquarters announcement. "Both targets were left in flames."

United States fighters carried out diversionary sweeps over Europe, but the "enemy refused action," the communique stated.

Meanwhile the main German radio at Berlin went silent, indicating that the R. A. F. was attacking the continent again in the night.

At Kiel the Germans put up a defensive smudgepot smokescreen both from land and from ships in the harbor, but the fliers reported good hits there and at Flensburg as well.

The Germans had tried the smudgepot plan last Saturday during an American raid on Emden, but it failed. The smokescreen from ships in Kiel's harbor was another innovation.

The raid disclosed for the first time an organizational expansion of the Fortress forces being built up in Britain for the great aerial offensive which now is in its eighth day.

OPA Promises to Prosecute Black Market Potato Operators

Warrants against persons believed guilty of violating OPA price regulations in the sale of black market potatoes will be sought today by John Laskey, chief attorney for the District OPA, he said yesterday.

"The time has come," he said, "when we must proceed against violation of ceiling prices on potatoes.

"The efforts of certain marketers to profiteer on a scarce commodity has caused us to take vigorous enforcement action.

"To that end we had a conference with the United States District Attorney and will have another one Thursday. At the conference we will suggest that warrants be issued against any violators against whom we have any evidence.

"Due to the cooperation we have been able to get from reporters we are going ahead against black market operators.

"The Post has put a gun to our head and we are going to act."

More Potatoes Arrive

In the meantime another carload of Florida potatoes arrived in the city and are believed to be consigned to a chain store, where they will be sold legally.

In addition a truck load of 250 sacks was received by one of the legitimate produce dealers and they also will be distributed through legal channels.

While some legitimate potatoes were obtainable through chain stores, local produce men said they were being approached openly by truckers who were offering to sell them black market spuds at above ceiling prices.

Other reports coming in to The Post were that some stores able to

TunisiaGamble Cost the Axis 324,000 Men

By Noland Norgaard
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, May 19.—The Axis gambled—and lost—nearly a third of a million of its best troops in a vain effort to hold on to Tunisia and prevent its establishment as a base for an Allied assault on Nazi-dominated Europe.

The official disclosure today that the Germans and Italians lost 324,000 killed, seriously wounded and captured in the fighting which drove them at last from Africa coincided with an announcement that the United States Air Forces yesterday gave the Italian island of Pantelleria, stepping stone to Sicily, its worst bombing of the war, and heavily attacked the Sicilian port of Trapani.

This was the kind of onslaught the Axis long has known inevitably would follow the loss of Tunisia.

The bare figures of the huge Axis losses in the final fighting—from the smashing of the Mareth Line to the Axis surrender in northeastern Tunisia—included 30,000 killed, 27,000 seriously wounded, and 267,000 captured.

Africa Corps Smashed

But these figures do not give an adequate idea of the enormous blow the Allied victory gave Axis hopes of preventing an Allied blow on Europe. For among the Axis dead and captured was all of the once great Africa Corps, including the famous Fifteenth and Twenty-first Tank Divisions, and the veteran Tenth Tank Division, as well as Elite and highly specialized airborne fighters such as parachutists and glider troops of the Goering Division who fought in the mountains of northern Tunisia as infantry.

Among the Axis casualties also were virtually all of the remaining first-class experienced combat troops Italy still possessed after three years of war.

The latest destructive blow at Pantelleria, 62 miles from Sicily, was carried out by a large force of bomb-carrying Warhawk and Lightning fighters and Mitchell and Marauder medium bombers.

Immense Damage Done

Photographs taken immediately after the raid showed the 100 tons of bombs dropped caused immense damage, with the warehouse area particularly hard hit. Six merchant ships in Pantelleria harbor were hit, five enemy planes were smashed on the airfield and numerous fires were raging in the dock and warehouse areas.

Warhawks skimmed across 45 miles of water to lead the attack, blasting the airdrome, scoring hits on the barracks, blowing up a large transport plane and leaving the airport administration building in flames. The Mitchells, Marauders and Lightnings then joined the work of destruction, bombing and shooting up everything in sight, including 12 to 15 small boats in the harbor and three enemy gun posts on the coast.

Flying Fortresses battered Sicily itself, blowing up a ship in Trapani Harbor and covering docks and railway yards of the base with bomb bursts.

As they were leaving Trapani, the Fortresses were attacked by 25 Messerschmitt and Focke-Wulf fighters, and in a running fight over the Mediterranean five enemy planes were destroyed by escorting Lightnings. The Fortresses accounted for another.

Sicily Also Attacked

Planes from Malta also were over Sicily in the night, attacking factories, railway stations and other targets. In all, seven Allied planes were reported missing.

The broadcast also asserted that three large steamers in an Allied convoy had been holed by Italian torpedo planes off the Algerian Coast and one of them, a 10,000-ton vessel, was seen to sink. This claim was not confirmed by Allied sources.

A French communique issued here today said French naval forces occupied the Island of La Galite, 25 miles northwest of Cap Serrat off the north Tunisian Coast.

Axis Manpower Loss In Africa Put at 950,000

Prime Minister Churchill told Congress that the Axis had lost in Africa 950,000 soldiers killed and captured, 6200 guns, 2550 tanks and 70,000 trucks and that 2,400,000 tons of enemy shipping had been sunk in that theater. Presumably the figures were for three years.

Gen. Montgomery Wishes 8th Army 'Good Hunting'

London, May 19 (AP).—For the hardy troops of his victorious Eighth Army, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery still wishes "good hunting in the battles yet to come"—the phrase with which he sparked the African rout of the Axis.

In a message to his forces May 14 on completion of the Tunisia campaign, the general implied that the famous Eighth would not rest on its laurels. The message released here today said:

"We can have only one thought and that is to see this thing through to the end. Then we will be able to return to our families honorable men. Therefore let us think of the future in this way.

"To each of you the very best of good luck and good hunting in the battles yet to come."

Chicago, May 19 (AP).—There will be no shortage of ammunition for American troops, Col. T. C. Gerber, field director of the country's ammunition plants, told Midwest newspaper editors and publishers today.

Author of Nazi Plan To Defend Tunisia Quits

London, May 19 (AP). — The Moscow radio broadcast a Stockholm report today that Lieut. Gen. Warlimondt, Deputy Chief of the Guidance Staff of the German High Command, had resigned.

The broadcast said General Warlimondt, one of the three or four principal aides of Field Marshal Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the high command, was the author of the Axis plan for the defense of Tunisia which had been approved by Adolf Hitler.

Berlin Reports Guerilla Fights

The Berlin radio reported yesterday that units of the German army and the SS (Elite Guards) have been battling in Yugoslavia with "Communists and remnants of Serbian groups" under the command of Gen. Draja Mihailovic for several days.

The broadcast said Croat and Italian detachments also were taking part in the fight

Davies Reaches Moscow With Roosevelt Letter for Stalin

By Eddy Gilmore
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, May 19.—The letter from President Roosevelt to Premier-Marshal Stalin arrived today in a briefcase carried by former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies on his second and perhaps more fatefully significant mission to Moscow.

He is expected to deliver the letter tomorrow. The emissary will be in Moscow only a short time, and probably will carry back to Washington a letter from Stalin to Roosevelt in reply.

Davies completed the last leg of his aerial postman's journey half around the world on a hop from the alternate capital of Kuibyshev with an escort of five Soviet fighter planes.

The briefcase containing the secret correspondence was clutched under his arm as he appeared at the top of the plane's landing ladder. He wore the first Panama hat seen in Moscow in many a day and, of course, someone shouted:

"Where did you get that hat?"

Davies apparently didn't hear.

Among the greeters was Admiral William H. Standley, the incumbent Ambassador to Russia, who called, "Come t othe (Soviet) guest house."

Oh, no," said Davies. "I want to go to the American Embassy first."

"Fine," said Standley, "come on down."

When he descended to the ground, Davies was warmly greeted Standley and Brig. Gen. Philip R. Faymonville of the American Supply Mission, with the words: "God bless you!"

With them were Read Admiral Jack Duncan and Brig. Gen. Joseph A. Michela, American Naval and Military Attaches of the Embassy.

Russian and American flags waved their welcome from the airport buildings and several Soviet officials were on hand to greet him.

Davies spent some time en route visiting Stalingrad, where he walked about among the ruins and the rebuilding.

Dam Floods Continue Destruction

By Ernest Agnew
Associated Press Staff Writer

London (Thursday), May 20.—Floods from bomb-burst Eder and Moehne dams in western Germany still are rolling destructively forward, crippling transport and halting industries, and both areas "present a most mournful spectacle," the Air Ministry announced today.

Denying that the plan to bomb the reservoirs had originated with with civilians, as had been reported by some sources, the ministry said that fields are flooded and "roads and railways have disappeared. Bridges have been washed away and buildings can be seen sticking above the flood."

711 Casualties, Nazis Say

The Germans said today that casualties in the dam-bursting now totaled 711 persons, with 36 still missing. The Germans in their radio broadcasts claimed that 341 of the casualties were prisoners ers of war. Other reports have put the casualities in the thousands.

(In Washington, Winston Churchill said 19 giant Lancasters were used in the raids on the dams. The British previously announced that eight of the attacking bombers were lost.)

The Eder tide has swept 50 miles forward, inundating many parts of Kassel, munitions manufacturing town of 260,000 population 35 miles below the reservoir, while waters from the Moehne reservoir were reaching with damaging effects into the highly-industrialized Ruhr Valley.

70 Per Cent of Ruhr Power

The newspaper Der Bund of Bern, Switzerland, said the dams breached by R. A. F. mines supplied 70 per cent of the electric power and water supply for Ruhr industry.

Thousands of persons were killed and hundreds of thousands made homeless by the catastrophe, it said, adding:

"Because the flood was unleashed so suddenly, almost no help could be brought. The whole province, which is one of the most thickly-populated in Germany and has the biggest railroad and canal networks, was brought to a pitiable condition."

Latest reports indicated that canals will not be usable for a long time, the Swiss paper added.

Other Towns Inundated

Bergheim, Fritzlar, Wabern, and Gensungen were among the towns flooded by the torrents pouring through the breach in the Eder. The breach is 180 feet across at the crown and 100 feet at the base.

The swirling waters have widened out and passed into the Fulda Valley about 50 miles below the reservoir, the air ministry said.

In the Moehne area, photographs showed the flood had rushed through Neiderense Neheim, a city of 50,000 at the confluence of the Moehne and the Ruhr, and tonight had reached Froendenberg and Schwerte, 30 miles from the reservoir.

If the floods have passed on beyond Schwerte—as seems probable—they have invaded the very much more industralized part of the Ruhr Valley an dthey are therefore likely to have caused even more damage than they have already," the ministry said.

In discussing the plans for the assaults on the dams, the ministry in a formal statement later said all war-important objectives in Germany have long since been studied with a view to attack at the most favorable time.

The statement was made to quash reports that a German-Jewish medical specialist, now a refugee in London, had suggested the attack. The Nazis had threatened reprisals against the Jews because of it. The version crediting the refugee with the idea of bombing the dams was carried originally by the British news agency Reuters.

Declaring that "misleading statements have appeared" about the origin of the raids, the Air Ministry said "it is true that an attack on the dams was suggested on several occasions by members of the public, but the operation did not in fact originate with any such suggestions."

Trippe Asks Fair Split On Airlanes

By the Associated Press

New York, May 19.—Juan T. Trippe, founder and president of the Pan American Airways System, said tonight that after the war each of the United Nations should "be permitted to secure—on equitable terms—all the ocean transport planes that are needed to restore the balance for fair competition."

TRIPPE

Declaring in a speech prepared for delivery at the annual dinner of the National Institute of Social Sciences that the principle of balance of commercial air power should be established between the United States and Great Britain, he added:

"In fact, I urge that this principle shall have application in our dealings with the National Airlines representing each of the United Nations."

The institute's 1943 gold medals were awarded at the dinner to Trippe, Mme. Chiang Kai-shek; Lieut. Comdr. Mildred H. McAfee, director of the WAVES; and Dr. Edwin Grant Conklin, Princeton University biologist.

Trippe disclosed that over a year ago Pan American started a program for the construction of 50 giant Clippers, each capable of carrying 153 passengers from New York to London in 10 hours at a fare of $100.

"These same Clippers operating over other Pan American airways' routes would provide a service of 24 hours to Australia or China, 22 hours to Buenos Aires—all at comparatively low fares," he added.

Referring to statements that the British would be at a disadvantage after the war because this country is building more air transports, Trippe said:

"We all share the healthy American aspiration to be the winner of a race or a ball game or an international business competition. But fair is fair. If you want to win a baseball game, you try to out-hit the other fellow, but you don't take away his bat."

He named British, Russian, French, Dutch and Canadian airlines, as well as Pan American, as wishing "to make sure that this new prosperity benefits the people—all the people of all the world."

Trippe also recently was selected to receive the Capt. Robert M. Dollar Award for his outstanding championing of and service to American foreign trade.

Reds Shatter 2 Assaults

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday) May 20—Red Army troops shattered two more Nazi attacks in the Caucasus Wednesday, killing nearly 350 troops, and blasting 14 boatloads of Nazis attempting to retreat over the Kuban River, the Russians announced early today.

The Caucasus was still the fiercest fought battlefield and a Moscow broadcast reported more than 500 German planes had been downed in air combats alone in the last three weeks.

The Germans would send 20 to 40 fighters and an equal number of bombers against Russian troops, but the Soviets mustered more planes "which gradually began to oust the enemy aviation from the Kuban skies," said the broadcast.

The Russians sent 200 bombers against a "big enemy group massing for a counterattack" and "completely dispersed" it, the broadcast said. "Especially heavy were the casualties sustained by a German mountain infantry division which lost nearly the whole personnel of its headquarters.

Violent actions over a long area of the rest of the front cost the Germans more dead Wednesday, the midnight war bulletin said, with 300 annihilated on the Western Front before Moscow.

Russian artillery hammered a concentration of German tanks in the Sevsk region and there "were a number of heavy explosions and fires in the target area."

West of Rostov, 200 Germans were killed in gun duels and German installations were wrecked, including four artillery batteries.

U. S. Fliers Batter Japs' Burma Bases With 100 Tons of Bombs

By the Associated Press

New Delhi, India, May 19.—Heavy and medium bombers of the Tenth United States Air Force cascaded more than 100 tons of bombs on Japanese supply bases and communications in eastern Burma Tuesday, dropping the heaviest weight of bombs ever delivered by the force in a single day.

The deadly rain of bombs was poured down on enemy bases along a 175-mile stretch of the Irrawaddy River Valley from Prome northward. Prome is a railhead 150 miles above Rangoon.

B-24 Liberator bombers "in strength" struck the Japanese with 67 tons of bombs, and medium bombers, "operating in coordination, increased the total tonnage to well in excess of 100 tons for the day," a Tenth Air Force communique announced today.

Points attacked were a supply center at Minbu, northwest of Magwe, railroad installations at Prome, Thayetmyo, 60 miles southeast of Magwe, Lanywa on the Irrawaddy River, and Chauk.

All the American planes and crews returned safely from the powerful raids, which smashed enemy supply stocks, fuel dumps and railroad installations, leaving fires and smoke visible for 50 to 100 miles.

Japanese fighters jumped one formation of medium bombers, and one of the enemy was probably destroyed, the communique added.

The British earlier had reported wide-ranging operations against enemy supply bases, warehouses, and motor and water transport in Burma, carried out successfully without loss of an R. A. F. plane.

The British raids harried enemy water transport along the coastal area of Burma from the Mayu River to Sandoway, destroying at least 12 sampans, and branched out to strike enemy objectives in and near Taungup.

$420,000 Extortion Laid to N. Y. Union Leaders

By the Associated Press

New York, May 19.—District Attorney Frank S. Hogan announced today the indictment of Joseph D. Fay, international vice president of the Union of Operating Engineers, A. F. of L., and James Bove, International vice president of the Hod Carriers Union, A. F. of L., on charges of extorting $420,000 from construction syndicates building the 300 million dollar Delaware Aqueduct project.

The two men, who surrendered to Hogan, were charged also with a conspiracy to extort $703,000 from firms operating in New York City and several up-State counties.

In the indictment, containing one count charging conspiracy and six counts charging extortion, Fay and Bove were accused of demanding that companies seeking construction contracts either pay them certain sums of money or that wages higher than the then-prevailing rates be paid union men.

The indictment alleged that Fay and Bove promised that no labor difficulties would develop if they were paid the designated sums and charged they threatened that if they were not paid, laborers would not be sent on the jobs. The extortion, it was charged, started in 1936.

Both men pleaded innocent to the charges when arraigned before General Sessions Judge Jonah J. Goldstein, who fixed bail for each at $25,000.

The Delaware Aqueduct is to supplement New York City's water supply.

Fay, who told Hogan he was 51 and lived in Newark, N. J., is president of the International Excavating Co., Inc., of Newark. Bove also serves as secretary-treasurer of Local 60 of Yonkers, N. Y., of the Hod Carriers, Builders and Common Laborers Union of America. He gave his age as 44 and said he lived in New York City.

Sen. Chandler Replies to Talk By Churchill

have not got to carry them out."

As for the Soviet Union which Chandler accused of courting the favor of Japan, the Senator's statement remarked that Churchill's speech failed to "shed any light on what help either Great Britain or the United States can hope to get from Russia, or as to what Russia intends in the future with respect to world peace."

Implying that, in his opinion, the Prime Minister's address indicated that Britain intends to use chiefly air power against the Japanese, Chandler declared:

"It will take a great deal more than air power to reduce Japan, and Japan is the primary enemy of the American people and is at this moment the greatest enemy to the peace of the world."

"Mr. Churchill did not explain why the great armies of air and naval forces now marshalled, as he said, by Great Britain on the eastern frontiers of India, had not made a more effective attempt to open the Burma Road," Chandler asserted.

"I have not undertaken, and do not undertake, to minimize the difficulties involved, but some greater complication than the science of logistics (supply) should be incurred before this important move is absolutely prevented," the Senator added, referring to the Prime Minister's observations on the difficulties of equipping and supplying forces in India.

Remarking that Churchill evidently believes that the defeat of Japan would be inevitable following the collapse of Germany, Chandler declared that he was "unable to agree with this position."

Neither could he agree, Chandler continued, "with the suggestion of the Prime Minister that the major part of the forces of the Army of the United States is now deployed on the Pacific fronts."

While many Senators were known to share Chandler's view that the strategy conferences now being conducted by Churchill and President Roosevelt should determine that the United States, with British help, should throw its full weight against Japan, there could be no question that the Prime Minister's address, praised on all sides for its candor, and his informal talk to members of the House and Senate Foreign Affairs Committees had won him many new friends in Congress.

Spring Onions Arouse 'Pleasure' Of Churchill

By the Associated Press

Prime Minister Churchill turned out to be a great onion fancier.

Senator Connally (Democrat) of Texas, Foreign Relations Committee chairman, disclosed that Churchill "expressed the greatest pleasure" over the fresh spring onions which were one of the appetizers at the luncheon given in his honor at the Capitol yesterday.

In fact, Connally said, the Prime Minister ate so heartily of the consomme and such that he was surprised when the main course was brought in.

The Senator, who was seated next to Churchill, noted, however, that he polished off the creamed chicken and peas manfully.

Churchill Loves Cigar —Even When Dropped

By the Associated Press

Prime Minister Churchill figures a good cigar is a smoke and what if he did drop it.

The British Premier had one of his famous stogies jammed into his jaw at the Capitol yesterday when somebody justled him a little and the cigar fell to the tile floor.

The chubby premier bent quickly and grabbed it up.

Churchill Pledges to Bomb Jap Cities

and again, drowning out whole phrases of his ad lib speech, as he:

Disclosed hopes of both the President and himself to confer with Marshal Stalin "at no distant date" and to meet if possible with Chiang Kai-shek.

Promised to do everything possible in 1943 to relieve the "main burden" of land fighting he said now rests on the Russian armies, and to provide as well "effective and immediate aid to China."

Announced the United Nations already are engaged in the greatest experiment of the war—destroying Germany and Italy by air attack. Said Churchill: "There certainly can be no harm in finding out."

Revealed this staggering price paid by Hitler and Mussolini in all of their African ventures: Axis soldiers killed and captured, 950,000; Axis shipping sunk, nearly 2,400,000 gross tons; aircraft destroyed, nearly 8000; enemy loss of guns, 6200; tanks, 2550, and trucks, 70,000.

Disclosed that new ship construction in United States yards in the last six months has overtaken and now far surpasses U-boat sinkings of United States and British ships.

From leather-lunged lashing of Hitler's and Mussolini's "monstrous tyrannies," the ready-tongued Churchill skipped lightly to thrusts of puckish humor.. Describing the recent unparalleled devastation of the Ruhr Valley from Allied bombings, he said it is now set United Nations military policy to make it impossible for either Germany or Italy to carry on any form of large scale war industry.

Fighting Still to Come

"If they don't like what's coming to them, let them disperse beforehand on their own," he suggested. Again, after describing how the office of commander in chief has been combined with those of chief of state in the United States, Russia and China, he quipped: "Even I . . . have been drawn from time to time—not perhaps wholly against my will—into some participation in military affairs."

But it was in no light mood that Churchill described the fighting that still lies ahead. He recalled that the Civil War was decided at Gettysburg, yet far more blood was shed after that Union victory than in all of the fighting that went before.

He predicted that Russian injuries to the German military machine ultimately will prove mortal, but warned that Hitler is reserving "his supreme gambler's throw" for a third attempt to break the Russian army. Said Churchill: "He will not succeed."

He told the joint session that brightest Axis hopes now lie in a war of attrition—"it is in the dragging out of war at enormous expense till the democracies are tired or bored or split that the main hopes of Germany and Japan must now reside."

Must Come to Grips

The United Nations, he said, must destroy that hope by undiverted concentration on a general victory. He said the Allies cannot pick and choose too much in engaging the enemy—the supreme object must be to come to grips "on the largest possible scale and the earliest possible moment" that a favorable opportunity presents." This was Churchill language for "who gets there fustest with the mostest men," theme quote of Nathan Bedford Forrest, famed Confederate cavalry general.

Repeatedly he stressed that the initiative won in North Africa should "not be let slip," that the object of the combined staff meeting here is to "thrust forward without losing a day."

When Churchill last addressed Congress on December 26, 1941, he made a forecast, since fulfilled, that the Allies would take the initiative on an adequate scale in 1943. Yesterday he was chary of any forecast beyond his conviction that the war will be won. "How and when," he said, "cannot be foreseen, still less foretold." As he left the rostrum he said the same thing as eloquently with two fingers raised in a victory salute.

U. S. Airmen Fire U-Boat Bases in Kiel, Flensburg Raids

by a Fortress wing commanded since January by Brig. Gen. Haywood S. Hansell of Atlanta, Ga., it was announced that the attack on Flensburg on the German-Danish border was made by another Fortress wing commanded by Brig. Gen. Frederick L. Anderson of Kingston, N. Y.

A wing is an administrative unit consisting of a number of Fortress groups based on various fields. Anderson's arrival and his organization had been kept secret until today, although he has flown as an observer on several raids.

Tens of thousands of incendiaries were reported dropped on the two targets in one of the largest firebombing operations ever made by American airmen.

Explosives also were sprayed on Kiel and Flensburg in the strong attack, but it was apparent that the American Air Force was out to complete with fire the heavy destruction inflicted on Kiel by Flying Fortresses last Friday. The operation last week was described officially as the most accurate and devastating bombing ever achieved by the American precision airmen.

The Germans threw up a fighter defense of single-engine Focke Wulf 190's, Messerschmitt 109's, and twin-engined Messerschmitt 110's and Junkers 88's today in an effort to ward off the Americans.

But tons of fire bombs and explosives were loosed on the Kiel Deutsche Werke submarine yard which has six drydocks, including Germany's largest. In the May 14 raid the Griggs Marine Werke was hit hard by the Americans.

At Flensburg, the American raiders hit the Flensburger Shiffbau yards which have five large slips, some 700 feet long and capable of holding a number of large submarines.

The Kraftwerke, Flensburg's power station, which supplies most of the electric power for the Province of Schleswig, also was struck.

The American raids followed overnight R. A. F. bomber and fighter attacks on Axis rail and water objectives. Bostons, Beaufighters and Mosquitoes were used in these damaging blows at Germany's transport system. One Canadian pilot reported he hit five trains in a four-hour period.

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach

2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

You may overcome the discomforts or embarrassment of

Sour Stomach Jerky Nerves
Loss of Appetite Underweight
Digestive Complaints Weakness
Poor Complexion

Getting value out of the food you eat is your No. 1 health problem whether you eat 500 or 2,000 pounds yearly.

To do this, scientists say, you must have an adequate supply of natural stomach digestive juices and rich, red-blood must be present.

Improper diet, overwork, undue worries, colds, the flu or other illness often impairs the stomach's digestive functions and reduces the red-blood strength.

A person who is operating on only a 70 to 75% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped.

Undigested food sours, causes gas . . . bloating . . . fails to supply the necessary body energy . . . tissue repair . . . often resulting in nervousness and loss of energy.

So with ample stomach digestive juices PLUS rich, red-blood you should enjoy that sense of well being which denotes physical fitness . . . mental alertness!

If you are subject to poor digestion or suspect deficient red-blood as the cause of your trouble, yet have no organic complication or focal infection SSS Tonic may be just what you need as it is especially designed to promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach and to build-up blood strength when deficient.

These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat . . . to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality . . . pep . . . become animated . . . more attractive!

Yep! I'm in the market. Mary says it's going to be this week. And you don't argue with Mary.
Now I'm no wasp-waisted screen star. So you can stow the pretty pictures. And the highfallutin language, too. Way I see it, these are days for plain talk. Fundamentals. Tell me I'm getting pure wool, and I'll listen. Tell me I'm getting plenty of good sewing. Then show me—with a decent fit that'll stay decent. Tell me I won't have to take grey when I want blue. And never mind trotting out any fancy price tags. Sure, I'm making more money. But it's going into tanks and planes for the boys.
So Mary says, "where'll we go?" And I say "Bond's." Why? Maybe 'cause they make and sell more clothes than anyone else. Stands to reason the No. 1 man in any game must be good. Maybe because I've done a little advance snooping—and seen what's what. Or maybe 'cause I'll just feel more at home—with friendly folks who've been doing such an honest job so many years.
Didn't have to sell Mary, either. Say! Looks like she's had her eye on Bond's, right along.

Martin Thinks Ruml Plan Still Can Be Passed

House Republican Leader Martin said last night that "I still believe" the Ruml plan can be passed and sent to the President despite what Democrats claimed was an outright threat of the Chief Executive to veto the skip a year legislation.

"I'm not for any compromise," said Martin. "I still believe the Ruml-Carlson bill should be passed and I still believe we can pass it." Martin contended that the President had made no veto threat.

His statement gave added weight to predictions by other members that efforts by the House and Senate to untangle their tax differences in conferences starting today may result in a stalemate.

Meanwhile a time-bomb reaction from House defeat of the Ruml plan hit the Office of War Information as Representative Halleck (Republican) of Indiana charged the agency propagandized "to defeat the will of the people" on pay-as-you-earn taxation.

Halleck, a backer of the Ruml skip-a-year plan which the House blocked for the third time Tuesday, said the OWI had scattered some 50,000 pamphlets and had inspired a letter-writing campaign to influence Congress in the midst of its tax fight.

The charge was issued as seven Senators and seven House members prepared to meet at 10 a. m. today in the first joint conference to iron out wide and possibly irreconcilable differences between the two chambers on pay-as-you-earn taxation. The Senate voted, 49 to 30, for the Ruml plan to abate a year of liability for all, the House turned it down, with the President credited with helping to supply the eight-vote crucial margin through threat of a veto. A bill approved by the House would wipe out the 1942 liability for the 90 per cent of taxpaying individuals who fall within the first surtax bracket, $2000 of taxable income, and give substantial abatement to others, down to about 20 per cent of a year's tax in the top brackets.

Byrd Is Conferee

Just as the House turned down the Senate bill, the Senate turned down the House bill. The conference line-up appeared adjusted to turn down everything, although efforts will be made to agree on abatement of 75 per cent of a year's taxes for everyone, or on a simple withholding collection system for wage and salary earners, as contained in both bills, leaving aside the abatement issue.

On the eve of the first conference, Senator Connally (Democrat) of Texas who opposed the Ruml plan, withdrew from the list of conferees, and was replaced by Senator Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia, who also voted against the Ruml plan but said he would favor 50 per cent or 75 per cent of a year's abatement.

As Halleck attacked the OWI, its chief, Elmer Davis, went before a House Appropriations Subcommittee to seek $47,342,000 for the next fiscal year's program of disseminating information in the United States and foreign countries, except those in Latin America. Its fund for work this year is about 26 million dollars. Ten million of the increase would be set aside for "activities in conjunction with actual or projected military operations."

Davis Calls It Fair

Davis said he had not previously seen the pamphlet which Halleck criticized. After a look through it, Davis pointed out that it gave arguments for and against the Ruml plan, and said that it appeared to give a "fair statement." It was explained that the pamphlet had been distributed in two batches, April 15 and about the end of April, to a mailing list including schools, libraries, clubs and discussion groups. Total cost, it was said, was $612, and the Treasury cleared the pamphlet before its distribution.

April was the interval between the first and second House votes on pay-as-you-earn taxation. An inspection showed that the pamphlet was headed "How to Raise 16 Billion Dollars, a discussion of 1943 tax problems, a leaflet from the Office of War Information." Interspersed among statements about "what the new taxes should do, where the money can come from, what kind of taxes," and other topics were questions for discussion. On the last of the six discussion pages, there were arguments for and against the Ruml plan, but the last positive paragraph was a description of the bill persistently favored by the Treasury and finally adopted by the House two weeks ago, to abate the 6 per cent normal and 13 per cent first bracket surtax for all individuals, with higher surtaxes collectible the year following the income.

War Sidelights

Dutch Warned To Avoid Hell In Germany

London, May 19 (AP).—Pieter S. Gerbrandy, Netherlands Premier, tonight broadcast to his countrymen from London a warning to stay away from Germany, which, he said, would be made a "hell" of "incendiaries and explosive bombs in the coming days."

Speaking over Radio Orange, the Netherlands station here, Dr. Gerbrandy urged the Dutch population to use "every means at your disposal" to hamper German efforts to exhaust the strength of the occupied countries until the Allies were ready to invade the continent.

Wounded Chinese Slain

Chungking, May 19 (AP).—Many wounded and defenseless Chinese soldiers aboard boats flying the Red Cross have been "brutally slaughtered" by the Japanese on Lake Tungting in northern Hunan Province, the Chinese Central News Agency said today.

The attacks occurred on May 8 and 9, the news agency said, when Japanese aboard launches machine-gunned the boats, sinking several of them.

Rome on Bombing List

London, May 19 (AP).—The R. A. F. would "not hesitate to bomb Rome if the course of the war should render such action helpful and convenient," Capt. Sir Harold Balfour, Undersecretary of State and Air, told the House of Commons today.

His statement followed a report from Italy printed in London newspapers that the R. A. F. had dropped leaflets over Rome saying the Eternal City was on the R. A. F.'s bombing list.

Romulo Sees Japs Pacific Masters

St. Louis, May 19 (AP).—Col. Carlos P. Romulo, former Manila newspaper publisher and aide to Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the Philippines, declared yesterday that "in the Pacific the United States is a defeated nation and Japan is our master."

Romulo spoke before 2000 delegates from throughout the Western Hemisphere at the annual convention of Rotary International.

He asserted Japan had "one whole year to consolidate her tremendous gains in the Southwest Pacific and every day it becomes more difficult to dislodge her. "Victory can be won, he contended, only if General MacArthur "gets the men and tools he desperately needs."

Japs Warn Russians Not To Help U. S.

New York, May 19 (AP).—C. B. S. quoted the British radio as reporting today that the Tokyo radio had warned Russia against placing Siberian bases at the disposal of the United States.

C. B. S. gave the following as the text of a London Polish-language broadcast directed to Europe:

"As the result of American advances on Attu Island the Japanese are showing anxiety over the fate of their towns which are liable to be bombed. They have warned the Soviets against giving their Siberian bases for the use of the Americans.

"In a program directed to India and Burma, radio Tokyo expressed the following threats toward Russia: At present the relations between Japan and Russia are on the basis of neutrality. But if in the future Russia ever puts her Siberian bases at the disposal of the United States the Japanese army will resort to a blitzkrieg and will deal the heaviest blows Russia has ever known."

Senate Group Puts Floor Under Cotton

In a new challenge to the Office of Price Administration, the Senate Agriculture Committee approved Tuesday a bill to fix a floor of 23½ cents a pound on Government-held cotton while prohibiting any ceilings on this commodity at below 23 cents.

Hitler Points Pridefully to Great Atlantic Wall, Recalling Nazi Scorn of France's Maginot Line

By Edwin Shanke
Associated Press Staff Writer

Stockholm, May 19.—With invasion threatening, Adolf Hitler and his military advisers have switched to the Maginot Line complex which they once scorned and held partly responsible for the fall of France.

The Atlantic wall stretching from northern Norway to southern France is termed by German war reporters "the greatest defense wall of all time," superior in strength and depth to the West Wall which Hitler built opposite the Maginot Line.

Hitler is virtually in constant touch with Prof. Albert Speer, Nazi minister of munitions, on the progress of construction still going on after three years. As fast as fortifications are completed troops take up posts. They are constantly on the alert and engaged in anti-invasion drills.

Pictures Published

Pictures of the Atlantic wall are being published by the Germans regularly for propaganda purposes in an effort to convince Germans of the impregnability of the European fortress.

"Experiences gained in the East in street and house fighting have been exploited," one German war reporter wrote. "An enemy who has penetrated the defenses must fight for every house, every street, and every objective."

Latest photographs would seem to verify that. The Germans, for example, have bricked in all openings on first and second story levels of houses and stores in the evacuated Channel coast towns. Thus the invader is deprived of the protection of doorways and house interiors while the Germans have converted them to their own use as forts. In addition, a maze of barbed wire runs through all the streets and promenades.

"One next to another, with overlapping fields of fire, nests of resistance stretch along the whole Atlantic front with their fast-firing cannon, light and heavy machine guns, grenade and flame throwers and mine fields," a German war correspondent wrote.

"Behind them are army batteries and between them at carefully worked out distances are heavy coastal batteries. All weapons have been tested to the nth degree. Far behind this deeply coordinated advance defense system, reserves are waiting, armored troops and excellent infantrymen to throw out the enemy again if he happens to penetrate."

That the Germans haven't too much confidence that the Atlantic wall will be able to withstand the storm of United Nations troops despite the boasts is seen in recent writings of military experts.

One in the Bruesseler Zeitung sternly warned Belgians that if the Allies succeed in smashing through the Atlantic defenses and Germans have to withdraw to the west wall, such general destruction and disaster would result for the population as the armies clashed that it would make little difference whether the Belgians were pro-Ally or pro-German.

Allies Find Haven For Contingent of War Refugees

A first contingent of refugees from a neutral country has been transferred to a temporary haven, the State Department said yesterday, in a follow-up of the Bermuda refugee conference. Where the movement took place was not disclosed.

It was understood that the plan called for the transfer of some thousands of refugees from nonbelligerent European countries to places in North Africa, Ethiopia and East Africa.

The statement reiterated that "no negotiations with Hitler could be undertaken" for the rescue of millions of Jews and other potential refugees from Nazi-occupied territory "since his entire record has left no doubt that he would only agree to such solutions as would be of direct aid to the Axis war aims."

Victory Only Solution

London, May 19 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today that complete and final Allied victory is the only solution to the European refugee problem.

OWI Traces Great War Hospital Route

More than 97 per cent of the Navy men and Marines wounded at Pearl Harbor have survived, the Office of War Information reported yesterday.

"The wounded don't die" was the theme of an exhaustive OWI report on the treatment of United States Army and Navy casualties. Its findings were summed up in these words:

"Never before in the history of the world has the fighting man had available the medical care and equipment the United States now furnishes its defenders."

Of all the naval and marine personnel listed as wounded at Pearl Harbor only 2.6 died subsequently, OWI said 53 per cent had returned to duty by March 31, 1943, while 43.5 per cent were still under treatment and nine-tenths of 1 per cent were invalided from service.

Figures for Army wounded were not available, but OWI said obtainable data showed that "recoveries are comparable to naval and marine percentages."

North Africa Report

"In the original occupation of North Africa, the only deaths were those of men killed outright or so badly wounded "that nothing could have saved them," the report said. This was true also in other theaters of war.

"When medical supplies are delayed in reaching the front—and not even the Red Cross can stop a bomb, as the Nazis and Japs know well—our doctors are trained to perform their duties with whatever equipment is at hand.

"In the North African campaign, ships carrying medical material were torpedoed. Yet our medical care system was established right from the beaches of the Mediterranean, and the hundreds of recoveries from wounds testify to its effectiveness."

The Army's hospital system, unified from the battalion aid station right behind the line to the great hospitals in this country, was described as "our hospital chain which extends half-way around the world." Often, said OWI, men picked up on the field of battle have been flown to this country by ambulance plane and have telephoned their families before the report of their wounding has reached this country.

Great Morale Builder

"One soldier, with a severe abdominal wound, was brought by ambulance plane from Egypt in 72 hours, and is now recovering rapidly in an Army hospital. Others have been flown from the Far East, Europe, India, Africa. The fact that a man knows he can be home in a couple of days from almost any part of the world is a tremendous morale-builder."

The system starts with the soldier himself, who carries a first aid packet, a package of sulfadiazine tablets to be taken as soon as he is hurt, and sulfa powder to dust into his wound. Usually a hospital corpsman has reached him before he has a chance to treat himself. The corpsman injects a pain-relieving drug, gives emergency aid, and moves forward with the attack, leaving a tag on the wounded man to describe the treatment given and tying a bit of gauze to a bayonet to show where the soldier is.

Litter bearers who spot the white cloth carry the soldier to a battalion aid station 400 to 1000 yards back. This is "a miniature hospital on wheels which goes wherever the soldier goes," equipped for surgery, anasthesia and for administering blood plasma to combat shock and loss of blood.

Moved to Another Unit

The soldier remains here a day or less, then is taken to the collecting station, another mobile unit.

The more seriously wounded are sent to field hospitals or evacuation hospitals, which are usually 5 to 7 miles behind the line although "being highly mobile, they can be brought right up to the front."

Farthest back are the great general, or base, hospitals, having 1000 beds or more and considered "the equal of the most elaborate city hospitals." Men may remain there until cured and returned to duty, or may be sent to general and convalescent hospitals in the United States.

Lieut. Branch Missing, 2 Reported Dead in Casualty List

ANDREWS

Second Lieut. Peter W. Branch of Washington, who recently was navigator of a bomber which claimed destruction of two German planes in a raid on Rouen, France, is missing in action, the War Department announced yesterday. Two other District men were at the same time reported killed in action in the European area.

The announcement included names of 143 United States soldiers dead and 163 missing in the European, Latin American, Middle East, North African, North American, Pacific and Southwest Pacific areas.

Washington men reported killed were Pvt. First Class Elijah Gadson, of Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Gadson of 1110 Forty-ninth Street Northeast, and Second Lieut. Byron G. Andrews, son of Mrs. Lucille Andrews of 2816 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, whose death was originally reported in The Post of April 23.

BRANCH

Lieutenant Branch, son of Randolph W. Branch of 1733 Thirteenth Street Northwest, came here with his family in 1936 and entered Western High School. He also attended George Washington University. In 1940, he went to Canada to enlist in the R. C. A. F., but returned to this country to join the United States Army shortly before Christmas of 1940. He received the Air Medal in London in January. Two brothers are also in the service, Lieut. Hugh Branch of the Army and William R. Branch, third officer with the Merchant Marine.

A Washington native, Pvt. First Class Gadson, 28, attended Armstrong High School and served as a guard with Sears, Roebuck before joining the Army in August, 1941. After training at Fort Bragg, N. C., he left for duty in New Guinea in May, 1942. Surviving, in addition to his parents, are seven brothers and three sisters, Holt Gadson, Isiah Gadson, Lawrence Gadson, Nathaniel Gadson, Porter Gadson, Francis Gadson, Samuel Gadson, Mrs. Emily Edwards and Misses Sarah and Esther Gadson.

Virginia men included on the list: First Lieut. David A. Wallace of Richmond, killed in action in the Lation American area; Corpl. Harry W. Campbell of Blowsville and Pvt. James F. Murdock of Norfolk, killed in the North African area; Staff Sergt. Henry B. Compton of Floyd and Second Lieut. James B. McCracken of Richmond, missing in the European area; Sergt. James A. Anderson of New River, missing in the Middle East.

Maryland men killed in the North African area Pvt. First Class Francis L. Kennedy, jr., of Frederick; Pvt. Clarence E. Nusz of Frederick, Tech. Fifth Grade Roger W. Poole of Mount Airy and Corpl. Balfour E. Thomas of Reisterstown.

Catholic Daughters Await Conclave

Maryland State Court, Catholic Daughters of America, will hold its thirteenth biennial convention in Baltimore, Saturday and Sunday.

Commission To Assure Food Is Proposed

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Hot Springs, Va., May 19.—The American delegation to the United Nations conference on food and agriculture today proposed the creation of an international commission of 45 countries to assure a better-fed world.

This commission would carry on after the sessions here and, besides working for world cooperation in the matter of food, would look into the possibility of new types of international cooperation.

British economists and others at Hot Springs have emphasized from the outset that a world arrangement with respect to food would be impossible without similar arrangements in other fields—international trade, for example.

The delegates today broke up into sections and committees to "explore" their problems, as the row over newspaper coverage continued to disturb what otherwise might be an atmosphere of international camaraderie.

Judge Marvin Jones, permanent president of the Food Conference, held a press conference in the morning which, starting out with official matters, degenerated into a discussion of President Roosevelt's remarks at the White House yesterday.

Protests Ridiculed

News dispatches represented Mr. Roosevelt as ridiculing protests from here about the Army barricade that prevents reporters from talking to delegates in the Homestead Hotel.

The President, it was reported, said that perhaps the press should be permitted to sit in on Cabinet meetings, or be allowed bleacher seats to observe the talks with him taking his bath.

The implication seemed to be that reporters at Hot Springs wanted to get into closed door meetings of the food conference and to roam at will through the hotel.

When Judge Jones was asked about this, he said for the record that no such demands had ever been made by the newspapermen here. They have simply asked that they be allowed to see the degeates and get their news first-hand as they have at Geneva, at Rio de Janeiro and at other international conferences.

Arrangements Approved

Judge Jones announced today that the executive committee of the conference, made up of chairmen of the various delegations, had approved the press arrangements here. Since the arrangements were made by the host nation, it is unimaginable that the guest nations would do anything else but approve.

JJudge Jones, who had been made very unhappy by the whole controversy, apparently had no power to change the press set-up here, because it was planned by President Roosevelt.

Out of the Homestead today came a story about the Russian delegates and their grappling with the English language. They don't know many words, but they do know one that is sort of magical. When they clink glasses at cocktail parties they say "Tunis."

Destruction of Dead Ration Stamps Urged

Housewives with expired ration stamps should destroy them to keep them out of the "black market," OPA suggested yesterday.

The agency explained that ration stamps remain usable in trade channels for weeks after they become invalid for consumer use and hence are eagerly sought by illegal traders.

No. 3 Ration Blanks Out Today

Postmen today begin a three-weeks job of distributing 40 million application cards for War Ration Book No. 3, which will provide new stamps to be used for replacing those running out in existing books.

The Office of Price Administration yesterday advised the public not to start returning the cards until June 1, by which time OPA mail centers will be geared to a fast processing system that will insure quick return deliveries of the books.

All cards must be returned by June 10, if applicants expect their books by August 1, it was declared. Those postmarked later than midnight of that date will not "start through the mill" until in August, OPA said.

One application will do for all members of a family living under the same roof and eating at the same table, whether or not their surnames are the same. Individuals living alone or who share living quarters with other individuals cannot be included on a "family" card.

Plans to Subsidize Price Cut to Be Probed

Chairman Smith (Democrat) South Carolina, announced last night the Senate Agriculture Committee will investigate Government plans to subsidize a 10 per cent cut in retail prices of meats, coffee and butter, effective June 1.

Smith said the purpose will be to determine "how much this new plan of forcing subsidies upon the people will cost the Treasury of the United States."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Strategists Envy Churchill Coordination With Experts

THE CLOCKWORK coordination of British naval and military strategists with Prime Minister Churchill during the current White House conferences is the secret envy of United States naval-military men.

All day, British and American strategists confer, the British reporting to their Prime Minister twice a day. Since Churchill has no domestic problems to worry about, he is able to give his military-naval men all the time they need.

However, what somewhat worries United States strategists is the fact that the President necessarily has to give attention to certain domestic problems. The Ruml tax plan, for instance, is of vital importance to the Nation, and he has had to take time to study it carefully to see whether it should be vetoed if passed. Likewise the coal strike is a problem which cannot be sidetracked.

As a result, some of the President's advisers fear that when he sits down with Churchill and Harry Hopkins in the evening, British strategy plans are likely to come out on top.

Naturally there have to be clashes of opinion regarding military matters. It is by such clashes that the best plans are evolved. But Churchill twice a day listens to his military-naval men, gets from them the full picture of the American viewpoint. Then in the evening he is completely prepared for counter-arguments to American strategy plans advanced by the President.

Of course, the President is one of the best military and naval strategists ever to sit in the White House. He began studying Admiral Mahan's tough naval logic at the age of 14. Nevertheless, some of our own strategists are a bit worried over Winston Churchill's persuasive charm.

Papa Dionne

When the Dionne quintuplets launched the five Sullivan ships at Superior, Wis., a huge dinner was given in honor of the occasion. Everybody was there from maritime and naval officers to the Governors of Wisconsin and Minnesota and the President's personal representative Eugene Casey.

When Mr. and Mrs. Dionne walked into the great ballroom with other guests they were obviously ill at ease. It was their first visit with their children to the United States. Furthermore, they were in the somewhat awkward position of being very much in the background compared with their unique and charming daughters.

At the banquet, Dionne was flanked on one side by Brig. Gen. C. L. Nelligan, bishop and chaplain for all Catholic troops in the Canadian army. On the other side sat Eugene Casey, administrative assistant to the President.

Casey, a big Maryland dairy farmer, noticed that Papa Dionne felt somewhat ill at ease. So he said:

"I understand, Mr. Dionne, that you are a farmer. I am one, too. What are you raising this year?"

That made Papa Dionne completely at home. He talked in detail about his dairy cows, his hogs and 40 acres he was putting in small grain.

"I suppose you raise Holsteins?" asked Casey.

"No," replied Dionne, "I raise Durhams. In addition to milk I like to be able to get some beef when I need it right on my own farm."

The rest of the evening, the two farmers, from Maryland and Canada, forgot about children, and just talked about crops.

Note: Durham stock combines both milk-giving and meat-producing qualities. Holsteins run only to milk.

Capitol Chaff

TRAGEDY of the bombing raids on Sicily is that we have to punish those Italians who hate Mussolini most. The Black Hand Society, respectable in Sicily but driven underground by Il Duce, is his bitterest enemy . . . Generals Giraud and De Gaulle are going to unite on at least one thing—an ultimatum to Admiral Robert, the "Emperor Jones" of Martinique, that he resign . . . WPB's former vice chairman, Fred Eberstadt, says: "Before I came to Washington my crowd in Long Island hated Ickes, and I was provincial enough to agree with them. But I have found that he is one of the best executives in Washington and one of the few who always keeps his word. When he promises to do a thing, he does it" . . . Lucy Monroe, who has sung "The Star-Spangled Banner" more than 2000 times, especially at Democratic rallies, has had thousands of people ask for her autograph. But the other day, watching the Dionne Quints launch the five Sullivan ships, she sighed: "What wouldn't I give for the autographs of those five little girls."

Defeat in Burma

Recent events in Burma unfortunately have pretty much punctured the onetime world-beating reputation of Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, supreme commander in the India-Burma theater.

The Japs are reported to have only about 50,000 men in Burma. How many the British have in the entire India area is a military secret, but it can't be less than a million. However, there is one factor mitigating the otherwise dismal fiasco of General Wavell: most of his army is Indian.

Indian troops have fought well in other wars, but not in this one. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, vitally interested in reopening the Burma Road, recently has hinted at the reason.

Would it not be better, he tactfully suggested, to settle India's political problems rather than lose China. In other words, Indian troops with no independence to look forward to, are not going to fight their best.

So far there has been no British answer to the problem, though it is now very much before the President and Churchill.

Senate Fight Over Army Doctors

SENATOR Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, who defeated Ed Flynn as Minister to Australia, is hatching another confirmation fight against a presidential appointee—Brig. Gen. Norman Kirk to be Surgeon General of the Army.

At a closed-door meeting of the Military Affairs Committee last week, Bridges and other Senators demanded that confirmation of General Kirk be held up pending a thorough investigation of his qualifications and medical experience.

The inside story is that Kirk's nomination was put over by a political Army clique which brought strong influence to bear at the White House to head off the nomination of Brig. Gen. Albert W. Kenner. Kenner did an outstanding job as chief medical officer of United States forces in North Africa, was brought back by Chief of Staff Marshall to be Surgeon General, then was sidetracked.

Judge Fearful of 'Horrifying Experiences' In Sentencing Criminals After War Ends

District Court Justice Bolitha J. Laws warned yesterday that the present system of sentencing Federal prisoners will lead to "horrifying experiences" after the war for judges who want to deal fairly with men who have failed to make the transition from military back to law-abiding civilian life.

"If we have to handle this problem by the present system, I shrink mightily and sickeningly at the prospect," Justice Laws declared.

With other witnesses who testified in the second day of hearings before a House Judiciary subcommittee, Justice Laws urged passage of a bill to reform the sentencing system so that the judge, before finally determining how long an offender would spend in the penitentiary, would receive a full report from the prison authorities about the individual's mental, physical, and emotional character, and his life history.

These witnesses yesterday added their indorsement to the proposed bill: Justice Carroll C. Hinks of New Haven, Conn.; Arthur T. Vanderbilt, former president of the American Bar Association, of Newark, N. J.; James A. Johnson, warden of Alcatraz, and Sanford Bates of New York, former director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons. Chief Justice Stone of the Supreme Court and Attorney General Biddle have indorsed the plan.

It would replace the present Federal Parole Board by a 10-member Federal Board of Corrections to coordinate the job of rehabilitating offenders who can take a productive place in the community, with special emphasis on youthful criminals.

While judges would retain their final authority to fix prison sentences, the new board would review any sentence of more than a year, and within six months report any recommendations they might have to the judge that fixed it. With prisoners from 16 to 24, the board could be given complete jurisdiction by the judge over the sentence and release of any individual.

In his five years of service in District Court, Justice Laws said he had found "no problem which has so completely baffled and distressed me as that of imposing a proper sentence in a criminal case." He explained that in the criminal branch of District Court, as many as 10 to 15 cases are scheduled in a day, of which 6 to 8 may plead guilty.

These offenders sometimes appear before the judge for a minute or less. On Thursday afternoon, about 4:30 p. m., he explained, the judge is given the folders for each of 25 to 30 prisoners, to be sentenced the following day. Two thirds of them have no pre-sentence record at all, he explained, "yet I am asked to impose a sentence that will affect their whole career and their families, and finally society."

New Curb Put On Motorists

in a few days for lack of fuel. Tractors in some areas are already out of use because of dry tanks, according to reports.

"The ban will not be accompanied by a cut in the A, B or C coupons."

In letters sent to District officials and to the governors of the 12 States, Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown asked local officials to take these steps:

1. Question all motorists driving under circumstances which indicate a violation of the ban:

2. Question all motorists stopped for traffic violations to ascertain whether they are violating the ban.

3. Check on all motorists found at racetracks, amusement parks, beaches, and other places where their presence is prima facie evidence of violations.

The order followed an admission yesterday by the Office of Petroleum Coordinator that gasoline shortage had mounted to alarming proportions but said that everything was being done to relieve it.

In the District there were few gas stations which had not run dry or were in imminent danger of doing so; the Capital Transit Co. said its buses were "living from hand to mouth," and the District Medical Society said doctors were unable to obtain gasoline and that serious consequences might develop.

The OPA said that "nonessential trips specifically prohibited by the ban included (but are not limited to): driving to places of amusement, recreation or entertainment (such as theaters, amusement parks, concerts, dances, golf courses, skating rinks, bowling allies or night clubs); sporting events (such as races or games); social club meetings; sightseeing, touring and vacation travel; making social calls.

"However, members of the armed forces on leave or furlough will be exempt from the ban to visit relatives or make other social calls."

Meanwhile, William B. Wardrop of the District Medical Society warned the local OPA that "many doctors are out of gasoline here and are unable to make the rounds of their patients as they should." He said that "serious consequences" would develop unless some provision were made for them to obtain gasoline.

A Capital Transit Co. spokesman said that though the company had obtained some gasoline yesterday, its tanks were far below capacity—and when tanks are at capacity there is enough to run buses for two days. He said there was a possibility operation of buses might have to be curtailed as much as 30 per cent if relief did not come.

"We've cut our use of gasoline to the bone by laying buses over downtown between the rush hours, ordering buses to stop their motors if they lay over for more than a minute at the end of a run and ordering drivers not to race their motors," he said. "Cutting schedules will be the only solution."

The manner in which the "honor system pleasure driving ban" was being violated was indicated Tuesday night, when The Post learned, more than 200 cars attended the opening of Jimmy LaFontaine's gambling house, just over the District Line in Prince Georges County.

The order resming the pleasure ban was a direct about face for Brown, who lifted enforcement of the ban on March 4, after he succeeded Leon Henderson as price administrator on January 18. Brown also announced at that time that "A" coupons were to be cut to 1½ gallons apiece.

United Mine Workers' Return To A.F.L. Ranks Asked by Lewis of Labor which had withdrawn to return and for unity and solidarity within the ranks of labor."

Question of jurisdiction involving the future scope of District 50, catch-all division of the U. M. W., and the mine union's relationship with its smaller A. F. of L. rival, the Progressive Miners, would be considered by the committee which is still to be appointed, Green indicated. District 50's present jurisdiction cuts across many A. F. of L. craft unions.

Presented by Hutcheson

It was learned that the petition from Lewis was presented by W. L. Hutcheson, president of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Monday. Hutcheson moved for its immediate acceptance, but his motion was voted down on the ground that the full membership was not present. The appointment of the committee to consider the matter was decided upon yesterday.

Although some labor sources cautioned against concluding that readmission of the miners to the federation would be "cut and dried," acceptance before the fall convention of the A. F. of L. seemed indicated unless some unexpected obstacle developed in the course of committee consideration and negotiations with Lewis.

Undoubtedly, the move would greatly strengthen the A. F. of L. in relation to the C. I. O., possibly resulting in some other departures from the C. I. O. Politically, it would mean a reunion of such important administration foes as Hutcheson and Lewis with possible abandonment of the present support of the federation for the Roosevelt Administration.

Speculation also developed on the possibility that reaffiliation of the U. M. W. would be followed by retirement of Green as A. F. of L. president. Green, once a miner and an officer of the U. M. W., helped spearhead the fight against Lewis which resulted in the ouster of the U. M. W. and other C. I. O. unions from the A. F. of L.

Lewis, in New York, declined comment, but a U. M. W. spokesman said that "apparently, there has been general approval in the U. M. W." of the step. John Mates, a member of the U. M. W. International Executive Board, exclaimed to a reporter, "Oh, the secret is out."

What About WLB

Green was asked whether the United Mine Workers would have to accept the position of the A. F. of L., supporting the War Labor Board along with the federation's support of the Nation-wide "no strike" policy. Carefully selecting his words, he replied:

"It is expected that all international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor would ahere to the declared general policies of the A. F. of L., but have autonomous powers to deal with their own peculiar problems."

The mine leader has repeatedly defied the War Labor Board during its current consideration of the coal case. Lewis justified a brief general stoppage in the coal fields by asserting that the Government had "breached" the no-strike pact.

The executive council acted Monday to reaffirm the Federation's support of the no-strike pledge "come what may," stating that the pact was made "for the duration."

The United Mine Workers has been unaffiliated since last October when Lewis withdrew it from the C. I. O. as the aftermath of a row with C. I. O. President Philip Murray whom Lewis fired as vice president of the U. M. W.

Green emphasized that the "question is open." He stated that he had no "advance notice" of the Lewis move.

"Isn't It Wonderful?"

When a reporter commented that "a lot of water has flown under the bridge since Lewis left the A. F. of L.," Green smiled and answered, "Isn't it wonderful."

Although some A. F. of L. officials have indicated sympathy for Lewis in the coal case, the development generally came as a surprise to newsmen and Government officials.

Unity negotiations are technically in progress between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. Green said that the A. F. of L. now has a membership of 6,225,000. The C. I. O. membership has been estimated in excess of 4,500,000. The U. M. W. claims a membership of 600,000. The Progressive Miners claim a membership of about 40,000.

A major factor in Lewis' breach with the C. I. O. was the latter's failure to follow through a suggestion he made early in 1942 that the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. promptly "accouple."

The C. I. O., then known as the Committee for Industrial Organization, was suspended from the A. F. of L. in 1936. Fruitless "unity" negotiations took place in 1937 with formal expulsion of all unions affiliated with the C. I. O., including the U. M. W., occurring in 1938. Efforts to achieve "unity" since that date have been fruitless.

OPA to Act In Potato Cases obtain patatoes were requiring that a customer buy some other slower-moving commodity in order to get potatoes at 10 cents a pound.

Forced Sales Violators

OPA officials pointed out this also was a violation of their regulations.

Developments on the potato front in other cities included: arrival of goodly shipments in Richmond, Va., to break the famine; finding of 16,000 pounds of potatoes in a barbershop in New York; announcement in Washington that the War Food Administration was "freezing" further shipments from Florida and Alabama to insure an ample supply for the armed forces; and again from New York, the announcement by Mayor LaGuardia that most of the 438,000 pounds of potatoes stored in a Brooklyn warehouse by the Government was in danger of spoiling.

Fumes Kill 4 Horses

Norfolk, Va., May 19 (AP).—Operations at the Virginia Ice and Freezing Corp. were resumed today after an explosion yesterday that damaged equipment and released ammonia gas killing four horses stabled in the plant.

Senate Group Votes Amendment to Trade Pacts Law

aside an agreement the President did not desire to have terminated.

George contended that the amendment would only be operative against future agreements, while Danaher insisted that under the proposed authority Congress would have power to set aside "any and all" trade pacts.

The amendment was approved by a 11-to-10 vote. It was supported by Democratic Senators Gerry of Rhode Island and Johnson of Colorado, Senator La Follette (Progressive) of Wisconsin and eight Republicans.

While the committee vote gave outward indication that chances would be good for Senate approval of the amendment, well-informed sources expected the bill to be approved substantially without change from the form in which it passed the House.

George promised to make a vigorous fight against the amendment on the Senate floor. He will be opposed by Republican Leader McNary of Oregon. Although the Danaher amendment has the blessing of the Republican leadership, from six to ten minority party members are believed likely to support Secretary of State Hull in his insistence on extension of the trade authority without major alteration.

On a voice vote, the committee turned down the proposal of Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat) of Wyoming, to give Congress the same right to approve or reject an agreement as is held by the legislature of the country with which a pact is made.

In a statement to the committee, O'Mahoney declared that Congress may be ignored in the making of the next peace unless it insists on restricting presidential authority for making trade agreements.

Even now, he declared, "we are being told that it will be unnecessary to end this war by a treaty of peace."

Industry Hints Reconversion, Thomas Says

By the Associated Press

President R. J. Thomas of the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers said yesterday that expansion of war production in the automobile industry had been halted while conversion is still incomplete—while men, machines and materials are available for at least 40 per cent expansion of output."

"With the war mounting to a climax, the workers are told that they have been producing too much—that possibly the auto industry should begin to convert back again to the production of passenger cars," Thomas said.

The union leader asserted "this continuation of peacetime interests" was found not exclusively "among leaders of industrial corporations" but in certain administrative agencies charged with responsibility for the war effort.

Morale of workers in industry "is at the lowest ebb since Pearl Harbor," Thomas said, adding he believed this is due to "chaotic" conditions in various governmental war agencies.

"I believe the morale of workers will continue to get worse unless Congress works out these problems," Thomas asserted.

Thomas testified before a Senate Military Affairs Subcommittee in support of a measure by Senator Kilgore (Democrat) of West Virginia to establish an Office of War Mobilization that would take precedence over the War Production Board, Selective Service and other war agencies.

Joining him was George F. Addes, secretary-treasurer of the U. A. W., who said:

"The War Labor Board and the Office of Economic Stabilization see their responsibility primarily as that of holding down, or making impossible, wage increases in any form. They do not understand now that the primary interest of the Nation lies not in the freezing of wage levels but in the creation of conditions required for maximum productive output."

Addes said the status of the War Manpower Commission "is a lurid example of the sterility which present divisions of administrative authority inevitable develop."

5 Pools to Open June 5 for D. C. Swimming Groups

With Washington sweltering in summer heat, the District Welfare and Recreation Association yesterday announced opening June 5 of five of the six swimming pools which it operates.

The pools will accommodate [illegible] persons at a time and 12,500 persons a day used them last season.

The pools opening June 5 are Takoma Park Pool, Fourth and Van Buren Streets Northwest; East Potomac Pool, Potomac Parkway, near Jefferson Memorial; Anacostia Pool, Eleventh Street Bridge Southeast; McKinley Pool, Lincoln Street between R and S Streets; Banneker Pool (Negro), Georgia Avenue at Euclid Street; Francis Pool (Negro), Twenty-fifth at N Street, will open at a later date, probably June 23.

Fraser in History Quiz Tonight

Hugh Russell Fraser, whose recent conflict about the teaching of American history in the schools caused national comment, will go on the air tonight at 8:30 over WOL with a quiz program on American history, called "A Date With a Date."

The panel of history experts are Senators Radcliffe of Maryland and Clark of Idaho and Representatives Vorys of Ohio and Coffee of Washington. Guest experts will appear with the group on future programs. Walter Compton will ask the questions and Fraser will act as arbiter.

Fraser's contention that students knew little of the facts of American history was proven in a quiz by the New York Times and raised a storm of contention from proponents of the social studies method of teaching history, who believe that facts and dates should be sublimated before broad social outlines and trends.

Senate Group Votes $200,000 To Resources Planning Board

The Senate Appropriation Committee voted yesterday to allow the National Resources Planning Board $200,000—$1,200,000 under budget estimates—for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Disagreeing with the House, which voted to eliminate all funds for the planning agency headed by Frederic A. Delano, an uncle of the President, the committee wrote into the independent offices appropriations bill a provision confining the organization's activities to cooperation with local and State agencies on future, including postwar, planning.

Acting Chairman McKellar (Democrat) of Tennessee told reporters the committee also voted $12,142,200 to continue the "orderly liquidation" of the Home Owners Loan Corp., setting aside a House-approved amendment to force liquidation within the next year. The House had allowed $8,310,734.

In appealing for the continuance of the planning agency, President Roosevelt wrote the committee that the Government by foresighted planning could save "millions and millions of dollars" in excess of the amount involved in continuing the board.

Jersey Concern Files Action to Offset OPA Ruling

Office of Price Administration Chief Prentiss Brown was named defendant in a complaint filed here yesterday in the Emergency Court of Appeals by the Interwoven Stocking Co. of New Jersey, which seeks relief from OPA price ceilings.

The suit maintains that the OPA regulations fail to state standards with sufficient exactness to enable the Interwoven Stocking Co. to understand limits, and describes both OPA regulations and maximum prices established under them as "confiscatory, unfair and inequitable," becaues they prevent sale of the plaintiff's products at anything but below-cost prices.

The company charges the act is unlawful on these grounds because it deprives the plaintiff of his property without due process of law, and for this reason relief is sought.

Dancing Girl Held For Grand Jury In Assault Case

It was testified yesterday that Mary Lue Fair was dancing Monday night in the Republic Gardens, Fourteenth and U Streets Northwest, that she fell, and that Nathaniel Wilson, master of ceremonies, fired her.

Wilson told Judge George D. Nielson of Municipal Court that Mary Lue, after being fired, walked on and off the floor while another girl was singing.

He told Mary Lue to leave, but Mary Lue said Wilson cursed her.

According to Wilson, Mary Lou brought out a knife and slashed his arm and leg. Mary Lue said she slashed Wilson only after he had kicked her.

Mary Lue was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and held for the grand jury.

Wilson resides at 1502 Thirteenth Street Northwest and Mary Lou lives at 1316 V Street Northwest.

War Touch Given By Son of Halifax

No man could have wished more earnestly than the former Edward VIII for obscurity in favor of Churchill, the statesman who risked his political life to come to his aid in the abdication crisis of 1936.

For Churchill the welcome was equally thunderous and it might have been longer had it not been necessary for him to begin his historic address on time by prearrangement with the broadcasting companies.

Certainly the assembly belonged to the Prime Minister for the next 52 minutes of oratory unmatched even by that peerless master of the art.

After the Prime Minister and his escort had left the chamber, all eyes turned again toward the diplomatic gallery. Once more came that thunder of applause for the Duke and his Duchess. Windsor paused. He bowed four times. Then the most famous couple in the world vanished into the corridor and down a private elevator.

Other Dignitaries

They were not the only dignitaries in the chamber. Some of the others were Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King of Canada; the Crown Princess Martha of Norway; Myron Taylor, President Roosevelt's special envoy to the Vatican; Bernard M. Baruch, adviser to Mr. Roosevelt who sat a few seats away from the Duke and Duchess of Windsor; Field Marshall Sir Archibald Wavell, British commander in the East; Chief British Air Marshall Sir Richard Peirse and Britain's First Sea Lord Sir Dudley Pound.

Four hours later it was time for Churchill to depart. He had lunched in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee room where the committee table was set out as for a state dinner with a huge centerpiece of red and white carnations, with Senate and House leaders and ranking members of the Senate and the House Foreign Affairs Committee. He had spent better than an hour in a strictly-off-the-record discourse on the war with the full membership of both committees.

At the North side of the Capitol a limousine was waiting. Churchill was supposed to get in it and be driven past the crowd that had been waiting patiently for him on the East plaza. Churchill strode away from the car and, walking to the middle of the street, confounded the Secret Service men and delighted the crowd by waving his hat on the end of his cane.

Fr. Haas Heads Employment Committee

Msgr. Francis J. Haas accepted chairmanship of the Fair Employment Practice Committee yesterday and at the same time it was reported that the President might reclarify FEPC status by another executive order.

Father Haas is dean of the school of social science at Catholic University and has had a long career as an educator in Catholic institutions. He has been a member of the labor advisory board, NRA; the labor policies board, WPA; special commissioner of conciliation, the Department of Labor, and served in many other official capacities, State, civic and Federal. He was ordained a priest in 1913 and became a domestic prelate with the title of right reverend monsignor in 1937.

Protest Filed Here

Meanwhile the Washington Industrial Union Council announced its protest against canceling of Capital Transit Co. hearings on alleged discrimination in the employment of Negroes. The council said it felt the case rightfully belonged under jurisdiction of FEPC, and "that any attempt to weaken the authority of the FEPC is an attempt to prevent the utilization of our Nation's manpower." Hearings have been postponed until June 2.

The protest followed Area WMC Director R. B. Deschner's questioning of FEPC's jurisdiction in the local case. Deschner said the committee was a "fact-finding and recommending agency" only.

Yesterday, however, George M. Johnson, assistant executive secretary of FEPC, who formerly served seven years as tax counsel of the California revenue board and has been a law professor, told The Post the committee has proceeded so far on authority vested in it in the original executive order. This order gave the committee power to receive, investigate and recommend cases, but also specifically said that the committee should take "appropriate steps to redress grievances which it finds to be valid." Under this authority, the committee has issued directives and orders, Johnson said.

Another Question

Another jurisdictional question which the expected presidential order may answer will be whether it is necessary for employers to have war contracts containing nondiscrimination clauses before FEPC can act on discrimination. Manpower Chairman Paul V. McNutt in January said lack of such a contract was his reason for indefinitely postponing railroad hearings on discrimination against employment of Negroes.

Although FEPC has consulted counsel of the various agencies to which it has been attached on at least a half-dozen cases, no opinions received from these consultations have indicated the need for such a war contract to exist, it was reported from reliable sources.

Government Girl Workers To Assemble

Several hundred Government Girl employes tomorrow night will hear Col. Horace Weeks Shelmire, executive to the commanding general of the Army Air Forces, at the meeting of the honor guard and key workers in the recent campaign which successfully ended with purchase of two warplanes by Government employes.

SHELMIER

Guests of the Council of Personnel and The Washington Post, the Government Girls will also be shown newsreels of the presentation ceremony in which the two warplanes—an Army Mustang and a Navy Corsair—were christened.

Films were taken during exercises held on the Ellipse, south of the White House Sunday, May 9, The Fox Movietone Co. took the pictures developed by them especially for the Government Girls at their Friday night meeting.

The Friday meeting is scheduled at 8 p. m. and will be held in the auditorium of the Commerce Department.

Colonel Shelmire, who served in the artillery in World War I and who has served in the Air Corps since September, 1941, as executive to Gen. H. H. Arnold, is a native of Pennsylvania.

"There has not been a day since the Government Girl campaign was started—more than a month ago—that money for the fund has not been contributed," Miss Mildred Steadman of the Treasury Department said yesterday.

Actual canvassing for funds was halted April 24.

Contributions turned in to the Treasury yesterday were:

J. C. Trees, Wealthy Oilman, Suffers Fatal Heart Attack

Pittsburgh, May 19 (INS).—Joseph C. Trees, 74-year-old millionaire oilman, was stricken with a fatal heart attack late today while conversing in his Pittsburgh office with his life-long business partner, M. L. Benedum.

Through the years they gained the reputation of being the oil industry's luckiest "wildcatters," striking oil in almost every part of the world. Trees got his start working in a sawmill founded by his grandfather at nearby Delmont. At one time he taught school at Universal, Pa., for $40 a month.

The oil magnate was one of the first football heroes at the University of Pittsburgh, where he received an engineering degree in 1895. The school was then known as the Western University of Pennsylvania.

He leaves his wife and one son.

Gen. Franklin's Promotion Is Confirmed

John M. Franklin, former president of the United States Steamship Lines, was promoted to brigadier general this week when his nomination by the President was confirmed by the Senate.

FRANKLIN

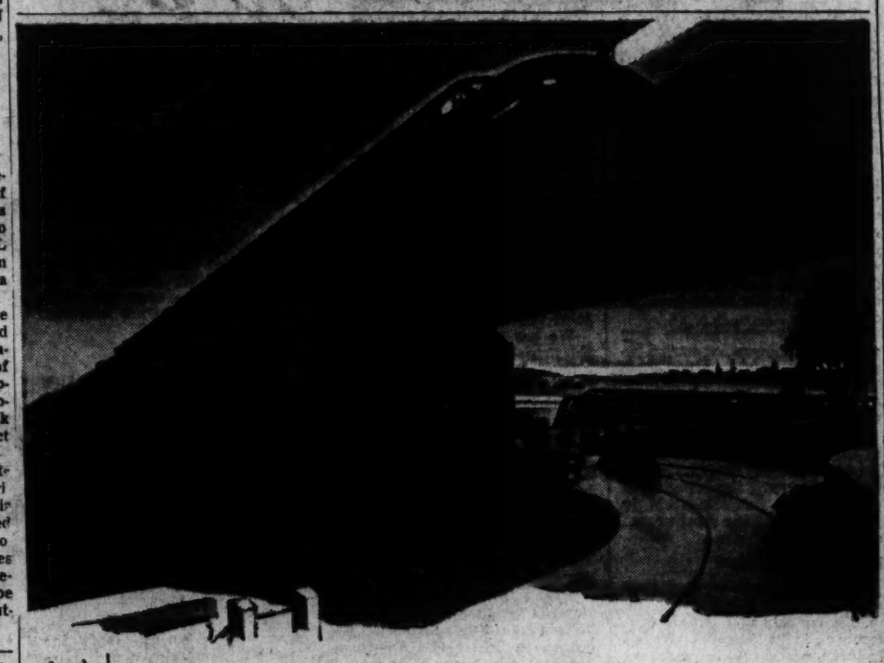
General Franklin, who is a member of the staff of Maj. Gen. Charles P. Gross, is chief of the water transportation division of the Army Service Forces and is charged with the gigantic job of supplying munitions, tanks, guns, planes and food from the principal ports of the United States to our forces in more than 100 foreign ports and bases.

During the last war General Franklin served as a captain in the tank corps. His battalion took part in 14 engagements, including the Battle of Mormal Forest. He was awarded the British Military Cross in recognition of services rendered the Allied cause.

He was appointed manager of the Argonaut Steamship Co. upon his return to civilian life, then promoted to vice president of the Roosevelt Steamship Co., and was elected president of the United States Lines in 1936.

Councillor Named

Manassas, Va., May 19.—Charles A. Apaugh of Lake Jackson was named National Councillor of the Prince William County Chamber of Commerce, at the weekly dinner meeting. Mr. Alpaugh is a director of the State Chamber of Commerce.



DAYBREAK...

... heavy guns moving into position for action on the African Front . . . planes returning from a night "bombing party" over Axis territory. And, on the home front, loaded munition trains whistling shrill warnings as they approach slumber-wrapped towns in Kansas, Massachusetts, Texas—everywhere. It is WAR—war with its toil and tears, its heroism and sacrifices.

BUT SOME DAY WILL COME ANOTHER DAWN—a sunrise that will light up a world at peace. Then trains will speed across the nation carrying ration-freed foods for America's pantries; materials for its home builders; tools and implements for its farms, factories and professions; and peace-time necessities for all!

Now we are engaged in war. America's railroads—all vital units in the transportation army—are performing a patriotic service. Theirs is the hauling job of the nation. And what a job they are doing—41,000,000 tons of army freight carried in '42—11,600,000 troops transported during the first year of the war!

ROCK ISLAND'S Program of Planned Progress, begun seven years ago, is being carried on even in the midst of the war. For when the new day dawns America will demand the best in rail transportation. While today it isn't possible to buy all of the equipment and materials required, we must have the revenue now for the great backlog of purchases that some day will be released. And think of the many jobs this will make available for our boys now in uniform!

As yesterday—and today—so tomorrow ROCK ISLAND'S sole purpose is to provide the finest in transportation.

Nonpolitical Tariffs

The nub of the argument against the renewal of the trade agreements law has been expressed by Senator O'Mahoney. He feels that if Congress does not assert power to pass on trade agreements, "it will have taken the first step toward eliminating itself from participation in postwar reorganization." The very opposite appears to be the case. For the nonpolitical negotiation of trade pacts is an essential instrument for opening up the clogged channels of international economic relations. By authorizing this instrument Congress can play a vital role in postwar reorganization.

This involves no abdication of congressional authority. It amounts merely to a proper delegation of power to the executive branch of the Government to do what can be done only through negotiation with other nations. The proposed delegation of power is for only three years—trimmed in the House to two years—and is adequately hedged about by Congress with limitations upon the scope of executive discretion. Congress might as reasonably try to administer the Navy Department building program which it has authorized as to determine the validity of specific trade agreements.

In the course of his remarks on the reciprocal trade program, Senator O'Mahoney referred to the negotiation of agreements as "secret." In point of fact, they are no more secret than they were in the old log-rolling days. All interested persons are given due notice of tariff changes which may affect their particular products and are afforded full opportunity to present arguments at public hearings. The chief difference is that they argue before permanent officials of the Government who are less susceptible to sectional and political pressure than elected representatives. Congress, we should think, would be happy to escape the headaches which such pressure entails.

Air Weapon

The Army appears to have entered into matrimony with air power. Reluctantly and rather tardily, perhaps, the generals have embraced their air force and acknowledged it as a full partner in the determination of military strategy. Not so the Navy. Still sternly Victorian, the admirals keep their Bureau of Aeronautics on a back street, unrecognized, unhonored and unwed. General Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces, has his full four stars. The chief of the Bureau of Naval Aeronautics, John S. McCain, is but a rear admiral. The office of Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air, created in 1926, was left altogether vacant during the years between 1932 and 1941.

The staff of the Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Ernest King, comprises some 70-odd officers. A number of them, like Admiral King himself, wear wings—which may mean only that at some late stage in their careers they took a brief course in aviation. No more than 11 members of this staff are full-fledged fliers—senior aviators. The airmen, in short, are greatly overbalanced both in numbers and in rank by the blue-water sea dogs brought up in the tradition that the battlewagon is the mainstay of the fleet.

This imbalance has an inescapable effect on the determination of naval strategy. A commanding officer who thinks of planes as an auxiliary weapon to provide cover for his surface ships is likely to plan battle operations very differently from an officer who, to take an extreme view, considers the airplane his most potent striking force and looks upon the surface fleet as a set of floating bases for the transportation and protection of his planes.

There are merits, no doubt, in both points of view. And actual operations must be guided, of course, by particular situations, by the strength and tactics of the enemy, by the forces in various categories available to our side. Laymen cannot help being uneasy, however, over the meager representation of air power proponents in the Navy's high councils. Their subordination may lead to inadequacies in the construction of carriers, of bombing and torpedo planes and in the training of aviation personnel. The full potential effectiveness of naval aviation can be realized only if its development is left unhampered in the hands of men who have faith in it.

Great credit is due the Navy for its performance in the war thus far. But we have been fighting until now largely on the defensive under difficult circumstances forced upon us by the enemy's initial gains. In the future, it is to be hoped, we shall be able to assume the offensive, compelling the Japanese to accept battle conditions of our choosing. The nature of our choice will be ruled in considerable measure by the emphasis we place upon aviation. It would be tragic if convention-bound admirals missed the opportunity which a powerful naval air force might afford to strike the enemy decisively and with finality.

Churchill's Pledge

There could have been nothing more categorical than Mr. Churchill's renewed pledge in his address to Congress that there will be no abatement of British warmaking energies till Japan has been crushed. The pledge was the keynote of his speech. He began with it. In the course of a broad review of the war at its present point of arrest he returned several times to it. And for it he reserved the few declamatory passages and gestures in an oration which otherwise was sober and restrained. There would be no relaxation "of a single fiber of our being" till both our common enemies have surrendered. Britain will wage war against the Japanese in the Pacific "side by side with you while there is breath in our bodies and blood flows in our veins." Mr. Churchill actually looked to the time when British and American bombers would be flying together over Japan. No cheer was more pronounced than when he solemnly declared that in ashes industrial Japan must surely lie before peace can be restored.

There has been little tendency on the part of the American people to question the good faith of the British government in making war against Japan. Any misgivings on this score are due to the feeling that a reaction might come over Britain after Hitler is defeated. This would be natural enough. A people who have borne the heat and burden of the day since 1939 might conceivably feel a letdown when the Nazis have been overthrown. Even Mr. Churchill himself has envisaged a diversion of some of the war energies into home and European reconstruction. Nevertheless, the British would be untrue to their character and their history if they lagged over or postponed the settlement of an account with Japan which includes the "greatest—or, at any rate the largest—military disaster in British history." The question at issue is: When? Shall we continue to concentrate our major energies in the Atlantic theater? On this question the Prime Minister shed no light, for it is a problem in strategy which can be revealed only by events.

However, Mr. Churchill did say that he regarded "the bringing of immediate and effective aid to China as one of the most urgent of our common tasks." This is the recognition that the American people have required. It is impossible, of course, to embark upon another campaign in Burma till the monsoon season is over. That will not be till October. But, in order to get the offensive mounted, preparations must be begun without delay. Moreover, more air power is required by General Chennault. With more planes the general could be doing vast damage to Japan in China, particularly to the busy Yangtze River traffic which the Japanese are able to maintain almost unmolested up to Hankow. He could likewise deal Japan a serious blow in her great industrial undertakings in Manchuria. Such plans, such reinforcements, would persuade the Chinese that fair words were being backed by actual deeds.

Not even the most extreme of the Pacific school of strategy, however, could deny the force of Mr. Churchill's contention that the bounden duty of the Allies is to take more of the tremendous weight of the war off Russia's shoulders. Fortunately the "ceaseless and progressive expansion" of our arsenal makes it possible for the Allies to hit hard in both the Pacific and the Atlantic. The possibility will now be translated into actuality. There could be no other interpretation of the relentless words of Mr. Churchill. His reminder of the ill effects upon our civilization which would flow from a dragging out of the war no less than from defeat is warrant enough that the initiative will not be relaxed. This must be our main concern. Mr. Churchill's fresh enunciation of the gospel of attack is bound to have a gratifying response from the American people. They have the good sense to know that they must trust in the wisdom of the men to whom has been remitted the conduct of the war. And Mr. Churchill's address must have given them renewed faith that in him and his associates that responsibility is in sure hands.

Bombing Of The Dams

It is more than a coincidence that the German press and radio is paying a vast deal of attention to the floods raging in our Middle West. No doubt this emphasis on the difficulties we are having with rivers that have broken their bounds is intended to ease the hurt the Germans feel over the destruction caused by the breaches made in the Moehne, Sorpe and Eder dams by the R. A. F. Such Schadenfreude, as the Germans call it, will not alter the fact that at the cost of eight planes and their crews the R. A. F. has dealt a heavy blow to German industry in the Ruhr and Eder Valleys.

The full extent of the damage is, of course, not known. But reconnaissance photographs make it clear that the destructive effects of the bombing mission carried out by Comdr. G. P. Gibson and his gallant men exceeded the wildest hopes of the Bomber Command. It is said that the head of the Bomber Command in Britain was so exuberant that he relayed the information excitedly in a transatlantic telephone call to Air Chief Marshal Sir Charles Portal in Washington at 3 o'clock Monday morning. Certainly it is big news. The flooding of power plants, factories and homes is bound to have a crippling effect on German war production in the Ruhr region, as well as to impose further strains on Germany's already difficult labor situation.

But the indirect, long-range consequences of the raid may prove even more disturbing to the Germans. The dams were designed to regulate the water level of the Ruhr, the Weser, the Eder and the Lenne Rivers. With the hitherto impounded water now rushing through the broken dams and flooding the countryside, the possibility of drought conditions in the nerve centers of the industrial Ruhr Valley is one which the German authorities must now take into account.

It is a form of poetic justice that the idea to bomb these dams came originally from a refugee. His suggestion was acted upon by the R. A. F. after special training had been given to the men picked out for the mission. These months of training proved their worth. Of all the great feats performed by the R. A. F., this bombing of the dams produced the most spectacular results.

Hitler's Dilemma

Since the relative lull on the Eastern Front set in early in the spring, it has been an article of faith everywhere that by summer a new German offensive against the Red Army will have been launched. This would be only logical. The Red Army remains the only large and powerful force directly confronting Hitler. Twice—the first time in the summer and fall of 1941, the second time last year—the Wehrmacht tried to smash Russian resistance. Both times it failed. Both times the effort cost Hitler dear. But while the German army is now decidedly weaker than it was a year or two years ago, its need of a military success is greater than ever.

The loss of Tunisia, involving as it did the loss of the last Axis foothold in Africa as well as some 200,000 Axis troops, has been a heavy blow to German morale. And the possibility steadily increases that a second front will be opened in Europe before many months have passed. It would be only natural, therefore, for Hitler to stake all on one great throw of the dice in Russia. For while, if he fails, it would mean his doom, success would provide him with time he so desperately needs to strengthen his defenses in the west and prepare for the coming Allied onslaught. On the other hand, for the Nazis to sit still would mean giving the Allies time to coordinate their efforts and ultimately launch a concerted attack on the Reich from both east and west.

The Russian press has been warning its people that a German onslaught is coming, and that it will be one of particular ferocity. Such warnings may be designed to keep the Russian people on their toes. That possibility is one that must not be discounted. The strength of the Nazis is still great, as can be gauged by the fact that Russian efforts to retake Novorossisk have so far come to naught. But whether the Wehrmacht is still strong enough to carry out a large-scale offensive against the Red Army at a time when more and more of its strength must be diverted to the west and south of Europe is by no means clear. We shall soon see.

Books For Soldiers

The hunger of men in the armed forces for reading material was never satisfied through civilian donation of books to the Victory Book Campaign. The failure is one over which we need not feel too much remorse. It is no lack of generosity which makes it difficult for most of us to part with the books we possess. They are a part of our homes and, if we have read them, a part of our lives. To the best of them we are attached in ways which make it impossible for some of us to give them away.

As a result the Victory Book boxes became depositories for some pretty strange assortment of literature. A dog-eared copy of the Journal of Applied Psychology might nestle in one of them next to an ancient volume of Bulfinch's Mythology or The Five Little Peppers and How They Grew. The literary fare furnished to the soldiers was determined too often, not by their taste, but by civilian distate. Moreover, even though many civilians gave generously of the books they themselves liked best, there was small assurance that the men in uniform would like them, too.

A very much better system has now been instituted by the Special Services Division of the Army Service Forces. They will purchase paper-bound reprints of books for distribution in military establishments. They have facilities for finding out precisely what their clients want and should be able to meet at least their basic needs. But the Victory Book boxes can still be useful for adventurers in esoterica and for the provision of supplementary literary rations. It would be a shame to abandon them. Rather, they should be made more numerous and more accessible, so that those civilians who have a mind to pass their books along can offer them at any time to kindred spirits in uniform.

IN THE LOOKING GLASS

Within this wood where bird song swells
Like tones of myriad Canton bells

There stands a wild plum tree, alight
With bloom, caught in the bright

Wet glass below. Spring passed this way
And paused to touch a budding spray.

Here she looked down into the pool
And saw that she was beautiful.

Text of Churchill's Address Before Congress

Following is the text of Prime Minister Churchill's address to Congress yesterday as recorded by the Associated Press:

WINSTON CHURCHILL

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, members of the Senate and the House of Representatives:

Seventeen months have passed since I last had the honor to address the Congress of the United States, more than 500 days, every day a day in which we have toiled and suffered, have dared shoulder to shoulder against the cruel and mighty enemy, acted in close combination or concert in many parts of the world, on land, on sea and in the air.

The fact that you have invited me to come to Congress again a second time now that we have settled down to the job and that you should welcome me in so generous a fashion, that is certainly a high mark in my life and it shows that our partnership has not done so badly.

I am proud that you should have found us good allies, driving forward in comradeship to the accomplishment of our task without grudging or stinting either life or treasure or indeed anything we have to give.

U. S. Aflame With Wrath

The last time I came at a moment when the United States was aflame with wrath at the treacherous attack upon Pearl Harbor by Japan and at the subsequent declaration of war upon the United States made by Germany and Italy.

For my part, and I say it quite frankly, there were those days after our long and, for a whole year, lonely struggle, when I could not repress in my heart a sense of relief and comfort that we were all bound together by common peril, by solemn faith and a high purpose to see this fearful quarrel through at all costs to the end.

That was an hour of passionate emotion, and our most memorable in human records; an hour, as I believe full of hope and glory for the future, when the experiences of the long life and the promptings of my blood awoke in me the conviction that there is nothing more important for the future of the world than the fraternal association of our two peoples in righteous work both in war and peace.

So in January, 1942, when I had that feeling of comfort and I, therefore, prepared myself while in a confident and steadfaster spirit to bear the terrible blows which were evidently about to fall on British interests in the Far East—which were bound to fall upon them from the military strength of Japan during a period when the American and British fleet had lost for the time being the naval command of the Pacific and Indian Ocean one after another in swift succession, very heavy misfortune fell upon us and upon our allies, the Dutch.

Overrun by Japanese

In the Pacific theater the Japanese have seized the land and islands they had greedily coveted. The Philippines are enslaved. The lustrous, luxuriant regions of the Dutch East Indies have been overrun. In the Malay Peninsula and at Singapore we ourselves suffered the greatest military disaster, or at any rate, the largest military disaster, in British history.

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, all this has to be retrieved and all this and much else has to be repaid. And here let me say, let no one suggest that we British have not at least as great an interest as the United States in the unflinching and relentless waging of war against Japan. I am here to tell you that we will wage that war side by side with you in accordance with the best strategic employment of our forces while there is breath in our bodies, while blood flows in our veins.

A notable part in the war against Japan must, of course, be played by the air and naval forces now marshalled by Great Britain on the eastern frontiers of India.

In this quarter there lies one of the means of bringing aid to hard-pressed and long tormented China. I regard the bringing of effective and immediate aid to China as one of the most urgent of our common tasks.

Brought Wavell Here

It may not have escaped your attention that I brought with me to this country and to this conference Field Marshal Wavell and the other two commanders in chief from India. They have not traveled all this way simply to concern themselves about improving the health and happiness of the Mikado of Japan.

I thought it would be good that all concerned in this great theater should meet together and thresh out in friendly candor, heart to heart, all the points that arise—and there are many, you may be sure of that.

If all that was necessary was that an order be given to the great armies standing ready in India to march toward the Rising Sun and open the Burma Road, that order would be given this afternoon.

The matter is, however, somewhat more complicated, and all movement or infiltration of troops into the mountains and jungles to the northeast of India is very strictly covered by what your American military men call the science of logistics.

But, Mr. President, I repudiate, and I am sure with your sympathy, the slightest suspicion that we should hold anything back that can be usefully employed or that I and the government I represent are not resolute to employ every man, gun and airplane that can be used in this business as we have proved ourselves ready to do in other theaters of the war.

In our conferences in January, 1942, between the President and myself and between our high expert advisers it was evident that, while the defeat of Japan would not mean the defeat of Germany, the defeat of Germany would infallibly mean the ruin of Japan. The realization of this simple truth does not mean that both sides should not proceed together, and, indeed, the major part of the United States forces is now deployed on the Pacific front in the broad division which we then made of our labors.

In January, 1942, the United States undertook the main responsibility for prosecuting the war against Japan and for aiding Australia and New Zealand to defend themselves against a Japanese invasion which seemed far more threatening then than it does now.

On the other hand we took the main burden on the Atlantic. This was only natural. Unless the ocean life line which joins our two peoples can be kept unbroken, the British Isles and all the very considerable forces which radiate therefrom would be paralyzed and doomed. We have willingly done our full share of the sea work in the dangerous waters of the Mediterranean and in the Arctic convoys to Russia, and we have sustained since our alliance began more than double the losses in merchant tonnage that have fallen upon the United States.

Ship Losses Made Up

On the other hand again, the prodigious output of new ships from the United States building yards has for six months past overtaken and now far surpasses the losses of both Allies. And if no effort is relaxed, there is every reason to count upon a ceaseless progressive expansion of Allied shipping available for the prosecution of the war. Our killings of the U-boats, as the Secretary of the Navy will readily confirm, have this year greatly exceeded all previous experience. The last three months, and particularly the last three weeks, have yielded record results.

This, of course, is to some extent due to the larger numbers of U-boats operating, but it is also due to the vast improvement in the severity and power of our measures against them and of the new devices continually employed.

While I rate the U-boat danger still the greatest we have to face, I have a good and sober confidence that it will not only be met and contained but overcome. The increase of shipping tonnage over sinkings provides—after the movement of vital supplies of food and munitions have been arranged — that margin which is the main measure of our joint war effort.

We are also conducting from the British Isles the principal air offensive against Germany and in this we are powerfully aided by the United States Air Force in the United Kingdom, whose action is chiefly by day as ours is chiefly by night. In this war numbers count more and more both in night and day attacks. The saturation point of the enemy's flak through the multiplicity of attacking planes, the division and dispersion of his fighter protection by the launching of several simultaneous attacks are rewards which will immediately be paid to the substantial increases in British and American numbers which are now taking place.

There is no doubt that the Allies already vastly outnumber the hostile air forces of Germany, Italy and Japan, and still more does their output of new planes surpass the output of the enemy in this air war by which both Germany and Japan fondly imagined they would strike decisive and final blows, terrorize nations great and small into submission to their will.

In this air war it is that these guilty nations have already begun to show their first real mortal weakness. The more continuous and severe the air fighting becomes the better for us, because we can already replace casualties and machines far more rapidly than the enemy and we can replace them on a scale which increases month by month.

It All Requres Time

Progress in this sphere is swift and sure, but it must be remembered that the preparation and development of airfields and the movement of the great masses of ground personnel on whom the efficiency of modern air squadrons depends, however earnestly pressed forward, is bound to take time.

Opinion, Mr. President, is divided as to whether the use of air power could by itself bring about the collapse in Germany or Italy: The experiment is well worth trying so long as other measures are not excluded.

Well, there is certainly no harm in finding out. But, however that may be, we are all agreed that the damage done to the enemy's war potential is enormous.

The condition to which the great centers of German war industry and particularly the Ruhr, are being reduced is one of unparalleled devastation. You have just read of the destruction of the great dams which feed the canal and provide power to the enemy muntions works. That was a gallant operation costing 8 out of the 19 Lancaster bombers employed, but it will play a very far-reaching part in German munitions output.

Drive on War Plants

It is our settled policy, the settled policy of our two vast war-making authorities, to make it impossible for Germany to carry on any form of war industry on a large or concentrated scale, either in Germany, in Italy or in the enemy-occupied countries. Wherever these munitions centers exist or are developed, they will be destroyed and the populations will be dispersed.

If they don't like what is coming to them, then let them disperse beforehand on their own. And this process will continue ceaselessly, with ever-increasing weight and intensity, until the German and Italian people abandon or destroy the monstrous tyrannies which they have incubated and reared in their midst.

Meanwhile our air offensive is forcing Germany to withdraw an even larger portion of its warmaking capacity from the fighting front. In order to provide protection against the air attacks, hundreds of fighter aircraft, thousands of antiaircraft guns and many hundreds of thousands of men, together with a vast share of the output of the war factories, have already been assigned to this purely defensive function.

All this is at the expense of the enemy's power of new aggression or of the enemy's power to resume the initiative. Surveying the whole aspect of the air war, we cannot doubt that it is a major factor in the process of victory. That I think is established as a solid fact.

Plan Attack on Japan

It is all agreed between us that we should at the earliest moment similarly bring our joint air power to bear upon the military targets in the homelands of Japan. The cold-blooded execution of United States airmen by the Japanese government is a proof not only of the barbarism but of the dread in which they regard this possibility.

It is the duty of those who are charged with the direction of the war to overcome at the earliest moment the military, geographical and political difficulties and begin the process so necessary and desirable of laying the cities and other munitions centers of Japan in ashes. For in ashes they must surely lie before peace comes back to the world.

That this objective holds a high place in the present conference is obvious to thinking men. But no public discussion would be useful upon the method or sequence in events which should be pursued in order to achieve it. Let me make it plain, however, that the British will participate in this air attack on Japan in harmonious accord with the major strategy of the war.

That is our desire and the cruelties of the Japanese enemy will make our airmen all the more ready to bear the perils and sufferings of their American comrades.

Problem of Land Attack

At the present time, speaking more generally, the prime problem which is before the United States and, to a lesser extent, before Great Britain is not so much the creation of armies or the vast output of munitions and aircraft. These are already in full swing and immense progress and prodigious results have been achieved. The problem is rather the application of those forces to the enemy in the teeth of U-boat resistance across the great ocean spaces and across the narrow seas or on land through the swamps, mountains and jungles in various quarters of the globe. That is our problem.

All our war plans must therefore be inspread, pervaded and even dominated by the supreme object of coming to grips with the enemy under favorable conditions or, at any rate tolerable conditions. We cannot pick and choose too much in engaging on the largest possible scale at the earliest possible moment that enemy wherever it is profitable and indeed, I might say, wherever it is possible to do so. Thus in this way shall we make our enemies in Europe and in Asia burn and consume their strength on land, on sea and in the air with the maximum rapidity.

Now you will readily understand that the complex part of finding the maximum opening for the employment of our vast forces is selection of the point at which to strike to the greatest advantage to those forces and the emphasis and priority to be assigned to all the various enterprises which are desirable, but that is a task requiring the constant supervision and adjustment of our combined staffs and of the heads of government.

Vast Complicated Process

It is a vast complicated process, especially when two countries are involved directly in council together and when the interests of so many countries have to be considered.

And the utmost goodwill and readines to think for the common cause, the cause of all the United Nations, is required from everyone participating in our discussions.

The intricate adjustments and arrangements can only be made by discussion between men who know all the facts and who are and can be held accountable for success or failure.

Lots of people can make good plans for winning the war if they have not got to carry them out.

I dare say if I had not been in a responsible position, I should have made a lot of excellent plans and, very likely, should have brought them in one way or another to the notice of the executive authorities. But it is not possible to have such full open argument about these matters and that is an additional hardship for those in charge that the questions cannot be argued out and debated in public except with enormous reticence and even then with very great danger that the watching and listening enemy may derive some profits from what he overhears. In these circumstances, I give you my opinion that the American and British press and public have treated their executive authorities with a wise and indulgent consideration.

Self-Restraint Vindicated

Recent events have, I think, vindicated their self-restraint. Mr. President, it is thus that we are able to meet here today in all faithfulness, sincerity and friendship. Geography imposes insuperable obstacles to the continuous session of the combined staffs and executive chiefs.

But the scene is constantly changing and lately, I think I may say, constantly changing for the better. Repeated conferences are indispensable if the sacrifices of the fighting troops are to be rendered fruitful and if the curse of war which now lies so heavily upon almost the whole world is to be broken and swept away within the shortest possible time.

I therefore thought it my duty, with the full authority of His Majesty's Government, to come here again with our highest officers in order that the combined staffs may work in the closest contact with the chief executive power which the President derives from his office, and in respect of which I am the accredited representative of the Cabinet and Parliament.

The wisdom, Mr. President, the wisdom of the founders of the American Constitution led them to associate the office of commander in chief with that of the Presidency of the United States. In this they were following precedents which were successful in the case of George Washington.

Same After 150 Years

It is remarkable that after nearly that 150 years this combination of political and military authority has been found necesary, not only in the United States, but in the case of Marshal Stalin in Russia and of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in China.

Even I, as that majority leader in the House of Commons, one branch of the legislature, have been drawn from time to time, not perhaps wholly against my will, into some participation in military affairs.

But modern war is total and it is necessary for its conduct that the technical and professional authorities should be sustained and if necessary directed by the heads of government who have the knowledge which enables them to comprehend not only the military but the political and economic forces at work and who have the power to focus them all upon the goal.

These are the reasons which compelled the President to make his long journey to Casablanca and these are the reasons which bring me here. We, both of us, earnestly hope that at no distant date we may be able to see what we have so long sought, namely a meeting with Marshal Stalin and, if possible, with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Cannot Tell When

But how, when and where it is to be accomplished is not a matter upon which I am able to shed any clear ray of light at the present time. And if I were I should certainly not shed it. In the meanwhile we do our best to keep the closest association at every level between all the authorities of all the countries who are engaged in the active direction of the war.

And it is my special duty to promote and preserve this intimacy and concert between all parts of the British Commonwealth and empire and especially with the great self governing dominions like Canada whose Prime Minister is with us at this moment, whose contribution is so massive and invaluable. There could be no better or more encouraging example of the fruits of our consultations than the campaign in Northwest Africa which has just ended so well.

One morning in June last, when I was here, the President handed me a slip of paper which bore the unexpected, utterly unexpected, news of the fall of Tobruk and the surrender of its garrison of 25,000 men. That indeed was a dark and bitter hour for me. I shall never forget the kindness, the delicacy, the true comradeship which our American friends showed me, and those with me, in such adversity. Their only thought was to find means of helping to restore the situation and never for a moment did they question the resolution or the fighting quality of our troops.

were taken from the hands of American divisions and sent with the utmost speed around the Cape of Good Hope to Egypt. When one ship carrying 50 tanks was sunk by torpedo, the United States government replaced it and its precious vehicles before we could even think of asking them to do so.

The Sherman tank was the best tank in the desert in the year 1942 and the presence of these weapons played an appreciable part in the ruin of Rommel's army at the battle of El Alamein and in the long retreat which chased him back to Tunisia.

At this time, June of last year, June, 19??, when I was here last, at this time also there lighted up those trains of thought and study which produced the memorable American and British descent upon French Northwest Africa, the results of which are a cause of general rejoicing today. We have certainly a most encouraging example here of what can be achieved by British and Americans working together, hand in hand. In fact, one might almost feel that if they could keep it up there is hardly anything they could not do either in the field of war or in the not less tangled problems of peace.

"The Way to Make War"

History will acclaim this great enterprise as a classic example of the way to make war. We used the weapon of sea power, the weapon in which we were strongest, to attack the enemy at our chosen moment, and at our chosen point. In spite of the immense elaboration of the plan and the many hundreds of thousands, even, who had to be informed of its main outlines, we maintained secrecy and effective surprise.

We confronted the enemy with a situation in which he had either to lose invaluable strategic territory or to fight under conditions most costly and wasteful to him. We recovered the iniative which we still retain. We rallied to our side French forces which are already a brave, and will presently become a powerful army under the gallant General Giraud.

We have secured bases from which violent attacks can and will be delivered by our airpower on the whole of Italy, with results which no one can measure, but which must certainly be highly beneficial to our affairs. We have made an economy in our strained and straitened shipping position worth several hundreds of great ships and one which will give us the advantage of far swifter passage through the Mediterranean to the east, to the Middle East, and to the Far East. We have struck the enemy a blow which is the equal of Stalingrad and most stimulating to our heroic and heavily engaged Russian Allies. And all this, Mr. President, gives the lie to the Nazi and Fascist thought that parliamentary democracies are incapable of waging effective war. Certainly we shall furnish them with further examples.

Unexpected Gave Aid

True, I am free to admit that in North Africa we built better than we knew. The unexpected came to the aid of the design and multiplied the results, for which we have to thank the military intuition of Corporal Hitler.

You may notice, as I predicted in the House of Commons three months ago, the touch of the master hand. The vain, insensate obstinacy which condemned Field Marshal von Paulus and his army at Stalingrad has brought this new catastrophe upon our enemy in Tunisia. We have destroyed or captured considerably more than a quarter of a million of the enemy's best troops together with vast masses of materials, all of which had been ferried across to Africa after paying a heavy toll to the British submarines and the British and United States aircraft.

No one could count on such follies. They gave us, if I may use the language of finance, a handsome bonus after the full dividend had been earned and paid. At the time when we planned this great joint African operation we hoped to be masters of Tunisia even before the end of last year. But the injury we have now inflicted upon the enemy physically and psychologically and the training our troops have obtained in the hard school of war and the welding together of the Anglo-American staff machine—these are advantages which far exceed anything which was within our power to plan.

Foe's Claims Denied

The German lie factory is volubly explaining how valuable is the time which they bought by the loss of their great army. Let them not delude themselves. Other operations will unfold in due course. Depending as they do upon the special instruction of large numbers of troops and for the provision of a vast mass of technical apparatus these other operations have not been in any way delayed by the obstinate fighting in northern Tunisia.

Mr. President, the African war is over. Mussolini's African empire and Corporal Hitler's strategy are alike exploded.

It is interesting to compute what these performances have cost these two wicked men and those who have been their tools or their dupes.

The Emperor of Abyssinia sits again upon the throne from which he was driven by Mussolini's poison gas. All the vast territories from Madagascar to Morocco, from Cairo to Casablanca, from Aden to Dakar, are under British, American or French control. One continent at least has been cleansed and purged forever from Fascist or Nazi tyranny. The African excursions of the two dictators have cost their countries in killed and captured 950,000 soldiers.

In addition, nearly 2,400,000 tons of shipping have been sunk and nearly 8000 aircraft destroyed, both of these figures being exclusive of large numbers of ships and aircraft damaged.

There have also been lost to the enemy 6200 guns and 2550 tanks and 70,000 trucks, which is the American name for lorry and which I understand has been adopted by the combined staffs in northwest Africa in exchange for the use of the word petrol in place of gasoline.

These are the losses of the enemy in three years of war and at the end of it all what is it that they have to show? The proud German army has by its sudden collapse, sudden crumpling and breaking up, unexpected to all of us, the proud German army has once again proved the truth of the saying: "The Hun is always either at your throat or your feet."

And that is a point which may have its bearing upon the future.

But for us, we can say at this stage, arrived at this milestone in the war, we can say one continent is released.

Staff Work Praised

The northwest African campaign and, particularly the Tunisian climax, is the finest example of the cooperation of the troops of three different countries and of the combination under one supreme commander over sea, land and airforces, which has yet been seen. In particular, the British and American staff work, as I have said, has matched the comradeship of the soldiers of both our countries, striving forward, side by side, under the fire of the enemy.

It was a marvel of efficient organization which enabled the Second American Corps or rather Army, for that was its size, to be moved 300 miles from the southern sector which had become obsolete through the retreat of the enemy, to the northern coast from which, beating down all opposition, they advanced and took the fortress and harbor of Bizerte.

In order to accomplish this march of 300 miles, which was covered in 12 days, it was necessary for this very considerable army with its immense modern equipment to traverse at right angles all the communications of the British First Army, which was already engaged, or about to be engaged, in heavy battle, and this was achieved without in any way disturbing the hour-to-hour supply upon which that army depended.

Officers Worked Together

I am told that these British and American officers worked together without the slightest question of what country they belonged to, each doing his part in the military organization, which must henceforth be regarded as a most powerful and efficient instrument of war. There is honor, Mr. President, for all, and I will, at the proper time and place, pay my tribute to the British and American commanders by land and sea who conducted or who were engaged in the battle.

This only will I say now. I do not think you could have chosen any man more capable than General Eisenhower (applause) of keeping his very large and heterogeneous force together through bad times as well as good and of creating conditions of harmony and energy which were the indispensable elements of victory. I wrote in some detail, but I guess not at undue length, upon these famous events and I shall now return to the general war for a few minutes in which they have their setting and proportion.

It is a poor heart that never rejoices, but our thanksgivings, however fervent, must be brief. Heavier work lies ahead, not only in the European but, as I have indicated, in the Pacific and Indian spheres and the President and I and the combined staffs are gathered here in order that this work shall be, as far as lies within us, well concerted and thrust forward without losing a day. Not for one moment must we forget that the main burden of the war on land is still being borne by the Russian army.

Tribute to Russia

They are holding at the present time no fewer than 190 German divisions and 28 satellite divisions on their front. It is always wise, while doing justice to one's own achievements, to preserve a proper sense of proportion and I therefore mention that these figures of the German forces opposite Russia, compare with the equivalent of about 15 divisions which we have destroyed in Tunisia after our campaign which has cost us about 50,000 casualties.

That gives some measure of the Russian effort and of the debt which we owe to her. It may well be that a further trial of strength between the German and Russian armies is impending.

Russia has already inflicted injuries upon the German military organism which will, I believe, prove ultimately mortal. But there is little doubt that Hitler is reserving his supreme gambler's throw for a third attempt to break the heart and spirit and destroy the armed forces of the mighty nation which he has already twice assaulted in vain.

He will not succeed!

But we must do everything in our power that is sensible and practicable, to take more of the weight off Russia in 1943.

I do not intend to be responsible by any suggestion that the war is won or that it will soon be over. That it will be won by us I am sure. How and when cannot be forseen, still less foretold.

I was driving the other day not far from the field of Gettysburg which I know well, like most of your battlefields; it was the decisive battle of the Civil War.

No one after Gettysburg doubted which way the dread balance of war would incline, yet far more blood was shed after the Union victory at Gettysburg than in all the fighting which went before.

It behooves us, therefore, to search our hearts and brace our sinews and take the most earnest council, one with another, in order that the favorable position which has already been reached both against Japan and against Hitler and Mussolini in Europe shall not be let slip.

If we wish to bridge the slaughter and ruin which this war is spreading to so many lands and to which we must ourselves contribute so grievous a measure of suffering and sacrifice, we cannot afford to relax a single fiber of our being or to tolerate the slightest abatement of our effort.

Enemy Still Powerful

The enemy is still proud and powerful. He is hard to get at! He still possesses enormous arms, vast resources and invaluable strategic territory.

War is full of mysteries and surprises. A false step, a wrong direction of strategic effort, discord or lassitude among the Allies might soon give the common enemy the power to confront us with new and hideous steps.

We have surmounted many serious dangers but there is one grave danger which will go along with us to the end. That danger is the undue prolongation of the war.

No one can tell what new complications and perils might arise in four or five more years and it is in the dragging out of war and that enormous expense, till the democracies are tired or bored or split, that the main hopes of Germany and Japan must now reside.

We must destroy this hope as we have destroyed so many others and for that purpose we must beware of every topic, however attractive, and every tendency, however natural, which turns our minds or energies from the supreme objective of the general victory of the United Nations. By singleness of purpose, by steadfastness of conduct, by tenacity and endurance such as we have so far displayed—by these and only by these can we discharge our duty to the future of the world and to the destiny of man.

Let's Keep After Hitler

By Barnet Nover

Reply to Chandler

"WE IN AMERICA," said Senator A. B. Chandler of Kentucky in the Senate on Monday, "have now, for the first time since this war began, a genuine choice of major objectives. We can now direct the greater part of our war effort against Germany or we can direct it against Japan."

There followed some three hours of great eloquence, strange reasoning and dangerous conclusions. Significantly, Senator Chandler's speech was accompanied by an obligato of applause from colleagues whose hatred of our enemies is often matched by their distrust of our Allies.

Were Senator Chandler's speech taken seriously, the result could only be the creation of a state of confusion and disunity among the United Nations which alone can postpone or prevent that victory over all our enemies which Senator Chandler and his critics are equally desirous of winning.

AS A MATTER of fact we have never had that choice of objectives which Senator Chandler says exists. We do not have it now. Our enemies bear different names in different areas. But they are basically not many but one. That was true on December 7, 1941. It is true today. It will remain true as long as the war lasts.

The strategy of concentrating on the defeat of Hitler and for a while, at least, fighting a delaying action against the Japanese was, only incidentally, an act of will on the part of those to whom was entrusted the military conduct of the war. It arose for the most part from the compulsion of necessity.

It would have been suicidal on our part to have done less than we did to aid Britain or to aid Russia. And in doing so we were helping to dig not only Hitler's grave but also the grave of the Japanese.

SENATOR CHANDLER made a great point of the fact that Russia is not at war with the Japanese. The fact is incontrovertible. But also incontrovertible is the fact that while not actively at war on Japan, Russia has immobilized—in Manchuria and Korea—a larger force than Japan has employed in all her operations in all the areas of the Pacific theater from Pearl Harbor to date.

Had Russia gone down as a result of Hitler's onslaught of last year, Russia's Far Eastern army would have gone down with her and all the troops and planes and equipment which Japan has been forced to keep along the Siberian and Mongolian borders could have been employed elsewhere; that is, against us and our allies in the Pacific war.

Similarly, had we failed to give Britain the aid we did give her, Africa might have been lost to the Axis, and with that great land bridge in his possession, Hitler could have made contact with the Japanese. That would have made possible such a pooling of German industrial strength, Japanese naval and shipping resources and Japanese raw material acquisitions as to make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for the Allies ever to smash the totalitarian coalition.

THE WISDOM of the strategy pursued by this country and its allies during the past 18 months is now fully demonstrated. The prospect of an Allied victory in Europe is brighter than it has ever been before. But it would be folly to assume, as Senator Chandler apparently does, that Germany has no punch left, that in consequence we can leave the job of smashing Hitler to Britain and Russia alone and divert the bulk of our energies to defeating Japan.

Certainly there is nothing which Hitler would like better than to have us adopt such a policy. For what he needs beyond everything is time. To buy time he sacrificed vast numbers of men and great quantities of equipment in Tunisia. For us to give him time as a free gift would be the greatest possible folly.

OUR OPERATIONS during the past year in the Solomons, New Guinea and now the Aleutians make it clear that the men who direct our strategy do not propose to sit idly by in the Pacific and watch Japan grow in strength. There is every reason to assume that our offensive power in that theater will be expanded just as fully and as rapidly as possible. And the victory in Tunisia plus the reopening of the Mediterranean will make it far easier to strengthen our Pacific outposts and prepare for the all-out assault on Japan.

Certainly everything possible should be done that can be done to reinforce China, the future base of our operations against the Japanese islands. It would be monstrous if that elementary need were ignored. It is equally to our interests to increase our strength at other points in the Pacific.

Perhaps that is all that Senator Chandler really wants. But his zeal appears to have outrun his discretion. To change our basic strategy at this time would be an invitation to disaster. Fortunately it is an invitation which President Roosevelt and his advisers can be expected to decline with thanks.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Unreal Tax Issue

NOT MUCH more time ought to be spent arguing about how much taxes are to be abated. The question is eminently one that can be compromised and adjusted. The continuing agitation about the abatement of taxes is softening up the taxpayers, is obstructing the establishment of an efficient system of tax collection, and is postponing and making more difficult the levying of the new taxes and the compulsory savings which are imperative if the inflation is to be controlled.

LIPPMANN

The dispute about how to collect taxes should be settled quickly so that we may address ourselves to the question of collecting more taxes and of impounding the excess inflationary money.

ADVOCATES of the Ruml plan have performed a useful service in making it plain that in order to make the taxpayers current there must be some relief from the need to pay two years' taxes in one year. They have, it now appears, educated the Treasury on this point. But their enthusiasm has carried them too far. By arguing that nothing will do except the total cancellation of the 1942 tax liability they have fallen into a dilemma: either they are conferring a very special benefit on one group of taxpayers, or they are misleading this group of taxpayers into thinking that they are going to have a special benefit.

The taxpayers involved are the salaried and professional men who are earning net incomes over $25,000 a year. Under the present laws these men, assuming them to be self-made and without inherited wealth, find it very difficult to retire and live at their accustomed standard on the income from their savings. For in the year after they cease to earn, they owe the Government anywhere from one-third to two-thirds of a year's earnings. The Ruml plan enables them to retire without making this payment. This would mean for most of them the difference between being able to live on their savings and not being able to live on them at their expected standard of living. Thus it is not true that the Ruml plan makes no difference to any taxpayer until he dies. It makes a tremendous difference to the successful self-made man when he retires, or for reasons of health is no longer able to earn a large salary or large professional fees.

A VERY strong case can be made for the Ruml plan as a measure of social reform. Under the prewar tax laws the most successful self-made men (as measured by their earnings), business executives, lawyers, doctors, engineers, inventors, artists, were under a severe handicap. In the few years out of their active lives in which they were able to earn large incomes, it was made increasingly difficult for them, as tax rates were raised, to accumulate money for their old age. Those who had inherited wealth, and those who had acquired it before the tax rates became severe, were in a far better position. Yet by and large it is true that the dynamic initiative of our social order resides in the salaried and professional men who, because of character and of special gifts and unusually hard work, command for a time large salaries or fees. In a capitalistic democracy they ought to be encouraged, and the ability to save enough out of a short period of large earnings in order to retire comfortably is undoubtedly a potent incentive to them.

The popularity of the Ruml plan is that it recognizes this defect of the prewar tax laws, and corrects it.

BUT THIS is wartime. Because it is wartime, it is almost certainly impossible to carry out this otherwise desirable social reform. For if the Senate's version of the Ruml plan were adopted, can it be denied that in the next tax bill the rates would have to be raised very considerably on incomes over $25,000? Is it conceivable that taxes can be raised against the millions of new taxpayers with their lower incomes in the same year when the men who have large earnings obtain relief amounting to anywhere from one-third to two-thirds of a year's taxes?

It is not conceivable, and many of the advocates of the Ruml plan have recognized the fact by saying that once Congress has made the old taxpayers current, some portion of the forgiven taxes can be recovered by raising the rates. Their argument has been that the orderly procedure is first to make everyone current, and then to raise tax rates.

THEY HAVE been right in principle. But have the taxpayers understood that the principle is theoretical and academic: that out of what is forgiven by adopting the Ruml plan, a substantial portion will still be taxed out of them anyway? I fear they have not understood this, and that the heat would go out of the dispute if they did.

Yet it is clear that the wartime issue has been narrowed down to this: shall Congress forgive the 1942 taxes 100 per cent, and then collect part of them anyway by raising tax rates say 20 to 30 per cent? Or shall Congress forgive only 70 to 80 percent, and then admit that not a great deal more can be extracted from the larger incomes?

This is not a choice over which anyone, least of all the taxpayers concerned, need die on the barricades. It is obviously a question of practical administrative expediency to be compromised by the application of common sense.

The Serviceman Overseas Now Sees Them First

Hollywood Product Travels With the Troops; Officialdom Eager to See Itself Lampooned; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

THERE WAS A TIME easily within the memory of those still living when American films reached the foreign market so long after release date in this country that perusal of even the London cinema bills took on the hazy aspect of a study in antiquity.

RALPH BELLAMY

That, of course, was during the period of deceptive quiescence between wars, when "morale" presented no immediate problem and any film was a "first-run" until you had seen it. Today's accelerated tempo has changed all that. Especially since it has become necessary to keep the spirits of the American fighting man bucked up on whatever front he may be, anywhere on this or the other side of the globe. Since the Motion Picture Service Bureau took the matter in hand, the old system has been reversed and the point now has been reached where it need cause no surprise if Mr. and Mrs. Average Moviegoer begin hearing about the new pictures from their sons on combat duty overseas before they have had a chance to catch them at their own neighborhood house just around the corner.

Which is to say that nowadays the Hollywood studio output moves with the troops, or, at worst, aboard the next ship or plane. It is safe to assume that right this minute, somewhere, United States servicemen are enjoying screen entertainment that Washington won't see until well along in the summer or fall.

Of the 4700 such gift programs, complete with short subjects, that have been earmarked by the picture industry for free exhibition to the men offshore and overseas, more than 2600 already have been delivered to the War Department and are currently in circulation, according to the most recent report of the War Activities Committee of the Motion Picture Industry.

So, if you have been wondering how come that your boy over there half way around the world has been writing home about pictures that you know only as promises for the remote future, there it is.

And speaking of free doings for the men in uniform—especially the convalescents invalided home for rehabilitation and recuperation—have you noticed that ticket hut recently set up in front of the District Building on Post Square? That is the distribution center for the free ticket committee representing every form of public entertainment the Capital has available—theater, pictures, outdoor amusements, sports and whatnot. Quietly and without ostentation, this agency is giving away something in the neighborhood of 10,000 free tickets a week where they will do the most good. That hut will be formally dedicated before long.

Official Curiosity Seems to Be Piqued

While heavy advance seat sales are no novelty for the National Theater, Manager Edmund Plohn has confided to his intimates that seldom in his experience have so many bigwigs in the Capital's official family sought choice seat locations as for the fortnight's return engagement of Joseph Fields' "The Doughgirls," which Max Gordon is returning to E Street on May 31. Congress, the Army and Navy seem the most keenly interested in this passably rowdy pillorying of wartime Washington which refuses to pull its punches at officialdom. When the comedy was first presented here, there was some doubt as to the spirit in which its ribaldry would be viewed by those at whom it is aimed. Remember? Well, that seems to have been an empty fear—like the one that kept "I'd Rather Be Right" out of Washington for almost a year after its Baltimore premiere. "The Doughgirls" has been turning them away in both New York and Chicago, ever since it got off to that flying start here with the original company. The troupe coming to town on the thirty-first, the third Mr. Gordon has organized, promises to continue this profitable tradition on the West Coast, to which it is en route.

In case you know him only as a tycoon of the orchestra world, or a bowling alley proprietor, this would be as good a time as any to learn that Meyer Davis, the old Washington boy who made good just fiddling around, is rapidly "angeling" himself into an enviable position in the theater. Having had a timorous and trembling finger in the production of "By Jupiter," in which Ray Bolger scored one of the hits of his life, Mr. Davis now discloses himself as one of the chief backers of "Tomorrow the World." This little item, costarring Ralph Bellamy and Shirley Booth, in case you haven't heard, merely happens to be Broadway's newest smash hit, which probably would have had something to say about the disposition of the Drama Critics Circle Award and Pulitzer Prize, had it got itself on in time. Meyer is doing all right for himself, isn't he?

The Order Reversed

Hollywood, Calif., May 19. — Billy Wilder is about to get Barbara Stanwyck for the star part in "Double Indemnity," with Brian Donlevy and Edward Robinson. Strange twist—this will be the first time the last two have appeared together since "Barbary Coast," in which Robinson got top billing. Now it will be reversed. I said at the time the wrong man's name was up in lights, and got my ears pinned back for it . . . Betty Grable doesn't want her name linked with that of Harry James. She wants her pals to know she's still in circulation. Now it no longer matters to James' wife, who's sued for divorce . . . Ina Claire will be starred on Broadway this winter by Gilbert Miller in "A Month in the Country." Gilbert's trying for Herbert Marshall, also . . . Father Chisholm in "Keys of the Kingdom" has been narrowed down to Spencer Tracy and Charlie Bickford. I'm rooting for Bickford. If he gets it, we'll have another star in our midst.

BARBARA STANWYCK

A Tough War

Jinx Falkenburg, back from her camp tour, had a note from her fiance, Tex McCarey. He wrote from London, "I'll never again complain of sinus trouble. It laid me low for a week, in which time I was grounded, but plane and crew with whom I'd been flying took off just the same—and never came back. This is a tough war. But I talked with Mr. Jordan—remember the picture? He whispered that we'd be married soon. O, please let it be soon, Jinx." . . . George Cukor and Bill Saroyan have been attending an Army class to learn short-story writing! No, Saroyan wasn't teacher—just a private pupil.

The Best Yet

Saw R. K. O.'s "Bombardier" at the Sam Goldwyn's. It's better than "Air Force." There's one of the finest pictures of the training, courage, and ability of our men that's yet been put on the screen. And what a cast—headed by Pat O'Brien, Randolph Scott, Anne Shirley, Edward Albert, and a half a dozen newcomers, among them a handsome lad named Walter Reed. He's star material if I ever saw it. He's taken the long road home. Played football at Beverly Hills High, sang in "The Mikado" which they did. Went East, joined a Charlie Foy vaudeville unit, then enrolled at the Golden Gate college in San Francisco. Paid his way through by m. c.-ing night clubs up there. Went back East for little theater training, reached Broadway via "Dead End." After a performance, Joel McCrea went backstage, introduced himself, and said, "You're wasting your time here. Why don't you go into pictures?" Came West, in 1941 did a short at the Hal Roach studio, was seen by Ben Piazza, and signed to a long term contract. Yes, Reed's got it.

In His Own Backyard

Wonder why Producer David Lewis keeps looking for an actor to play Bill in "Frenchman's Creek" when they've got Cecil Kellaway under contract at his studio. . . . Joan Fontaine requested that while she's making that picture she be assigned to Ingrid Bergman's dressing room for luck. Well, Joan, your luck started when you signed up with David Selznick.

Hollywood Still Gets Its Best Movies Out of Best-Sellers

By Melrose Gower

Hollywood, May 19.—Nothing curling up with a good book, eh?

That's the way motion picture producers feel about it, too. If the studio will just buy the picture rights, any producer will "curl up" in ecstasy with a good book, serenely confident that his personal reputation is about to be highly enhanced by a good picture.

David Wark Griffith curled up with Thomas Dixon's good book, "The Clansman," more than 25 years ago, slapped it on the screen as "The Birth of a Nation," a cinema nifty that grossed four million dollars.

Housewife Margaret Mitchell authored "Gone With the Wind," which was converted into more than fairish sort of movie—good for better than 10 million dollars at the box office.

Wilhelm Karl Grimm collected fairy tales, put 'em out as books. "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" was one. More than a century later, a clever lad named Walt Disney turned the little fairy tale into the first full-length animated motion picture, the result being an intake for Walt of eight million dollars.

Fairly Successful on Screen

If the above illustrations are insufficiently convincing, kindly ponder the success on the screen of such books as "Quo Vadis," "Four Horseman of the Apocalypse," "The Covered Wagon," "Magnificent Obsession," "Cimarron," "Anthony Adverse," "Dracula," "Ben Hur," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," "All Quiet on the Western Front," "Frankenstein," "Mrs. Miniver" and "Kitty Foyle."

Conditions haven't changed a bit, folks. Producers are still reaching eagerly for best sellers and "hot" magazine tales. "Paramount is going to town" with Ernest Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls"; Twentieth Century-Fox is counting heavily on the box-office value of "Keys to the Kingdom," A. J. Cronin's latest novel, and Franz Werfel's "Song of Bernadette"; Edna Ferber's "Saratoga Trunk" is being filmed by Warner Brothers; Columbia has just purchased Theodore Pratt's "Mr. Winkle Goes to War," not to mention the production of "The Commandos."

Biggest curler-upper with good books right now is RKO-Radio, which has screened four in recent months, has seven more in preparation.

Four Completed

The four completed include the sensational film, "Hitler's Children," based on Gregor Ziemer's "Education for Death," which already has piled up a huge box-office gross; "The Fallen Sparrow," costarring John Garfield and Maureen O'Hara in a film version of Dorothy B. Hughes' powerfully plotted mystery story; "Flight for Freedom," dramatic story of a famous woman flyer which first appeared in Woman's Home Companion, and Cary Grant's latest starring vehicle, "Mr. Lucky," based on Milton Holmes' Cosmopolitan seriols, "Bundles for Freedom."

Frank Ross Productions, Inc., which releases through RKO-Radio, recently acquired the screen rights to Lloyd C. Douglas' novel, "The Robe," which has topped all best-seller lists since last November.

Producer David Hempstead, who hit the jackpot with the good book, "Kitty Foyle," has no less than three books tentatively on his filming schedule. Tops among these will be "Government Girl," starring Olivia de Havilland in the timely story of a secretary in wartime Washington.

There's a good reason why good books make good pictures—public curiosity. A Marine in the Solomons explained it rather simply when he wrote home:

"Please send me a copy of Richard Tregaskis' 'Guadalcanal Diary.' I'd like to know what in heck's going on here!"

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Remarkable Andrew!

Hollywood, May 19 (INS).—Like Benny's violin and Crosby's nags the "Andy Hardy" movies go on and on. The public dotes on Mickey Rooney's Andy and Lewis Stone's Judge Hardy and hangs breathlessly on every word of their "man to man" talks. Latest chapter of the series, "Andy Hardy's Blonde Trouble," is a continuation of "Andy Hardy's Double Trouble," in which we left him at the gates of Wainwright College. Now we follow him right into the classrooms and dormitories.

MICKEY ROONEY

This newest Hardy opus will have a larger cast than usual and a prominent role falls to Keye Luke. Luke is turning into the series kid, what with his recent addition to the "Dr. Gillespie" adventures. Rooney, by the way, has just finished a camp tour and it wouldn't surprise me if his next jaunt for the Government is overseas.

Laraine Day, who is a young lady who knows her mind, wasn't sure the role of Mrs. Wassell was right for her, although she did want to work for C. B. DeMille. What young actress doesn't want that chance? C. B. likes Laraine so much he made certain changes in the script which she requested and gave her certain concessions on billing. So now the contract borrowing her from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will probably be signed. Gary Cooper told me when I talked with him the other day he goes to Para for the "Wassell" yarn as soon as he finishes "Saratoga Trunk."

"And if I get any time," added Gary, "I will play 'Eddie Rickenbacker,' as you said. I have talked with William Goetz about it."

Remember "One Man's Venus," the Broadway play Marlene Dietrich was so interested in a few months ago? Well Kenny Baker, in New York on a vacation junket with his wife, has signed to do the male lead and the search is on now for a new femme star. Cheryl Crawford, coproducing the play with John Wildberg, is in Hollywood looking for a name. It is important she get the femme star soon, for the play opens on Broadway September 10. I understand the play has been completely rewritten and is now a musical with book by S. J. Perelman and Ogden Nash and music by Kurt Weil.

Myrna Loy is rumored about to take a Government job in Washington to be near her husband, John Hertz, jr.;

No Longer a Military Secret, The Story Can Now Be Told

Hollywood, May 19.—The War Department granted permission this week to RKO-Radio executives to release an interesting bit of military information that has been a carefully guarded secret some four months, to wit:

The men who handled Flying Fortresses and other aircraft in sensational combat flying scenes for the Pat O'Brien-Randolph Scott-Anne Shirley picture, "Bombardier," were 63 members of the famous Nineteenth Bombardment Group, on leave after more than a year of slugging it out with the Japs in the South Pacific area.

It was a military secret because Uncle Sam didn't want the Nips to know that any of his formidable fighting fliers had been withdrawn, even temporarily, from the battle zone. The story can be told now because the 63 heroes are back again at the fighting front.

The Japs would have given considerble to know that these members of the Nineteenth Bombardment Group were no longer in the Pacific. The Nineteenth Bombardiers have raised havoc with Japanese planes, ships and island bases during the last year. Every man who paticiplated in the picture scenes has been decorated at least once for gallantry in action in the Philippiines, Java, New Guinea, off Australia or in the Solomons:

Joined Officer Comrade

All of these seasoned fighters were on furlough at Kirtland Field, near Albuquerque, N. Mex., when the RKO-Radio Co. went there to film "Bombardier." They volunteered their services when they heard that their chief, Gen. Eugene L. Eubank, had been authorized by the War Department to act in the picture, playing himself. Several of the Nineteenth Group Pilots were particularly close to Gen. Eubank at one time, when as air men without planes, they soldiered together on Bataan Peninsula.

General Eubank was evacuated from Bataan to come to Washington and organize the bombardment branch of the Army Air Corps. Lieut. John H. Geer, Lieut. M. E. Moore and several others were also evacuated to serve in Dutch East Indies, New Guinea, Australia and the Solomons. While in the Philippines, Lieutenant Geer flew one of the two remaining P-40 fighter planes. It was he who reported the presence of the Jap cruiser which Naval Lieutenant Bulkley sank with his tiny motor torpedo boat, as recorded in the book, "They Were Expendable."

Others of the Nineteenth Bombardment Group who flew for various scenes of "Bombardier" were Capt. K. D. Caspar, Lieuts. R. M. Stewart, H. E. Perry, Walter Nyblade, Robert Rankin, G. A. Walters, Edward Morgan, M. E. Moore, H. L. Collins, M. L. Johnson, E. E. Greeson, F. P. Lanier and E. D. Brown. Two much-decorated bombardiers, Sergts. Richard Olson and C. R. Payne, also were in the group making the movie shots.

Suggested by High Command

The interest taken by General Eubank and his men in "Bombardier" stems back to the fact that this picture and four others were actually suggested to movie makers by the War Department. Lieut. Col. W. Mason Wright, chief of the film division, War Department Bureau of Public Relations, made a personal trip to Hollywood to urge that these pictures be filmed—the basic idea being to celebrate via big entertainment movies, certain things the Government felt should be brought to the attention of the public.

The four other Government-suggested films, Lieutenant Colonel Wright stated, are "Air Force," "The WAFS," "Ferry Command" and "Women in Uniform."

"Air Force" already has been released, and has brought high praise to Director Howard Hawks and Warner Bros. "Women in Uniform" is now in preparation at Metro, and will chronicle the training, daily lives and adventures of members of the United States Navy Women's Reserve, known colloquially as the WAVES. Two of the other pictures also will pay tribute to the part being played by women in the present crisis.

"The WAFS," to be made by Walter Wanger, will be the story of the lassies now in the Women's Air Ferry Service. Of somewhat similar nature, although treating the subject from a different angle, will be "Ferry Command," to be produced by Ted Richmond for Monogram Pictures.

Introduces New Fighting Man

The War Department is particularly interested in "Bombardier," however, because it will bring to the screen for the first time the complete story of America's newest fighting man, the specialist trained to blast the enemy with the aid of the famous Norden secret bomb sight.

"I want you to know about a new kind of American soldier, the most important of all our fighting men today," is part of a speech made by General Eubank as the picture opens.

Like "Air Force," the newer picture takes full advantage of the Government's offer of the use of airfields, planes and men. Unlike its predecessor, which was the story of a single Flying Fortress, "Bombardier" makes clear what a bombardier is, what he does, how he is trained. The story picks them up as they are being sworn in and leaves them as they take part in a spectacular bombing attack on Tokyo. "Bombardier" also comes equipped with two love stories.

In addition to the veteran pilots of the Nineteenth Bombardment Group, more than 500 bombardier cadets at Kirtland Field will be seen in the RKO-Radio picture, studying in the ground school and taking part in dangerous bombing maneuvers.

If "Bombardier," which was almost two years in the making, hits the box-office jackpot, as did "Air Force," its sponsor, Uncle Sam, needn't thank RKO-Radio — the shoe will be on the other foot.

Mrs. Holt, Dead at 100, Lived Through World-Shaking Events

Mrs. Catherine Holt, before whose eyes passed the strangest century in history, died yesterday just two months after her 100th birthday, following a brief illness at a local hospital.

She was born February 15, 1843, in a little town in Germany. In that same year, the United States was warned by Mexico that any steps toward the annexation of Texas would be regarded as an act of war. And by the time that the two countries had gotten around to fighting, several years later, little Catherine Mueller and her family had journeyed to America and moved to Washington.

The Capital of that struggling young Nation then was "unlike any city that ever was seen, straggling out hither and thither, with a small house or two a quarter of a mile from any other, so that in making calls one had to cross ditches and stiles and strike across a field to reach a street."

"Everyone knows that Washington has a Capitol," wrote one disgruntled observer of the period, "but the misfortune is that the Capitol wants a city. There it stands, reminding you of a general without an army, only surrounded and followed by a parcel of ragged little boys, for such is the appearance of the dirty, straggling, ill-built houses which lie at the foot of it."

In 1862 Catherine Mueller married William H. Holt, at a time when Washington was in upheaval because of the War Between the States. Capitol Hill stretched, desolate and dirty, at one end of an uninhabited desert. Forts were on every hilltop and hospitals—actually converted sheds—covered acres in every suburb. Troops came and went constantly and ambulances never ceased rattling up and down the streets.

In the intervening years the Holts had four children—Charles S. Holt, now 80 years old; Charlotte Frizzell, 78; Cahterine H. Hickerson, 73; and William H. Holt, 70. All are still living in Washington. A granddaughter, Mrs. Charles J. Anderson, lives at 5337 Forty-second Street Northwest.

Mrs. Holt managed to be up much of the time in recent years and was the proud guest of honor at her 100th birthday party, February 15.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 9 a. m. at St. Ann's Church, 4400 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Hughes Recovering From Injuries

Las Vegas, Nev., May 19 (AP).—Howard Hughes, wealthy airplane manufacturer and sportsman, was recovering today from head cuts and bruises suffered when his experimental plane crashed on Lake Mead Monday, but had no statement on the cause of the accident.

Killed was William M. Cline, Civil Aeronautics Administration inspector, who went down with plane. Hughes' copilot, Charles W. von Rosenberg, suffered a fractured back. Richard Felt, mechanic, also was hurt, but Gene Blandford, engineer, escaped injury.

Grocer Keeps Cool As Pair Steals $45, But Not by Choice

Morris Oler, proprietor of a grocery store at 2400 Virginia Avenue Northwest, was shut in his ice box Tuesday when he went to fill an order for a bottle of beer from two Negroes.

While one was shutting the door, the other stole $45 from the cash register. Oler was able to kick the door loose in about 15 minutes, but that was about 14 minutes too long.

Statisticians To Meet Tonight

The Washington Statistical Society will meet tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the Hall of Government, George Washington University. Guest speaker will be Col. Leslie E. Somon of Aberdeen (Md.) Proving Grounds who will talk on "Statistical Technique Used in Testing the Quality of Various Types of Ordnance."

Recent developments in quality control will be discussed by W. Edwards Deming, Bureau of Census and Paul J. Norton, jr., War Production Board. F. F. Stephan of the War Manpower Commission will preside.

80,000 College Men To Start Navy Studies

Nearly 80,000 young men between the ages of 17 and 20 years will be assigned to begin active study July 1 under the Navy College training program.

Announcing this yesterday, the Navy said the 80,000 include approximately 16,000 enlisted personnel of the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard and also civilian youth who have not yet actually entered college. All of the remaining 64,000 are college men who will be called from civilian life to active duty with the Navy in order to start the training program.

War Zone Calls McNair Nurse, Here on Leave

By Anne Hagner
Post Staff Writer

"We can't hold her in this country—she's so anxious to get back to the war zone."

That's what Lieut. Col. Bernice Wilbur's superior officers will tell you about the tall, quiet-voiced Army nurse in whose care Lieut. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, chief of the Army Ground Forces, was paced shortly after he was wounded, April 23, by small fragments on the North African front last month. She has just been promoted to her present rank from that of first lieutenant, and hence will be the highest ranking Army nurse in the African theater.

Colonel Wilbur currenty is on her first leave in her native land in almost two years, but she wants only a curtesy look at the home front before returning to her duties as principal chief nurse in the Mediterranean area.

Trained in Boston

A graduate of New England Deaconess Hospital in Boston, Mass., in 1933, Colonel Wilbur first specialized in supervising nurses and in treatments for diabetes. She joined the American Red Cross Harvard Unit in 1941 and remained with it in England until the United States Army took it over in July, 1942.

As a first lieutenant in the nurse corps, she landed in Africa in December, just one month after most of her coworkers waded in with the invasion troops. In England she had gone about her job under extremely difficult conditions—but she found the situation in North Africa far tougher, with dirt and make shifts to combat until supplies began to arrive.

Colonel Wilbur was watching a new evacuation unit being set up in Tunisia when General McNair was wounded. Pressed into service to care for him, she was present when he reached the first stop for treatment given all American soldiers regardless of rank—the first-aid station. There he was given Red Cross blood plasma, tetanus shots, and then was taken to a tent nearby for X-rays.

Followed Routine

General McNair next was sent by ambulance to an evacuation hospital, where he remained three days for an operation to remove the splinters, and finally to a general hospital before returning to the United States on a routine plane flight—"no specials" even for wounded generals in this Army, thanks. And McNair, able to be up and about the second day after his injury, was insistent that nothing extra be done for him.

Do you know this American Victory City?

From Mule Cars . . . to the Industrial Heart of the South

BIRMINGHAM may have been a sleepy Southern town when this photograph was taken on November 19, 1884, at 9th Street and 1st Avenue, North. But, today, this Victory City is surging forward to meet our nation's war needs at a rate of speed unsurpassed in any section of the country.

Its vast steel mills are producing more than 2½ million tons of ingot. Cement production has reached unprecedented heights. Its tinplate mills, among the world's largest, are booming. From its great plants, stream thousands of implements of war—steel barges, shells, lifeboats, and tank cars.

Three hundred miles inland, its mills are now prefabricating 18,000-ton ships, the huge parts of which are moved to yards in single pieces to speed another vessel down to sea.

That's Birmingham, today, one of America's Victory Cities.

Airlines Dividend Voted

American Airlines directors yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend on the $4.25 cumulative convertible preferred stock, payable July 15 to stockholders of record at the close of business July 1.

New Warning

Gain in Newsprint Use Cuts Reserves

New York, May 19 (AP).—Newspaper publishers today were warned to bring consumption of newsprint into balance with production and to check the decline of stock on hand in the current bulletin of the American Newspaper Publishers Association

A 2 per cent increase in consumption during April was reported by the ANPA, which said the "situation would not be so serious if newsprint was being manufactured with stocks growing at the mills, but a casual review of all recent statistics shows that mill stocks generally have been going down, and the same thing has been happening with the stocks in the hands of the publishers."

"More disturbing than anything else," the bulletin said, "is the fact that the stocks of newsprint on hand in newspaper plants dropped to 52 days' supply at the end of April in contrast with 56 days' supply at the end of March, 1943. . . .

"Newspapers seem to be heading for an evil day which will come soon if steps are not taken immediately to bring consumption into balance with production."

A. T. & T. Votes Usual Dividend

New York, May 19 (AP).—Directors of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share on the common stock today, continuing the rate which has been in effect since 1922.

Over 600,000 stockholders will receive approximately 42 million dollars when the payment is made July 15 to holders of record June 15.

Oil Supplies In East Show Slight Upturn

By the Associated Press

New York, May 19.—A slight improvement in East Coast supplies of civilian petroleum products, the first in several weeks, was reported today by the American Petroleum Institute.

The institute's index of Eastern stocks, which is adjusted to the normal seasonal fluctuation of supplies, rose to 27.1 per cent of normal in the week ended May 15 from the record low level of 25.5 per cent a week earlier.

For the Nation as a whole, gasoline stocks dropped 1,216,000 barrels and heavy fuel oil supplies were off 266,000 barrels, although there were 228,000 more barrels of light heating oil on hand. The total at the end of the week were gasoline, 86,950,000 barrels, light oils, 31,891,000, and heavy oils, 67,-311,000.

Crude oil production averaged 3,984,300 barrels daily, a drop of 36,200 barrels from the previous week, and compared with 3,483,900 a year ago.

Refinery operations at 78.1 per cent of capacity indicated refineries used 3,768,000 barrels of crude daily, a rise from the previous week's 77.8 per cent and 3,775,000 barrels.

Heavy fuel oil output was estimated at 7,760,000 barrels against 7,853,000 the previous week; light oil 3,797,000 barrels against 3,795,-000, and gasoline, 10,506,000 against 10,581,000.

Woolworth Sales Reach Record $423,220,598

Watertown, N. Y., May 19 (AP).—F. W. Woolworth Co. sales for 1942, reported at the annual stockholders meeting today, were a record $423,220,598.73, compared with 1941 sales of $377,148,059.27.

Last year's net income was $23,-538,739.01, equivalent to $2.43 per share.

E. C. Mauchly, vice president, reported sales for the first four months of 1943 were $130,822,721, an increase of $11,609,599 or 9.4 per cent over the comparative period in 1942. Stores in operation at the close of the year numbered 2015—1862 in the United States, 145 in Canada, and 8 in Cuba.

Eight directors, representing one-third of the board, were elected for three-year terms. They were Floyd R. Cole, Harrison; Seymour H. Knox, Buffalo; Mrs. Jessie Woolworth Donahue, New York; Philip Lehman, New York; Martin A. Schenck, Chappaqua; William L. Stephenson, London, England; Harry E. Ward, New York, and Charles W. Woolworth, Scranton, Pa.

Triplett's Homer Beats Dodgers for Cards, 3-2

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Take it from a man who played pro football with the Green Bay Packers and is now a Congressman from Wisconsin, sports, instead of being curtailed for the war's duration, should be encouraged on a wider scale.

POVICH

That was the topic of the speech on the floor of the House by Representative LaVern Dilweg the other day. Mr. Dilweg is no green pea concerning athletics. He was an All-American end at Marquette University and his post-graduate football course with the Packers was cum laude.

Congressman Dilweg cites a dozen reasons why the Nation should shy from any curb on sports, both spectator and competitive sports. He overlooked, though, a handy argument that he could have used to point out the efficacy of sports for a nation at war.

Germany discovered the usefulness of sports in the building of a war machine long before the United States became hep to the idea. Athletics in Germany weren't much before Hitler came to power. Mass calisthenics and tumbling of the turnverein clubs was their idea of a sports program until Hitler, with the war in mind, turned on the heat.

The Nazis junked their stooping and squatting in underclothes for the more virile forms of American sports. They imported American coaches to teach the Nazi youth how to run, throw javelins, box and play basketball. They made a big to-do about the Olympics in 1936. Hitler was hardening his people for the rigors of the war he was contemplating. He knew the value of a rugged sports program.

President Roosevelt has been reluctant to see the Nation's sports program curbed. He acknowledged the need for athletics when he bestowed his blessings on the continuation of baseball. Within the past week, he has stated that he has in mind a three-man commission to survey sports conditions and take action to guard against abrupt curtailment.

The important item in naming a commission would be, of course, to delegate the duties to men with an understanding of what goes on in sports. Reports that Senator James Mead of New York would be one of the members, is enough to alarm sports-minded people. Senator Mead was the gentleman who last fall suggested that the World Series and the major league All-Star games be canceled.

Senator Mead was far out of bounds with that idea. The World Series and the All-Star game were model wartime sports affairs. The bulk of the receipts went to war agencies, and the two spectacles posed no transportation problem whatsoever inasmuch as they drew their crowds from the cities in which the games are played.

The newest name to enter the lists for appointment to the President's sports commission is that of Theodore (Teddy) Hayes. That would seem to be a logical choice. Hayes is the enterprising vice-president of the Thompson Machine Gun Co. He has been around in sports circles, always as a big leaguer. Hayes isn't a Senator, but he has vision, and he is popular.

Ted Williams, the Red Sox slugger, is in the Navy, interrupting a batting career that promised to land him among the all-time great hitters of the major leagues. Only lately has it been revealed how high Williams rates among the great batters of baseball.

Ty Cobb and Rogers Hornsby are the only baseball figures who can show a higher lifetime average than the .356 Williams compiled in his four years in the majors. Cobb retired with a .367 mark and Hornsby finished up with .358. Joe Jackson's .356 is tied by Williams' figure.

Williams still has to prove that he can go the route as a great hitter, because four years is not considered a long span as great hitters are reckoned. But his first four-year average compares favorably with the figures compiled by the greats in their first four seasons.

Willie Keeler, who ended up with a .345 average for his career, got a running start when he averaged .396 for his first four seasons. Over the same span, Joe Jackson hit .3281. Al Simmons broke in with more of a hitting splurge than any of the so-called modern greats, not excluding Williams. Simmons whaled away at a .357 rate in his first four seasons.

Hornsby, whose lifetime batting average of .358 was second only to Cobb's, was no meteoric success at the outset. He hit only .311 in his first four campaigns. But he finished up at a tremendous gait to turn in his .358 figure. Harry Heilmann, though, had to turn on the heat in even greater style to finish up as a .342 hitter. In his first four seasons, he hit only .298.

Nats to Face Old Jinx In Bond Game Monday

Ex-Red Sox Hurler Who Beat Washington Six Out of Seven Times Named as Starter

Charley Wagner, who as a big leaguer was "poison" to the Nats, will be on the mound for the Norfolk Naval Training Station team against Washington at Griffith Stadium on Monday night in The Post's War Bond game, it was announced yesterday.

In announcing Wagner as their pitching choice, Coach Gary Dobie of Norfolk was choosing a man who held a powerful mastery over the Nats when he was pitching for the Boston Red Sox before joining the Navy.

The right-handed Wagner went to the mound for the Red Sox against the Nats five times during the 1941 season and beat Washington on all five occasions. He broke even in two starts against the Nats last season, bringing his record to six victories in seven games against Washington over a two-year span.

Wagner is the No. 1 hurler of the crack Norfolk Sailor team, replacing Freddie Hutchinson in that role. Hutchinson has been troubled by a sore arm.

On Monday night, Wagner will be surrounded by a notable cast of former big leaguers in his attempt to extend his spell against the Washington club. Phil Rizzuto of the Yankees will be at shortstop for the Sailors, Benny McCoy of the Athletics will be at second base, and Dom DiMaggio of the Red Sox and Don Padgett of the Cardinals will be in the Norfolk outfield.

Wagner has been beaten only once in six starts for the Sailors this season, and on that occasion the winning pitcher was former Dodger Hugh Casey, who hurled a no-hit, no-run game.

With the Red Sox last season, Wagner was a winning pitcher, registering 14 victories against 11 defeats. He was particularly effective against the Detroit Tigers, beating the team five times in succession without a defeat.

Wagner has a seaman's rating at the Norfolk Naval Training Station. In the major leagues, he was known familiarly as "Broadway Charlie" Wagner because of his taste for fancy clothes, and his wardrobe once contained 22 suits.

At the Norfolk Naval Station, it is quipped that "Wagner is the only sailor who ever looked well dressed in dungarees."

When the Nats take the field against the Norfolk club on Monday night, it will mark the end of a 15-day baseball famine at Griffith Stadium. It will be Washington's first appearance following the current road trip.

Manager Ossie Bluege has made no selection of his pitcher for the game, but Owner Clark Griffith yesterday declared that "we can't start any second stringer and hope to win."

Nats, Browns Again Halted By Weather

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Post Staff Writer

St. Louis, May 19.—The Nats and Browns, who were scheduled to open a four-game series here Monday, are looking forward to next Wednesday night's game in Washington when they hope to get together for the first time this season.

For the third straight day the clubs were weathered out today, this time missing a double-header, and although a twin bill is scheduled here tomorrow the Nats don't believe it and have made tentative plans to take an early afternoon train for Chicago, where they open a weekend series with a night game on Friday—they hope.

Should the clubs be able to play tomorrow, which is almost too much to expect, it will be Dutch Leonard and Ewald Pyle against Denny Galehouse and Steve Sundra of the Browns.

Doubleheaders Pileup

The Nats and Browns are compiling a list of doubleheaders which will burden both pitching staffs in the stretch drive. None of the games can be made up on the next trip here as the clubs play Saturday night and two on Sunday. The games will have to be played on the third and last trip in August when a four-game series includes a Sunday doubleheader, a night game, and afternoon game and an open date.

Manager Ossie Bluege was disguested as he watched the Nats hold tight to their lobby chairs. The Nats were playing the best ball of any club in the league on the current western stand through Sunday's double-header and Bluege is afraid the layoff will take the edge off, plus causing a set-back in the condition of the club.

The Browns are three players over the 25-player limit which must be in vogue tomorrow night but the Nats are not believed interested in any of the three the Brownies must release.

Will Have Hurling Problem

It is no secret that the Nats are in the market for an infielder but Mark Christman and Floyd Baker, the Browns' utility shortstops, have taken on new importance to manager Luke Sewell with Vernon Stephens out for an indefinite period. Stephens injury was declared to be a serious sprain, not a break, today but even so he will be out for 10 days or two weeks, at best.

If the Nats play tomorrow, Bluege will have a pitching problem in the series with the White Sox. Leonard and Pyle will not be available, which means Jim Mertz, Early Wynn, Alex Carrasquel and Milo Candini will all see starting roles. If tomorrow's card is washed out, the Nats will have the big four ready for Chicago.

Champs Take 2-to-1 Lead Over Flock

Brecheen Again Relieves to Halt Flock as Lanier Wilts in Sixth

By Whitney Martin,

Associated Press Sports Writer

Brooklyn, May 19.—The St. Louis Cardinals took a two-to-one lead in their four-game series with Brooklyn today by southpawing the Dodgers into submission for the second straight day, 3 to 2, with Coaker Triplett's round trip wallop into the left-field stands with one on in the sixth providing the victory punch.

Figuring that left must be right, because of the success of the Card southpaws yesterday, Dodger Skipper Leo Durocher started a left hander of his own, Max Macon, to oppose Portsider Max Lanier. Macon didn't do so badly in the seven innings he worked before being removed for a pinch hitter, his major mistake being grooving one for Triplett.

Lanier Also Fails

Lanier also failed to finish. He was yanked when he obviously was fading in the seventh. He threw six straight balls to start that frame, and the next pitch went for a sharp single. He came out pronto, and Lefty Harry Brecheen, who put out the blaze yesterday, came in and repeated with three no-hit innings.

The Cards got a run in the first when Harry Walker singled and went all the way home on Walker Cooper's single off the right-field fence. They picked up their other two when Triplett hit his homer with Cooper, who had walked, riding ahead of him.

The Dodgers, although they threatened in the fourth and fifth, couldn't cash in until the sixth. Stan Bordagaray singled to start that inning, went to second when Arky Vaughan walked, and scored on Joe Medwick's single.

Owen Scores on Long Fly

They chipped out their other run in the seventh, with Mickey Owen walking, going to third on Pinchhitter Johnny Cooney's single to right, and scoring on Pinchhitter Dee Moore's long fly ball.

The attendance was 7569 paid.

They'll be rooting for the Norfolk Sailors in the battle against the Nats at Griffith Stadium Monday night.

Braves Beat Bucs Twice, 2-1 and 5-3

By International News Service

Boston, May 19.—The fast-traveling Boston Braves took both ends of a double-header from the Pittsburg Pirates this afternoon, 2 to 1 in 11 innings and 5 to 3 over regulation distance.

The wins were the sixth and seventh in a row for the Warriors.

Nate Andrews triumphed in a tight pitching duel with Xavier Rescigno in the opener, when Johnny McCarthy singled for his fourth hit, stole second and was rescued by a Whitey Wietelmann single with two gone in the second overtime stanza.

The Warriors hopped into a three-run lead at the expense of "Hank" Gornicki in the first inning of the second game.

and Queen Elizabeth at the White House.

She has been with her present radio sponsor, General Foods Corps, since 1937, signing a three-year, noncancelable contract with options thereafter to run indefinitely.

With her acceptance of a place on the baseball show, the war bond game thus presents both the top female and male stars of radio. Bing Crosby previously accepted an invitation to sing at home plate on the Monday night program.

Bond sales continued at a brisk rate yesterday in all Washington banks and postoffices which are distribution points for the game tickets

Admission to the game is limited to bond buyers, with each purchaser of a bond entitled to receive tickets to the contest. There is no further charge.

Thousands of choice tickets are still available to bond buyers. These include the $50 reserved grandstand seats and the $100 box seats. The supply of $200 box seats has been exhausted. Box seats of the $1000 value are still on sale, however.

Persons receiving exchange tickets along with their bonds may turn them in to the Griffith Stadium box offices any time during the day for reserved seats to the game.

Still available, also, are the $25 reserved seats in the pavilions and bleachers.

Braves Release 'Lefty' Gomez To Cut Roster

By the Associated Press

Boston, May 19.—The unconditional release of Vernon (Lefty) Gomez by the Boston Braves tonight reduced the roster to 26 players, one above tomorrow's major league deadline.

GOMEZ

The 32-year-old southpaw was signed by President Bob Quinn last winter after the New York Yankees, for whom he had won 189 games in 13 seasons, cut him adrift.

Although realizing that Gomez would not be effective until hot weather set in, Quinn thought the colorful veteran would be ideal pitching insurance for his club. Now, however, the Braves' pitching staff appears exceptionally strong.

As a Brave, Gomez saw very little service. He did work a few innings during a spring practice game but has been a bench-warmer since the regular season started. During his brief stay with the Braves, Gomez has been regarded as an effective morale builder on a previously consistent seventh-place club that now is battling the Brooklyn Dodgers for the National League lead.

Many of the Braves, pitchers especially, credit their surprising improvement to Gomez' advice and encouragement. Recently one of them remarked that "Gomez has done more to rid the Braves of their defeatist complexes than a dozen wins over the Dodgers."

In announcing Gomez's release, Secretary John Quinn said that the pitcher was at liberty to make his own deal with any other major league club.

Blair Golfers Beat Roosevelt, 4 to 2

Montgomery Blair linksmen yesterday defeated Roosevelt, 4 to 2. Bill McDaniel, Blair No. 2 man, remained undefeated for the season by tripping Jack Racca, 8 and 7.

The results:

Phippeny (B) defeated Abrams, 5 and 4; McDaniel (B) defeated Racca, 8 and 7. Best ball—Blair, 6 and 5.

Solomon (B) defeated Goldblatt, 3 and 2; Diamond (R) defeated Flaherty, 1 up. Best ball—Roosevelt, 3 up.

How to Purchase Tickets To Post's War Bond Game

Here is the formula for obtaining tickets to The Post's War Bond Game between the crack Norfolk Naval Training Station team and the Nats at Griffith Stadium on the night of May 24.

1—Buy a war bond at any of the District of Columbia banks or their branches and United States Postoffices.

2—Ask for a ticket to the War Bond Game along with your purchase.

3—Take your exchange ticket to the boxoffice at Griffith Stadium on any day between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. and receive a seat to the game.

Tickets will be issued for all value bonds from $25 to $1000. One ticket will be given for each bond purchased, with a limit set at four.

Try Flying Easy Winner in Charles Town Feature Event

5-Year-Old Scores by 2½ Lengths

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Charles Town, W. Va., May 19.—Try Flying, carrying the colors of Mrs. Arthur Bevan, began where he left off last year by winning today's feature event. The 5-year-old son of Flying Heels, sprint champion hereabouts in 1942, showed his heels to seven others in a speedy dash over the abbreviated sprint course of about 4½ furlongs.

With Jockey Jack Richard doing the riding, Try Flying came to the finish line 2½ lengths in advance of Mrs. G. O. Russell's Weatherite and an additional 2 lengths in front of G. T. Strother's Twotimer.

Try Flying, winner of 11 of 22 starts last year, was recently shipped here and drew a legion of backers, being installed the favorite and paying $5.20. The gelding was clocked in 0:49 4-5, the fraction over the track record held by Irene's Bob.

Jockey Richard had Try Flying off in the first flight and the 5-year-old soon established a brief lead. Marandan and Flying Kilts were closest, while Weatherite had been shuffled back leaving the gate. Approaching the stretch, Try Flying shook off his closest rivals, Richard looked back and was easing his mount at the end. Weatherite saved much ground entering the stretch and withstood a long drive to take the place from Twotimer.

The Washington colors of Mrs. E. D. Sowers were successful in two or three tries during the day. Her Dividend won the first race as a $3.40 favorite and Discretion took the fourth event at $3.20. Her Palgean was third in the fifth race.

Those in the crowd who coupled Dividend with A Charles Biscotti's Cleaning Time, $7.20 winner of the second, collected $12.80 in the daily double.

decisions from him in the two preceding seasons.

Today he walked a man in the first and Ott, bent on redeeming the eror he made to lose yesterday's 10-inning tussle, slammed his fourth home run of the spring into the upper right-field stands. Vandy allowed only one other hit in four innings, but was removed for a pinch-hitter in the fifth and charged with his third defeat.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

Col. John F. Wall, one of the stewards here and an authority on horses, advocates the payment of a bonus to the breeders of winners foaled in Virginia or West Virginia. This would stimulate breeding in this section. I second the motion. Territory in the vicinity of this track is tops for breeding and raising horses and it doesn't have to bow to Kentucky either. Unknown to many, blue grass abounds hereabouts. Jockey Joe Datillo is heading this way and intends to take mounts later in the week. John Zonni is the crack Stevens chef in the clubhouse. Jockey Vince Bracciale has been set down for five days for cutting across too sharply leaving the gate. Mrs. M. B. Goss, who owns All Whims, is recuperating from an illness in the Montague Hall Nursing Home near Winchester. The track crew put a nice cushion on the running surface and the oval was in tiptop shape as yesterday's card opened. They were selling potatoes 6 pounds to the customer on the main drag here yesterday morning. Up to this point it has been easier to get a winner here than an order of French fries. Trainer E. K. Auld has taken over the veteran plater Officiate. The Washington conditioner has always done well hereabouts. Jockey George (Pappy) Witmer is suffering from bruises and scratches. He was not thrown by a horse but crashed when the front tire on Jockey Buddy Root's motorbike blew out. Now for the winners. See you on the rail.—BILL.

First race—BUGLER has plenty early foot and may take the lead from these. NOM DE PLUME was a winner at first asking here and will go well. STOLEN SWEETS for show.

Second race—TRIPLE SUN has had trouble in two efforts here and can win it with an equal break in luck. PICKWICK ARMS may surprise. TOMMY ATKINS could be close with this field.

Third race—STADIUM is from a good stable and should lead all the way. RARE has been going real well and is the threat. PAVILION is a longshot possibility.

Fourth race—HAPPY HANNAH was a good winner at this distance last out and may make it two in a row. OOMPH has early foot and will be a factor. CHAT HOPKINS is at top form.

Fifth race—SOME GROUCHER appears best in this field of cheap routers and I'm stringing along. SUMMER STOCK should be in front early. SURE MISS is the likely favorite.

Sixth race—HARDY BUD had a conditioner on the Maryland track and may take this affair at a fair price. SUNSET BOY has been racing well and should furnish contention. MAE CASE for the show.

Seventh race—THESPIAN led throughout to score at Pimlico and I see no reason to look beyond this one for the winner. CELTIC KNIGHT has won two here and could score again. ROUGH AMOS for a share if able to get postward.

Eighth race—CORNELIA JANE lost a photo decision last out and should profit by that outing. NICK and SILVER BEAM should fight it out behind the top one.

Best bet—SOME GROUCHER.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DIVIDEND, $3.40, $2.20, $2.60; SWEET ZACA, $2.20, $2.40; MASS FORMATION, $5.00.

DIVIDEND went to front at once, saved ground while accompanied by SWEET ZACA and drew out easily in stretch run. SWEET ZACA was hard ridden and had no excuses. MASS FORMATION closed willingly. GALWAY was not a serious factor.

SECOND RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 1:49. Off at 1:50. Winner, A. Charles Biscotti's b. m. (7) by Grand Time—Cleanser. Trained by P. Poluch. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:26⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLEANING TIME, $7.20, $3.40, $2.60; CUREAGAL, $3.20, $3.00; SINGING STEEL, $13.80.

CLEANING TIME went to front at once, saved ground and held sway through stretch under strong handling. CUREAGAL was in first flight from start, but lugged in through stretch drive and Richard was unable to do her justice. SINGING STEEL closed full of run.

Daily Double, DIVIDEND and CLEANING TIME, Paid $12.80

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 2:20. Off at 2:22½. Winner, B. S. Campbell's ch. f. (3) by Kerry Patch—Block Party. Trained by H. S. Clark. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:16.

†Pulled up.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FIRST GIRL, $25.40, $6.60, $4.40; BRIGHT 'N' HAPPY, $3.00, $2.60; CAPTAIN BOB, $3.80.

FIRST GIRL raced closest to pace of BRIGHT 'N' HAPPY, took command when asked, drew out and won with speed in reserve. BRIGHT 'N' HAPPY set early pace and closed willingly, but was no match for winner. CAPTAIN BOB was not a serious factor. AMPLIFY saved ground and had no excuses. SEA CUSTOMER and MISSY MARY were outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 2:47. Off at 2:50½. Winner, Mrs. E. D. Sowers' b. g. (5) by Hadagal—Firth. Trained by Claude Feltner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:16⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DISCRETION, $3.20, $2.80, $2.80; TRUE WARRIOR, $5.80, $5.00; CHARMFUL, $6.40.

DISCRETION saved ground while setting pace, withstood challenge from TRUE WARRIOR and drew out in stretch run to win with speed in reserve. TRUE WARRIOR was closest to pace from start, made bid and was tiring at close. CHARMFUL was hard ridden and closed with good energy. NEON LIGHT saved ground and raced evenly.

FIFTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:17. Off at 3:19½. Winner, J. Costello's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS ADDIE, $4.40, $3.20, $2.40; SOME WHERE, $7.80, $3.60; PALGENE, $4.00.

MISS ADDIE, first away, set good pace, shook off SOME WHERE and closed under drive. SOME WHERE was in first flight from start, came to outside of MISS ADDIE, moved up menacingly and closed with good energy. PALGENE was a beaten-off third.

SIXTH RACE—About 4½ furlongs. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:47. Off at 3:49½. Winner, Mrs. A. Beavan's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRY FLYING, $5.20, $3.20, $2.80; WEATHERITE, $5.00, $3.20; TWOTIMER, $3.00.

TRY FLYING forged to front in opening furlong, disposed of MARANDAN to draw out and won with speed in reserve. WEATHERITE, pinched back leaving gate, saved much ground entering stretch and closed boldly. TWOTIMER was well placed from start and closed with good energy.

SEVENTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:16. Off at 4:17. Winner, L. E. Torreyson's ch. c. KNIGHT'S DUCHESS took command in opening furlong, was never extended and won with speed in reserve. SAL'S SISTER lacked early speed, worked way to contention on outside and was second best. MOLASSES MIBS was off poorly, moved up boldly and then weakened. ALLEN CAID was not a serious factor.

N. K. Beal, Veteran Trainer, 63, Dies Of Heart Stroke

Charles Town, W. Va., May 19.—N. K. Beal, 63, veteran owner and trainer for the past 40 years, died here today, a heart attack victim, after watching his charge, Miss Addie, owned by R. J. Costello of Washington, win the fifth race.

Beal keeled over as Miss Addie crossed the finish line. He died a few hours later at Charles Town Hospital. His last important job was with the William Elder Stable of Baltimore several years ago.

Central High Even Choice In Track Meet

Central High, which tied with Woodberry Forest for first place in the annual "C" Club meet last Saturday, is rated no better than an even choice to win the interhigh track championship, which gets under way this afternoon on the Vikings' cinders at 3:45 o'clock. The meet is a two-day affair, with the trials and semifinals being run today and the finals tomorrow at the same time.

Although the Vikings were seven points better than their nearest public high school competitor last Saturday, plenty of opposition is expected from Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson and Tech, defending champion. Roosevelt has been installed as a cofavorite with Central.

The Vikings have lost two men, Bob High, winner of the "C" Club pole vault, and Bill Wright, high jumper. Both are over the 18-year old age limit. Eddie Crandall, Central's sophmore sensation, will be favored to take the high jump, as he is the only boy in this area to clear the bar at 6 feet this season. George Simons is a threat in both the quarter and half-mile runs as is Jim Browne in the pole vault.

Coach Artie Boyd at Roosevelt will be banking heavily on four boys, namely, Don Swann, Perry Varoutsos, Mario Salvanelli, and Roy Butrum.

Capt. Buddy Brewton, one of the city's most talented tracksters, will lead Wilson. Brewton interhigh and broad jump champ, will enter these events and the 100. Coach Joe Carlo has several other boys who will be heard from during the course of the two-day meet. Among them are: Cliff Dodson, miler; Leonard Butt, in the half; Bob Crowell and Phil Funk, both in the weight events and the sprints; and Eddie Beck, little quarter man.

Tech is not given as much chance to win as the three previous schools, but they must be considered on the strength of dual and triangular meet records.

Callura Family Worthy Rival For Fighting Hanbury Clan

The fighting Hanburys of Washington may be quite all right in their own way, but they're still a few steps short of the clouting Calluras of Hamilton, Ontario.

Jackie Callura, N. B. A. featherweight champion, said so yesterday as he terminated hard preparation for tomorrow night's scheduled 10-round boxing feature with 19-year-old Lew Hanbury, jr., Navy Yard machinist and popular local lightweight.

JACKIE CALLURA

Lew Hanbury, jr., jointly directed by his father, Lew Hanbury, sr., and his long time friend, Lou Jamison, has three warring brothers in Jimmy, 8, 55 pounds; Mack, 12, 70 pounds, and Ray, 16, 115 pounds, all of whom box for Merrick Boys Club and who have won junior Golden Gloves titles.

Lew Hanbury, sr., their father, was a fine lightweight between 1907-1919, winning over 90 bouts in 104, many of them on knockout. He served several hitches in the Navy, and was never knocked off his feet.

Callura yesterday was visibly impressed by tales of the fighting Hanburys, but came right back with some family history of his own.

"My dad was a good fighter himself in his day," he said, "and I have five brothers who had rather fight than eat. One of the best of us is Johnny Callura, 20, and a bantamweight, who's in the Canadian Army.

"There are five of us still active, however. Probably the most promising of the bunch is Jimmy, 16, a flyweight and still an amateur. But there are Angelo, 23, a featherweight; Joey, 27, a lightweight, and Charley, 29, a junior welterweight."

The Calluras, Jackie says, have appeared on the same card several times, and not only are good boxers, but excellent athletes. They play baseball, swim, Canadian football and bowl with the best.

Both Callura and Hanbury concluded hard training at Uline Arena yesterday, and are to take it relatively easy today while awaiting tomorrow's weighing-in ceremonies.

Rivaling the main event in interest will be an eagerly awaited eight-round return meeting of Frankie Wills, Polished local middleweight, and J. R. Lewis, Denver Negro who upset Wills here only last week.

In a special six rounder Joe Agesto, Puerto Rican welterweight boxing out of New York, engages Lee Rosan, Baltimore, while Joe Jeannette, Merrick Boys Club 115-pounder who turns professional on this show, faces Willie Nelson, of Baltimore. An opening four rounder awaits announcement.

Angel Pins 7-Foot Ivan In Zoo Night

Approximately 800 vociferous wrestling addicts received the equivalent of their annual trip to the zoo last night through the process of watching the French Angel (the only copyrighted rassle cherub) win a flukey match from 7-foot Ivan Talun after 16 minutes of the feature wrestling match at Turner's Arena.

The decision appeared to the fans to be more than slightly off-color, for they thought Referee Tiny Bouque had counted too fast, and that the gigantic Pole was out of bounds at the time of the pinning.

Before the end came not much wrestling was displayed by either gentleman, but the crowd was too engrossed with their appearance to notice.

Babe Sharkey pinned Tom Mahoney after 18 minutes of the semifinal with a headlock and body press. This was a grudge affair as the lads were tossed out last week for gross misconduct, and was very much tamer than the original battle.

Johnny (Tripod) Long and villainous Dick Lever worked to a rough draw in a half-hour battle which featured some very choice slugging. Lever pinned Long after 11 minutes, but no count was given for Dick had mistreated the popular Long horribly just before flooring him.

Abe Yourist triumphed over the hooded Red Czar in another grudge affair, the Mystery Man being disqualified after 15 minutes for carrying concealed weapons.

Eddie King defeated Tom George with a body press after 21 minutes of a rough opener.

Daniels to Meet Charlie Bennett in Turner Semifinal

An eight-round semiwindup between Sammy Daniels, Baltimore lightweight, and Charlie Bennett, Washington scrapper, was closed out yesterday in support of next Tuesday night's boxing show at Turner's Arena.

Featured in a 10-round match for the District lightweight championship, which has the sanction of the District Boxing Commission, Stoney Lewis, local Negro with 18 victories in 21 pro battles, and John Garner, also of Washington, who has nine straight pro triumphs to his credit.

Daniels, who needs little introduction, has been campaigning in the Middle Atlantic States.

Wilson Golfers Win Over Coolidge, 5-4

Woodrow Wilson Golf Team won its second straight match, taking the measure of Calvin Coolidge linksmen, 5-4, at Indian Spring yesterday. The match was deadlocked at 3-all, with the third foursome still out. Both the Tigers and Colts won a point but Wilson took the match with the best ball.

Black (C) defeated Kay, 3 and 2; Manders (W) won by default. Best ball—Wilson, 2 and 1.

Kush (C) defeated Keyser, 6 and 4; McDowell (C) defeated Appelby, 1 up, 20 holes. Best ball—Wilson, 1 up, 20 holes.

Weisburg (C) defeated Warmack, 4 and 3; Bundy (W) defeated Bevineau, 7 and 6. Best ball—Wilson, 1 up, 20 holes.

Central Beats Western in Second Game

Central High yesterday was extended 11-innings before it defeated Western, 12-10, on the Raiders' diamond, in the replay of the forfeited game of last week. In the first tilt Central also emerged victorious in extra innings, and yesterday's encounter was almost an exact game. By virture of this victory, the Vikings moved into fifth place, only a half-game behind Roosevelt.

A two-run rally in the first half of the ninth knotted the count for the Vikings who pushed over three markers to win in the eleventh. In both frames Joe Tucker started it off with mighty home runs. After Tucker's round trip in the eleventh, Pete Chiporous, John Fletcher and Dick Jamison got singles, and Jack McHale and Julio Ofano walked to account for the other two scores.

stuffs back to the levels prevailing during May, 1942, and to keep prices at that level through the use of limited Government subsidies to farmers and distributors, "if necessary."

Since wages "have been tied to the cost of living prevailing May, 1942," the council declared its insistence upon that date as the point to which food prices should be returned.

The B. L. S. report showed the retail prices of all foods advanced 2.8 per cent during the February 15-March 15 period, and noted an increase of 1.1 per cent in the cost of clothing for the month.

Rents varied "very little in most areas, and on the average have remained unchanged since December," the agency said. Housefurnishings went up .30 per cent and fuels, electricity and ice .20 per cent.

The March index was delayed because it included statistics on seven additional foods made important by wartime rationing and the "weighting" of many items was changed to reflect wartime trends. The April index is due out in about 10 days, B. L. S. said.

The level of living costs in the country on March 15 came up to 122.8 per cent of the 1935-39 average, was 5.9 per cent above that for May, 1942, and 21.7 per cent above that for January, 1941.

Price Administrator Prentiss Brown has announced his intentions to squeeze approximately 2 per cent from the cost of living index by the means of subsidies and rollbacks. The first important rollback is due June 1 when retail prices of meat will be cut 10 per cent.

Although official estimates of the amount of subsidy required to take 2 per cent off the cost of living have not been forthcoming, unofficial estimates have placed it anywhere from one-half to several billions of dollars.

Subsidizing would be a two-front proposition, as now planned, the RFC financing it at processor levels and the Commodity Credit Corporation at farm levels.

Better Poultry 'Tone'

The Office of Price Administration yesterday noted a "distinctly better tone in poultry prices" as a result of numerous court actions against violators of price ceilings.

Poultry ceilings extend to farm levels and some of the actions have been taken against farmers, OPA said.

As a class, farmers have been exempt from most OPA regulations and felt safe in accepting high prices from black marketeers.

electric project in northeastern Oklahoma, commented: "The greatest flood of all known records is pouring into the reservoir."

The reservoir was brimful as workmen stood by for orders to throw open all flood gates on the dam and send a destructive torrent hurtling down the Arkansas Valley. Wright urged thousands to start evacuating.

An unprecedented rush of water descended upon the tri-State mining region of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma, and approximately 50 lead and zinc mines were closed.

Troops, police and volunteers sandbagged levees at Peru, Terre Haute, Vincennes, Anderson and other points along the Wabash and White Rivers and their tributaries in Indiana, where the Red Cross estimated more than 10,000 persons were homeless in 20 counties.

Wabash dikes burst at Clinton Taylorville, Prairieton and West Terre Haute. Ravenswood, suburb of Indianapolis, was under seven feet of water. Three hundred military police were sent to Peru, 400 to Terre Haute, 200 to Washington.

Two companies of Engineer troops from Camp Atterbury, Md., were ordered to Vincennes to bolster the levee. A detachment of engineer soldiers, with several doctors and medical corps men, was sent from Camp Ellis, Ill., to assist in patroling and building up the sea wall at Beardstown, Ill.

Roy Wingate, director of the Red Cross disaster relief headquarters at St. Louis, reported 10,000 persons were homeless in Illinois.

Five hundred soldiers, 100 officers and 100 civilians watched levees and prepared sandbags in the vicinity of Granite City, Ill.

Families Taken Out

One hundred families were evacuated from the Peoria (Ill.) environs, where the Illinois River rose more than a foot beyond flood stage. A dike there sprung a leak and the caterpillar tractor company put 20 men to work to dam the flow. Switch engines rolled through water at another war plant.

The Beardstown, Ill., city council ordered the main bridge over the swollen Illinois River closed, and brought in 30,000 sandbags to build a 3-foot barricade atop the levee. The Sangamon River swept over the main level of Chandlerville and sluiced into three blocks of the residential district. Families were moved from flooded homes in Carmi. Rescue barges were rushed to New Haven.

The Osage River, overtaxed to the point where it backed up, threatened a hydro-electric plant at Bagnell, Mo. Army engineers, and Coast Guardsmen sandbagged a mile of the Missouri River front at St. Charles, Mo.

Thousands of acres of rich crop land in southeastern Kansas were under water, and rail and highway travel was paralyzed. The Spring River, highest since 1872 at Baxter Springs, Kans., flooded out big hydro-electric works at Lowell and Riverton.

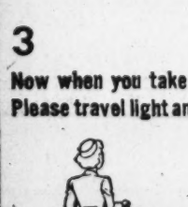
If week-end jams you'd help unravel—Then pick a mid-week day to travel



Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays are the best wartime travel-times—and you'll leave more seats for the armed forces on week-ends.

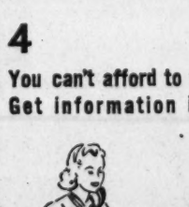
Don't wait until mid-summer's here—Go now before the crowds appear



You'll help "balance-up" wartime transportation by going before or after July and August when travel is always heaviest.

Now when you take a trip some place Please travel light and save some space

"Budget" your baggage when you travel nowadays—take along less luggage than usual, to save extra handling and extra space.

Food Chief's Probers Investigating FSA

Food Czar Chester Davis has his own committee investigating the embattled Farm Security Administration. The committee is made up of Dr. J. D. Black of Harvard, and Farm Magazine Publishers Clarence Poe of Raleigh, and Paul Sanders of Richmond. Davis has brought Elmer Starch, Bureau of Agricultural Economics official, here from Lincoln, Nebr., to assist the committee. From all indications the committee will make a favorable report. The House refused to appropriate a nickel for FSA and Davis has asked the Senate to keep the organization intact. Davis objects strenuously to dividing FSA's functions between Farm Credit and the Extension Service. FSA also is being investigated by the Cooley Committee of the House.

The President's "kitchen cabinet" is reported to be functioning again. Members are Economic Boss Jimmy Byrnes, Barney Baruch, Sam Rosenman, Admiral Leahy and Harry Hopkins. The problem before the house is inflation: how to control it and how to keep labor and the farm bloc happy . . . The Senate Appropriations Committee has given the National Resources Planning Board, a presidential pet, a small blood transfusion. It voted to give the board $200,000, which means it would have to reduce its staff from about 600 to 100 employes. Its functions also were restricted by the committee. The House, you'll recall, kicked the board out completely . . . The committee also gave the Home Owners Loan Corporation sufficient funds to bring about an orderly liquidation of its foreclosed homes. Under the House plan, HOLC would be forced to liquidate so rapidly that officials estimated that nearly 400 millions would be lost.

Emery Jacobs, No. 1 assistant to Agriculture Secretary Wickard, is going into the Army as a buck private . . . Officials studying personnel turnover in Government will be amazed at this fact: No one knows whether Farm Security will be operating after July 1, but still its personnel turnover is the smallest among Agriculture's large bureaus. The employes simply believe in the program . . . The Navy is preparing to adopt many of the manpower suggestion made by the Lyndon Johnson subcommittee. Many enlisted men and officers will be moved out of Washington. The Johnson report is generally believed to have been one of the most constructive and illuminating to come out of this session of Congress. It's refreshing to see a congressional committee stick to facts instead of grinding axes.

An honest-to-goodness recreation program for Federal employes is now in the planning stage. And it's high time. The paper plans call for the conversion of the Welfare and Recreational Association into an outright Government corporation and it would place a great deal more emphasis on welfare and recreation as the name implies. The association now runs Government cafeterias and its welfare and recreation activities are something of a mystery. Moreover, no one knows if the association is a Government or private organization. You can get any sort of an argument on this point. The jurisdiction and authority of the agency never have been defined, and it's one of those things that the Government has allowed to lag.

With summer coming on and with vacations curtailed, the need for some sort of a Federal employe recreation program is obvious. And it's something the personnel people have been thinking and talking about for months. Now, it's reported the Budget Bureau will attempt to break the log jam by proposing that the association be made into an outright Government corporation and the money made on cafeteria operations be used to provide welfare and recreation programs for the employes. This is what the association was set up to do, but the problem of feeding employes has become so great that it now takes all the time of association officials. The budget idea is sound and it should be worked out for the benefit of the 300,000 employes here who, after all, would be financing the welfare and recreation projects as the funds would come from lunch profits.

Transfer regulations of the Civil Service Commission have been revised again to keep them in line with the War Manpower Commission "freeze" order for the Washington area. An employe who wishes to transfer from his job must fill out Form 46. He can file the application with either the commission or his own agency. The commission will have the final say and all applications must be forwarded to it. It won't authorize any transfer that conflicts with the policies of War Manpower (whatever they are) and no one will be permitted to transfer unless the commission determines the employes will make a more effective contribution to the war. The commission emphasized that any employe who is transferred will be entitled to reemployment rights no matter whether the employe enters the armed services after he has been transferred.

Dying Boy's Story Told at Randle Trial

Brunette Shot Him After Exchange of Insults, Victim's Parents Testify

By Walter Mason,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Annapolis, Md., May 19.—The dying declaration of young Allen Willey that he was shot because he retorted in kind to insulting epithets applied to him and his mother was relayed to a jury today by the dead boy's family at the murder trial of brunette Helen Aileen Randle.

The 31-year-old third wife of Ulmo S. Randle, wealthy Maryland-Virginia horseman who declined to testify against her, was accused by the Willeys in their testimony of saying Mrs. Lena Willey, the mother, was a woman of loose character and that "you boys are b——."

Mrs. Willey herself related the story of her 17-year-old son's statement to her on the day he died, and her testimony was corroborated by her husband, Addison W. Willey, a Washington attorney, and her son, Douglas. Another son, Addison, jr., did not testify.

Mrs. Willey asserted her son told her that he replied to Mrs. Randle that her reputation was "not so hot" and that " he had facts and figures."

Mrs. Randle Shows Strain

Mrs. Randle, also indicted on a charge of shooting her 34-year-old husband with intent to kill, sat quietly at the defense counsel's table throughout the day, apparently taking a keen interest in the proceedings. However, at the end of the day's session, the strain of the trial was apparent.

Defense Attorneys George E. Woelfel and William Curran, asked numerous question with regard to the filing of damage suits totaling $150,000 against Mrs. Randle as a result of the shooting.

They questioned Mr. and Mrs. Willey particularly with regard to the time they hired a lawyer. Asked if he had not seen a lawyer the day of Allen's death, Willey replied that he had consulted an old friend —who was an attorney—about an undertaker.

A jury including five farmers, a salesman, two retired men and a Negro was selected to hear the case against Mrs. Randle after she had quietly pleaded innocent to the charge of murder.

Day-Long Quarrel

State's Attorney Marvin I. Anderson, who is prosecuting the case, said in his opening statement that the shooting of young Willey and Randle followed a day-long quarrel during which Mrs. Randle frequently declared that her husband, the adopted son of a Washington real estate operator, was illegitimate.

She also made slighting remarks about his friends and associates, the State's attorney declared, adding that in retaliation Randle made a remark reflecting upon her character before they were married, with the boy seconding the reference.

Most of the afternoon session was taken up with arguments and testimony concerning the admissibility of Allen Willey's dying statement to his parents. The arguments and taking of testimony were conducted in the absence of the jury.

Randle Leaves Court

Randle, third witness called by the prosecution, left the courtroom shortly after he was upheld by Chief Judge Ridgely P. Melvin in refusing to testify against his wife.

Before the trial opened, Judge Melvin told the spectators in the crowded courtroom that "this trial will be conducted precisely as all other trials in this courtroom" and warned that "no one will be permitted to make a theatrical performance of it in any sense."

The gallery was set aside for newsmen, and the judge specially told photographers that no pictures were to be taken in the courtroom nor in the county building.

The first witness called was Dr. Samuel Borssuck, who told of performing an operation to remove the bullet from young Willey's abdomen. He said the bullet struck the boy in the right side and inflicted several internal wounds.

County Police Sergt. Brooke Meade gave testimony with regard to his investigation of the case, and during his appearance on the witness stand, the rifle was introduced in evidence.

Trial Magistrate James G. Woodward said tonight he would issue warrants tomorrow upon the complaint of a photographer that he had been assaulted twice while covering the trial.

Francis Di Gennaro of Baltimore, free lance photographer assigned to trial coverage by the Associated Press said he was kicked and shoved out of the Anne Arundel County Jail by an attendant after he inquired from which entrance Mrs. Randle would emerge.

Later in the day, Di Gennaro returned to the courtroom, and was struck on the head with a briefcase by a Washington attorney.

Manbeck Given New Term as Printers' Head

Jesse Byron Manbeck of the Washington Post chapel and incumbent president of the Columbia Typographical Union No. 101, the oldest labor union in America, was re-elected by a majority of 600 in a field of four candidates for the office in the Union's regular election.

MANBECK

Manbeck polled 1201 votes. James I. Crockett of The Star, former secretary-treasurer of the union, was in second place with 610 votes; Lewis H. Smith of the Times-Herald was thrid, with 331 and Raymond Downs of the Bureau of National Affairs chapel was fourth, with 120.

Manbeck was elected president of the local typographical union, third largest in the International Typographical Union, last August to finish the term of Clarence J. Desper, who had been elevated to the first vice presidency of the I. T. U. He has been a union printer for more than 27 years. He was born at Hummelstown, Pa., and educated at Girard College. He is a member of the Elks and Moose Lodges here.

John R. Evans of the Government Printing Office as candidate for vice president polled 971 votes. Frank Lerch, retired, was second, with 471 votes; G. A. Caponnetto, Times-Herald, was third with 407 votes and Francis Schwoerer of the Government Printing Office was fourth with 385 votes. Evans is serving his second term as vice president.

Joseph Linz of the Daily News, running for secretary-treasurer, polled 781 votes; William Larkin of The Star won 744 votes; George Rooney of the Times-Herald, 470 and H. T. Hux of the Star, 226 votes.

A run-off election for the posts of vice president and secretary-treasurer, where no majority was obtained, will be held on June 2. The new officers will be installed on June 20 to serve for two years.

Diners in the Capitol Hill Cafeteria, 101 B Street Southeast, thought for a moment that Hitler had carried out his threat to bomb Washington, when Mrs. Sarah Baylor, 50, Negro, 418 B Street Southeast, stepped on a skylight above and crashed through. She had been washing windows on a second floor roof.

Among the diners were Representative Charles A. Plumley (Republican) of Vermont, Mary Spargo, Post staff writer, and J. Earl Moser of the Times-Herald.

A tourniquet from an apron was applied to Mrs. Baylor's arm until she was removed to Providence Hospital where she was treated for cuts to her arms and legs.

Heads Senior Class

Susan Balderston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Balderston, 1614 Crittenden Street Northwest, has been elected president of the senior class of the Connecticut College, New London, Conn. She has been active in student government, serving as president of the sophomore class and later as speaker of the student legislature.

Treasury Dance

Treasury Recreation Association will stage its annual spring dance tomorrow at the Wardman Park Hotel, 9:30 to 12:30 p. m. Secretary Henry Morgenthau and his staff have been invited. Mrs. Pluma J. O'Farrell is chairman.

Falls on Pencil

While on her way to school yesterday 7-year-old Sue Goldstein, 3814 Military Road Northwest, tripped over the curb at Fessenden Street and Reno Road Northwest and fell, driving a pencil which she was carrying through her lower lip. She was treated at Children's Hospital for the laceration and returned home.

Capt. Marks Retires

Capt. Sidney Marks, commanding officer of the Fourth Police Precinct, was retired by the Commissioners yesterday, after 37 years on the Metropolitan force. The retirement of Marks, who is 60, was ordered by the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons, and will be effective June 30.

Citizens Told They Can Aid Juvenile Delinquency Problem

Citizens groups can help curb juvenile delinquency, Inspector J. J. McGuire, FBI, told the Chevy Chase Association last night. He urged them to use influence upon working parents who neglect their children. If something is not done to stem the rising tide of delinquency, he said, we shall have vitiated that for which our children's older brothers now are fighting.

In outlining wartime responsibilities of FBI, he said most of the big national police and disciplinary war problems are being handled, but urged individuals to guard their own speech and action in terms of the Nation's good.

The association's utilities committee reported the route of the new Military Road crosstown bus line which terminates at Wisconsin Avenue and Western Avenue and Fourteenth Street and Colorado Avenue Northwest and urged members to use it to insure its continuance and to convenience themselves.

The education committee chairman, Ed Stafford, reported letters from school principals indicated history teaching here was better than average and being improved.

Friendship Citizens

The Friendship Citizens Association voted last night an approval of the Walter bill which provides an elective delegate to Congress for the District. They also admitted 49 new members.

Dr. Sigmond Skard, formerly of University of Oslo, Norway, spoke on "Norway Fights On" and told of his personal experiences in escaping to this country. Dr. Skard now is employed at Library of Congress as consultant on Scandinavian literature.

Scholarship Contest

Competitive examinations for five full scholarships to Gonzaga High School will be given at the school Saturday at 9 a. m. following registration of contestants at 8:45 p. m. Fourteen runners-up will be awarded half scholarships.

Winners will be announced at a reception for parents of all contestants at Gonzaga on Sunday at 3 p. m.

Lower Price Ceilings Hit Small Stores

Owners Doing Less Than $50,000 Lose Under Latest OPA Levels in District

"We try to cooperate with these price ceilings—but they may mean that we'll have to close up the business."

Such are sentiments of many owners of small independent grocery stores (in Class 1, doing less than $50,000 business per year) about new dollars-and-cents ceilings on hundreds of specific food items announced during the past two weeks by Office of Price Administration.

A Post reporter spent hours yesterday in seeking out operators of such "mamma and papa" stores and found their prices frequently range from 1 to 3 cents above that ordered for Class 1 stores by District OPA.

Typical of these are:

First store—selling Campbell's tomato juice in 14-ounce cans for 10 cents. Ceiling price is 8 cents. Selling cans of Phillips crushed corn for 15 cents. Ceiling is 13 cents.

Second store—selling Wonder whole wheat bread at 10 cents per loaf. Ceiling is 9 cents. Selling Kellogg's all-bran cereal at 16 cents. Ceiling is 14 cents.

"These lists of ceiling prices come out so often, we just can't keep up with 'em," sighed one owner. "Believe me, it would take a bookkeeper to mark our prices that fast, and with hired help so hard to get, I just don't have the time to do it myself."

"Lots of days I don't make more than half a dozen sales of over $1," said another. "That way I have no volume. I can't afford to cut my prices to these ceilings because my customers buy maybe one egg or one loaf of bread at a time. They don't do all their shopping here. They just use this store to fill in. So if I live up to the ceilings, I won't be able to pay my own taxes and buy my food. I'll have to close my store, that's what."

"I figure it costs me $1 just to open up my door every morning," a third sighed wearily. "That's rent, taxes and such—not including salaries and electric light bills. If I mark my prices like the OPA says I won't be able to open up my door every morning. I won't be able to afford it."

Seymour Tells Of Yale's War Contribution

Yale's contribution to the war effort in making its facilities available to armed forces were outlined to the Yale Club of Washington last night at its seventieth annual meeting by Dr. Charles Seymour, president of the university.

The meeting was held in Sapphire Room of Mayflower Hotel. Charles P. Taft, assistant Federal Security administrator, presided as toastmaster.

It was announced the meeting was to honor men of Yale who had given their lives in the present war and also to honor the college itself.

Taft introduced for brief speeches the guests at the speaker's table: Col. F. Trubee Davison, in charge of personnel operations of the Army Air Force; Harvey H. Bundy, special assistant to Secretary of War; Lieut. Comdr. Malcolm Aldrich, former Yale football team captain; Eugene Meyer, editor and publisher of The Post; Waldron Faulkner, vice president of the Yale Club; Oscar Cox, general counsel for Lend-Lease; Leroy Whitney of the WPB; Representative John M. Vorys (Republican) of Ohio; Senator John Danaher (Republican), Connecticut, and President Seymour.

Two From D. C. Are Reported Held in Italy

Lieut. Marcellus Christian Hughes, husband of The Post's society writer, Carolyn Bell, and Lieut. J. L. Norwood, both of Washington, yesterday were included in a group of 167 United States soldiers whom the War Department stated were "held as prisoners of war by Italy." Hughes and Norwood were originally reported prisoners of Italy transferred to a German prison camp in The Post April 1.

Word of the transfer was received here by the War Prisoners Aid of the Y. M. C. A. from headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland.

Lieutenant Hughes, whose aunt, Mrs. Bessie Christian, resides at 4112 Fourth Street North, Arlington, Va., formerly lived at 3803 Alton Place Northwest. Lieutenant Norwood is the husband of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Norwood of 1483 Meridian Place Northwest.

Maryland men reported interned were Tech. Fifth Grade George H. Ashbridge of North East, and Pvt. Francis L. Leap of Middle River.

Virginia men: Pvt. Ivan V. Freeze of Stanley, Pvt. First Class Bernard P. Robinson of Woodlawn, and Pvt. Karl F. Stoneberger of Stanley.

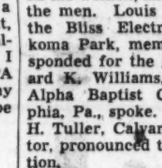
D. C. Federation of Music Clubs Provides Pleasant Concert

By Ray C. B. Brown

D. C. Federation of Music Clubs holds its annual meeting and concert on Wednesday night in the Arts Club. Participants in the program: Lovette Choral Club, Lillian Harmon Burke, piano; Dorothy Radde Emery, piano; Alden H. Emery, jr., flute; Anne Yago McGuffey, contralto.

Following the annual business meeting last evening, the District Federation of Music Clubs held open house in the Arts Club and entertained guests with a pleasant concert. The program was opened and closed by the Lovette Choral Club, whose founder and director, Eva Whitford Lovette was unable to be present because of illness. The popular organization of women's voices was led by the experienced associate director, Francise Bass Wilson, in a half-dozen enjoyable choruses. The offerings were all in the folk vein, the first group containing songs of Russian, Mexican and Norwegian provenance, and the last group devoted to the American scene.



BROWN

Roger Whitford's arrangement of "Peter" was followed by Bryceson Terharne's version of "Fair Wind and Weather" and a halling by Grieg with words turning it into "My Johann." Most effective of these was the part-writing by Terharne, the Welsh composer, who has been somewhat neglected of late years. His lyric gift was remarkably manifested when he composed more than 200 songs while confined in a prison camp at Munich during 1914-15. In the American group were "The Old Boat Zion," a fine spiritual by Deane Shure; Walter Justis' arrangement of "Going to Walk the Golden Streets" and L. W. Haney's version of "The Whistling Girl" from the Appalachian region.

Lillian Harmon Burke played sympathetically Erno von Dohnanyi's early Rhapsody in F sharp minor, which is a little Brahmsian in manner but melodically distinctive. Doorthy Radde Emery and her son, Alden H. Emery, were heard in her Sonata in A major for piano and flute, a melodically agreeable work with a genuinely poetic nocturne movement. Mrs. Emery also contributed her piano suits, "City Streets," a set of five descriptive pieces showing both sentiment and humor.

Anne Yago McGuffey, whose contralto voice has warmth and vibrancy, offered an interesting group of songs interpreted with a sure touch in emotional shadings. Her first choice, "O del mio amato ben," by Stefano Donaudy, whose death in 1925 deprived the world of a gifted lyric writer with a penchant for reviving the classic aria. Other songs were Frank Bridge's "O That It Were So," Daniel Wolf's "Iris" and Mrs. Emery's "Sing Again."

65 Old-Time Members Honored By Calvary Baptist Church

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

Sixty-five worshipers of Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and H Streets Northwest, were honored last night—some in absentia—for membership records of more than 50 years.

Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, Calvary's pastor, led tributes to the guests of honor at the annual dinner and meeting, pinning corsages on the women, and boutonnieres on the men. Louis D. Bliss, head of the Bliss Electrical School, Takoma Park, member 51 years, responded for the guests. Dr. Howard K. Williams, minister of the Alpha Baptist Church, Philadelphia, Pa., spoke. The Rev. Edwin H. Tuller, Calvary's associate pastor, pronounced the dinner invocation.

With 3543 members, Calvary Church is one of the city's two largest Protestant congregations, the membership of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church also being between 3500 and 3600.

Those honored last night, and their years of service, follow:

Mrs. Sallie Anderson Crupper, 67; Miss Georgia E. Doran, 63; Mrs. Kate Manley Mitchell, 62; Mrs. Cora Boyd Morgan, 62; Miss Anna B. Adams, 62; Mrs. Gertrude Cowling Kimball, 60; Herbert L. Davis, 60; Mrs. Leila Bailey Hardell, 60; Mrs. Kate Judd Evans, 58; Mrs. Emma Mastbrook Heard, 58.

Rice, 51; Samuel P. Aler, 51; Louis D. Bliss, 51; Miss Ella S. Shallenberger, 50; Mrs. Lena Lockwood, 50; Mrs. Alice B. Chapman, 50; Mrs. Clara W. Morsell, 50, and Mrs. Annie Alden Turner, 50.

Victory Sidelights

War Bond Sales of 10 Schools May Pay for 3 Ambulances

Safety patrol boys of the 10 elementary schools in No. 8 Police Precinct, who launched a campaign May 3 to buy a $1780 Army ambulance through purchase of war bonds and stamps, were reported yesterday to have collected $4582, with two schools yet untabulated and nine days to go.

Police Coordinator Charles Brown said that enthusiasm in all the schools is not lagging and very likely three ambulances instead of just one will be christened at a rally June 5.

Following are the 10 schools: Lafayette, Horace Mann, St. Anne's, Blessed Sacrament, Oyster, St. Thomas, Hurst, Janney, Eaton and Ben Murch.

Moonlight Hike

A moonlight hike through Rock Creek Park will be sponsored by the Capitol Hiking Club. The group will meet at Connecticut Avenue and Woodley Road at 7:30 p. m., from which point they will follow a 2-mile trail to the camp area. A flashlight is the only required equipment.

Address System Hailed

The installation of a public address system in the District Building Board Room yesterday gave a break to the many citizens who have worn out vocal chords and overstrained ear drums at public hearings in the acoustically wretched room.

The address system, which includes two microphones and two amplifiers, was installed by Sergt. Frank Beall of the Police Radio Station. He said that the hookup was devised of materials already on hand, so that the only cost to the District for this belated improvement was his time, which the District was paying for anyway.

To Discuss Strike Bill

The antistrike bill, approved by the House Military Affairs Committee but denounced by Government executive agencies, will be discussed Sunday, 8 to 8:45 p. m., on Theodore Granik's American Forum of the Air The discussion will be broadcast from the Shoreham Hotel over Station WOL and nationally over the Mutual network.

Representative E. C. Gathings (Democrat) of Arkansas and Representative Clare E. Hoffman (Republican) of Michigan will favor the bill, while Representative James A. Wright (Democrat) of Pennsylvania and Joseph A. Padway, general counsel of the American Federation of Labor, will oppose it.

Navy Music School Graduates 126 Men Today

It's "anchors aweigh" today for 120 sea-going musicians and six bandmasters of the Navy School of Music.

They will graduate from the school at the Navy Yard at commencement exercises at 10:30 a. m. After months of specialized study in music as well as military drill and seamanship, they will receive diplomas

Lieut. P. K. Potter, chaplain, will give the invocation; Comdr. C. W. A. Campbell, commanding officer, will present diplomas; Stanley John Piwnica, honor man of the class, will make a farewell address.

Stephens Fined In High's IceCream Stores Charges

Clifford Y. Stephens, of High's Ice Cream Stores, was fined $125 in Municipal Court yesterday on charges that two of the stores were operating under insanitary conditions while three others were allegedly operating without licenses.

Health Department inspectors said that three stores operating without licenses had been denied them because of insanitary conditions. These stores it was testified, are at 1207 Seventh Street Northwest, 3116 Eleventh Street Northwest, and 1924 Fourteenth Street Northwest.

The other two stores are at 1025 and 2132 Pennsylvania Avenue

Simplified Sex Course Approved

Dr. J. A. Gannon Satisfied with New Plan Suggested For District Schools

By Helene Champlain
Post Staff Writer

A more simplified and less definitive outline of the senior high school health course in sex education, suggested by physical education teachers as an alternate for the "questionable" outline previously in use, was yesterday approved by the Board of Education.

After two conferences on the propriety of the former outline, which were called after Dr. James A. Gannon, board member, on April 21 asked that the outline be reconsidered on grounds that it was "shocking," the committee decided that a "more simple outline would probably bring about a better situation and would offer the teachers a better basis for study."

Dr. Gannon, original objector to the course outline, voiced his "hearty approval" to the revised schedule of study.

"I still have my own private opinion that it is not wise to give a formal course in sex education, which well can be incorporated with other courses during the year," said Dr. Gannon. "However, this new outline included in the course is, I think, very fine. I think the school officers and committee should be congratulated for the fine change which they have made. They have done something I had heard was impossible: They have made a silk purse out of a sow's ear."

He added he hoped when the course is being given, some mention of venereal disease will be made, specifically its dangers and effects, in view of the large increase of cases in Washington.

In a statement publicized in release of the revised "human reproduction" section, Chester W. Holmes, assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum, noted, "This outline is prepared as a guide for the teacher in presentation of lessons in social hygiene. It has for its purpose not only the teaching of a limited body of facts and information, but mainly development of a proper attitude in the pupil concerning personal responsibilities for his health, happiness and citizenship as a worthy member of the community. Teachers chosen for this instruction will have frequent conferences with heads of departments to determine proper techniques and procedures."

Outline Described

The new outline, which will be introduced in the schools in about two weeks, follows:

1. Anatomy and Physiology
   - A. Nature prepares for reproduction in all forms of life.
   - B. Higher forms compared with lower forms.
   - C. How human life begins.
2. Instincts
   - A. Human compared with animal.
   - B. Necessity for controlling instinctive impulses.
3. Adolescence and Its Problems
   - A. A period for guidance.
   - B. Character, reputation and efficient citizenship.
4. Dangers of Disease
   - A. Clean living essential for health, happiness and success.
   - B. Community health.
5. Marriage and Its Responsibilities
   - (a) The family, the basic social unit in our democracy.
   - (b) Contribution of the happy home to welfare of the Nation.
   - (c) Obligations of parenthood.

The course for which it will substitute was published in The Post of April 25.

Ballou Gets Leave

A proposal of the board to Superintendent of Schools Ballou, who had requested retirement from his post in view of his illness, that his leave of absence with pay be extended to June 30, 1943, and that he also be given six months' leave without pay through December 31 of this year, was accepted by Dr. Ballou. The board approved the proposed course of action and designated Robert L. Haycock to continue as acting superintendent during that period with the basic pay of superintendents of schools.

C. Melvin Sharp, board member who is active in many civic agencies, was nominated by the board to represent it at meetings of the D. C. Recreation Board in place of Dr. Haycock. Sharp was a member of the President's committee which set up the board about a year ago.

"In principle," the board approved a recommendation of compulsory participation of senior high school boys in the cadet training program. Also asked was authorization of officers to enforce more strictly the Act of 1907 requiring enrollment in the cadet organization. Details will be worked out at a later date. Currently only about 50 per cent of senior high youths are members of the organization, which, among other benefits, prepares young men physically for military service.

Jackson Elementary School will continue sessions next year, the board also voted, because of enrollment increases and the possibility of establishment of a kindergarten in September.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

A handy package of egg noodles can supply the backbone to a vegetable dish made up of baked onions, made interesting with cheese and tomatoes, and further enhanced for nutrition and appeal by tender lima bean border as pictured here.

Do you want to convince the family that there's many an appealing dish to be served other than potatoes? Onions are not hard to get, they are also down the scale in price as compared to many vegetables.

Martha Ellyn

They are also combined on a platter with noodles and fresh lima beans to make a dish as appealing as perky yellow daffodils. When the onions are cooked with a tomato cheese sauce they give a splash of color to the dish.

This is a great dish to make for those days you do not have many meat points or are not serving meat. Here's a recipe for making this dish and a suggested menu:

DINNER MENU

Baked Onions with Noodles
Lima Beans
Perfection Salad
Bran Muffins Honey
Apple Dumplings with Lemon Sauce
Tea Milk

The following recipe for making the onion-noodle-bean dish will convince the family or guests that the cook can get along while potatoes are on their "furlough."

NOODLES WITH BAKED ONIONS, LIMA BEANS

Parboil 8 or 10 small onions until tender, about 20 minutes. arrange in shallow baking dish and cover with pulped tomatoes and ½ cup diced or grated American cheese. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, until the cheese is melted and the tomatoes thoroughly heated. Cook one 8-ounce package egg noodles in boiling salted water until tender. Drain; add 3 tablespoons butter or margarine and arrange on serving platter. Place baked onions around the mound of noodles and serve with sauce made by the blend of tomatoes and cheese.

Buttered lima beans make a colorful and delicious addition to this platter just before serving.

Apple dumplings are especially appealing when splashed with lemon sauce. The following recipe is for making both the dumplings and the sauce

APPLE DUMPLINGS WITH LEMON SAUCE

Roll out rich pastry, as for pie, to ⅛-inch thickness. Cut into squares. Peel and core 4 to 6 medium-sized apples and place on pastry. Fill cores with mixture of 1 cup of sugar and ½ teaspoon nutmeg, then dot with butter. Moisten edges of pastry, fold four corners together and seal. Bake in hot oven, 450 degrees, for 10 minutes; reduce heat to 375 degrees and continue baking for 30 minutes or longer, until apples are done. Serve with milk or hard sauce or lemon sauce.

Lemon sauce—Mix ½ cup granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch and a dash of salt. Add 1 cup boiling water and bring to boiling point, stirring constantly. Cook over boiling water for 15 minutes. Remove from fire, add a slightly beaten egg yolk, 3 tablespoons of lemon juice and 2 tablespoons of butter. Serve Hot.

OCD Appeals For Volunteers

An urgent appeal for assistance issues from the Office of Civilian Defense. Both skilled and unskilled office workers are needed. Register immediately if you can aid for even a few hours of the day or evening.

Typists, clerical workers, including file clerks and registrars, stenographers and statisticians are needed in every corner of the Nation's Capital—in hospitals, in Juvenile Court, in the D. C. Health Bureau, the OCD office, at the ration boards, boy's clubs and the settlement houses (nursery schools for war workers).

Register during the week, Monday through Friday, from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., at the Office of Civilian Defense, 2324 F Street, or Monday through Friday, 10 a. m. to 7:30 p. m., and Saturday morning, at the Booth, 1321 Pennsylvania Avenue.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain

How to keep your nutritional level up to standard in spite of the shortages and what to expect in the way of new shortages were outlined for a large group of New York career women the other day by Miss Lorna Barber, of Uncle Sam's nutrition corps. Her pointers were so helpful that I'm passing them on to you.

There will be quite a few new peanut mixtures on the market before long. Peanuts will be grown extensively for their by-products and they are a valuable source of protein and vitamins.

Those soy beans we have been hearing so much about appear to be a bit closer to the market and at a price the housewife can afford. The food industry has been rather slow about giving us these beans, and we may be backward about taking to them on account of the length of time required for cooking.

The Government is keeping a close watch on our nutrition and surveys shows we haven't been doing any too well by ourselves. Since canned fruit juices come so high in points, a lot of housewives are not buying them. That is all right, but they are not giving their families the fresh fruits, either. That will lead to lowered resistance. Vitamin C is important to health but more of it is needed by people who are working hard in the industrial plants, for the vitamin C loss is increased with perspiration.

THE GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay

An 'Honorable' Woman

I
I'm a thoroughly honorable woman
Of distinguished pedigree,
Yet I waylay my neighbor's maid
And bribe her to work for me.

II
I think black markets should be curbed,
Yet a chance I'll always take
When a tradesman I have known for long
Whispers how I can get a steak.

III
My husband has much influence
With those who wield the civic clamps;
I do my grocer some good turns;
He gives me butter without stamps.

IV
I stand in with the butcher;
He holds good broilers back for me,
While women at the counter first
Must plan on oxtail fricassee.

V
In all dealings with the law
I feel my hands are clean,
Yet I stretched my needs a little bit
To get a B card for gasoline.

VI
I have no use for hoarders;
Their trickery I deplore.
When I signed up for canned goods rations
I declared at least half my store.

VII
I do not drive my car for pleasure;
I'd never do that—Oh, no!
I always take taxis to parties

VIII
It's not that I am selfish
Or lacking in esprit.
No one could be more patriotic—
It's just that I love my family.

IX
Then, too, these times are trying;
It's every fellow for No. 1,
And why should I be pushed aside
And in the race outrun?

X
Oh, I am thoroughly honorable,
But I must protect my own,
For that's the law of the jungle,
And of war the cornerstone.

Meatless Meals

Remember that portions of meat alternates must be at least doubled to equal food value in an average serving of meat. Since that's impractical for ordinary menu purposes, Mrs. Julia Kiene, manager of Westinghouse Home Economics Institute, offers these simple solutions: (1) Serve two meat alternates a day—one for lunch, one for dinner; (2) spread meat alternates over all three meals—for example, an extra large portion of cooked cereal for breakfast, a gen rous serving of cheese with salad for lunch, beans plus a milk dish such as custard for dinner.

"Hurry, Herbert! The St. Regis has 300 air-conditioned rooms!"

Mother and I Wear the Same Size

By Jeanne Contini

It probably seems like yesterday that you surprised her stumbling around in your evening gown, three feet of desperate dignity trying to keep the picture hat from falling over her nose. Today she borrows your cologne . . . your shoes, your stockings, your gloves. There's literally nothing you can call your own except your dresses. They fit her, but stay sacred because your daughter knows that her own swirling skirts and nonsense gadgets do better by her tiny waist and fly-away hair than the suave simplicity of your clothes. In the meantime you resign yourself to share everything else and smile because she's a pal now and a problem, but not a baby anymore.

In one junior department we found two summer dresses that in our estimation make up the perfect prescriptions for two entirely different ways of life, although they come in the same size range (9 to 15).

A SERENE 36:

Cool rayon jersey vertically striped to give you height. The whole thing has a graceful ease from the clean look of the shirt-neckline to the soft unpressed pleats of the skirt; navy, brown, scarlet or green with white stripes . . . about $16.00.

A SWEET 16:

Satin-finished chintz with the princess lines that are dear to her heart. White pique ruffles and polka dots on coral, lemon, sea-green and a wonderful gray-blue. Pretty enough for parties and perfectly washable . . . about $10.00.

Regarding the Pursuit Of Beauty

Wash the carbon off your hands—hold your chin up and tummy in—leave a note "Out to Lunch" and then come and let yourself be made beautiful.

The sight of budding trees may make you wish you could have a new face, come spring, and you can—almost. It's just a matter of a state of mind and some cosmetics individually blended just for you.

It's like this:

One of the local stores has a makeup bar where an expert colorist will give you a complimentary makeup—all for free. You walk into a pink and cream powder room and sink down in a luxurious green chair in front of a makeup table. First your skin is analyzed and a formula card made out for your powder and powder base, both of which are blended for you. This card is kept on file.

Then all kinds of nice things begin to happen. From the depths of your soft chair you hear a nice voice telling you the whys and wherefores of applying makeup, while she massages soft creams into your skin. You could fall asleep under this soothing influence, but there are too many important things to find out about yourself—what your coloring is, how you can "maximize" your good points and "minimize" the bad ones, how to apply cream, mascara, powder base, etc., plus a few trade secrets on how to look particularly glamorous for evening.

When it's over with you feel and look as if you had swallowed a box of vitamin pills. Your makeup is just right for you—and you will gratefully sigh at the thought that wasteful experiments are now a thing of the past.

Back to the office you go after this spirit-lifting interlude. You'll please, not startle, your boss away from his administrative orders for a moment.

It takes but 20 minutes (you can make an appointment if you like) and it's mighty good for your soul!

Put this number in your little book and refer to it for further information. NAtional 4200 Extension 324 between 9:00 and 5:30.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Opposed to Divorce and Deserted by Wife, Man Can't Offer Marriage to Girl Who Is Learning To Love Him; Should They Continue Friendship?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a problem that worries me greatly. I would appreciate your help and advice. I work in a war plant on second shift. I am 22 and very perplexed about a man of 42 who works the same shift, but in a different department. The affair started simply enough when he took me home one rainy night. It soon developed that he took me home every rainy night, and it was not long until we did not bother to wait for rain.

At first, when he took me home I said, "Good night, thanks for the ride," and left him. But soon we got the habit of sitting in the car to talk a while. He usually sat with his arm across my shoulders, and before long we picked up the habit of a goodnight kiss. I like his manner toward me and the way he kisses me. Now he takes me home not less than three times a week, and we do less talking and more kissing. We have the same likes and dislikes and the same religion. It is here that the problem comes. Our religion does not sanction divorce, and he has a wife living, who walked out and left him for another man. She is now living with this man and makes no pretense of marriage.

Since we do not believe in divorce, we are agreed that marriage between us is impossible. What I want to know is: Am I doing wrong in seeing him? Will this ruin my chances later to marry someone nearer my own age? Working the shift I do, I have very little chance to date as other girls do. And I enjoy being with this man. He is very considerate of me and willing to abide by my decision in this matter. It was he who suggested that perhaps I should not see him. What shall I do? We both have some sense and judgment, and if we use it, we can have some pleasant memories that maybe we would have missed. Will this friendship ruin me—or rather, people's opinion of me? ROSIE.

Behavior Contradicts Their Religious Views

DEAR ROSIE: Since you and the man are absolutely agreed that marriage between you is positively out of the question, for religious or ethical reasons, it seems to me you are behaving with singular inconsistency in permitting a "sweetheart" relationship to develop. If marriage between you would be wrong from your shared viewpoint (supposing the man could get a divorce from his wife), then certainly this lover-like arrangement is equally wrong. Because, according to the tenets of your kindred conscience, the man is a married man—linked by sacred and indissoluble ties to his runaway wife until death cuts the bond. Which brings us to the conclusion, arrived at by the only sound line of reasoning compatible with your straitlaced conviction in the matter, that you and he are indulging in a quasi-adulterous adventure in the present exchange.

In brief, you are straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel, in "honorably" outlawing the possibility of marriage on religious grounds, while progressively indulging a mounting desire to enjoy each other's embraces. While in theory abiding by your church's stand in regard to divorce, you are actually flouting the intent of the ban by acting as if the man were free to court you. And this doesn't make sense, if you are trying to think straight and behave with real integrity—or, to say it another way, trying to cleanly live by the highest principles of conduct you know.

No Future for Girl In the Association

As to whether the restrained romantic relationship would "ruin" you socially, if long continued—it is certainly safe to say it would despoil such period of your youth as was invested in it, and might leave scars on your reputation as well as your heart that would change your whole future for the worse. Look the situation in the face and ask yourself: "What am I letting myself in for, in permitting myself to become daily more involved in a hopelessly dead-end attachment?" And, "What would I think of some other girl, if I knew she was slipping out night after night with a married-and-separated man old enough to be her father? Wouldn't I think that she was either a bad egg or a pitiful little fool?

The fact that your work allows very little time for dating is in itself a powerful argument against spending that time with a man who can never be your husband nor openly your beau. And the further fact that the more often you see him, the more you want to see him, shows that heartache and possibly moral catastrophe are not far off for both of you—if you let these thrice-a-week emotional sessions continue much longer, or to the point of becoming an overpowering habit, which you will be unable to break when finally the desperate need of doing so becomes apparent, as the last line of defense against total surrender of principle.

There's Only One Way To Head Off Trouble

The time to nip trouble in the bud is now. And the way to do it is to give up these night rides and go back to an impersonal workaday friendship. Only by bringing "sense and judgment" to bear now, before your emotions have got completely out of control, can you translate the sentimental interlude into a pleasant memory, which will always make each of you more grateful than sorry for having known the other. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Thrifty Wartime Furniture Cleaning

Washington dry cleaning establishments are operating at capacity, even in the face of serious labor shortages, to meet the needs of the increased civilian and Army population.

Probably never before in the history of homemaking has there been such a wave of make-it-do. The renaissance of remake and remodel is merrily under way in every home in the country. And a good thing, too. It is to be hoped, now that we have learned how much farther our dollars can be made to go.

There is definitely more than one way to dry clean your sofa. The kind of job you want is one that will first remove every bit of grit and every suspicion of grease without marring so much as a thread of the texture surface. From cracks and crevices must be routed out every last bit of dust. Then springs must be protected from moisture, the National Association of Dyers and Cleaners warns, and wood from scratches. All this can be done, as the conservation experts will tell you, but only through skill and experience and with the aid of quality materials.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Every mother who is alert to interpret her children's conduct knows a great change comes over a child when a new baby comes into the family.

At first he is full of curiosity and interest. Then the furor created by the new arrival becomes unpleasantly noticeable to him. He tries to edge into the limelight and, finding this unsuccessful, he determines to hog it. It is now apparent he no longer is the preeminent one in the family. Someone has grabbed the spot from him.

All children do not react the same to this unhappy knowledge. Some show their animosity to the baby to so marked an extent as to make it dangerous for them to be left alone with the baby. Others are "crazy" about the baby but show by their own determined return to babyhood that they recognize it to be the most rewarding age. Baby can't eat by himself—neither can they. Baby exhibits no control of toilet habits—why should they? They are expecting to profit as clearly as does baby by this return to the behavior of infancy.

Punishment, even explanation, seldom helps; since it is love and attention toward which the child is aiming. His misery is only aggravated when he gets for his behavior shame and scolding and punishment.

What is it we want to inspire in the child? First, of course, a recognition that every parent has love to spare for each and every member of the family. Daddy and Mother love all of them, big or little, bad or good. But chiefly the child wants to be given an appreciation for his new position as big boy of the family. He won't get that only by being told he is a big boy and has to act like one. That isn't enough. He should experience some of the new privileges of his new estate.

In addition to being read to and played with and made over exactly as in the past, he should be given more duties in the household which are derived from his position as big-boy helper.

He can help his mother twice a day, giving this busy person an opportunity to work with him, since it is easily possible she may have little or no time to play with him.

His bedtime can be a half hour later, just to prove to him that he is growing up. His father can make a supreme effort to choose some game which he can play each night and to which the child (boy or girl) will anticipate through the day.

It is by actual demonstration of the boys, as well as the duties of growing up that we can help the child to overcome his desire to slip back into infantile habits, because these seem to bring such rich returns.

Jealousy can find no place in the heart of a child who feels happily superior in his new position instead of inferior.

Use Old Light Bulbs

When the inside of a bulb becomes blackened, relegate it for duty in a closet, storage room or attic where it will be used occasionally. Put new bulbs in your important reading lamps and fixtures. There may be plenty of life in the blackened bulb, but it can waste as much as 25 per cent of the light.

Save Paint Brushes

Paint brushes, old or new, need coddling for the duration. Clean them thoroughly with turpentine immediately after using them. Then suspend brushes in a jar containing linseed oil and turpentine. The oil keeps the bristles soft, suspending the brushes prevents bending.

New Book by 'Part-Time Washingtonian' Is Witty And Wise Analysis of Popular Taste in America

You had just as well get a copy of David L. Cohn's "Love In America" now, because you're going to hear a lot about it for the next few weeks . . . and there's nothing like being able to follow intelligently the line of popular talk, whether it's over dinner table, teacup, or office desk.

Decorated with a gold Cupid flitting across the front cover, the scarlet tome was published yesterday; but for some time those of us fortunate enough to know Author Cohn have been hearing advance reports from him of "a perfectly scandalous book I'm writing —about you women."

Well, this is it; and in effect, at least, it is perfectly scandalous. But, fortunately, it is no more so in regard to women than men; and both sexes can stand to be panned unmercifully by any writer who can do it so neatly.

DAVID L. COHN

The title is misleading. When you boil down the book's contents, you'll find very little love in the residue. What you will find is a series of lively essays on a wide variety of subjects, covering manners and morals in American marriage; feminine frailties and foibles, and the reasons why (according to Cohn) the average American man is such a thoroughly unsatisfactory husband.

Superb Picker of Provocative Titles

The spicy style that characterized one of Mr. Cohn's earlier books, "The Good Old Days"—Americana drawn from the Sears & Roebuck catalogues—accents "Love in America." The Cohn flair for picking provocative chapter titles and subheads comes to the fore in such timely topics as "Do American Men Like Women?" (The answer is no; not really; not American women, anyway.) "The Indulgent Husband and the Spoiled Wife"; "Marriage Is A Part-Time Job"; "He Never Says Nice Things To Me."

Although the approach is satirical, the import is serious. With wisdom as well as wit, the author examines American popular taste and preferences in a variety of phases, including the popular novel, radio dramas, love songs, women's magazines, and (heaven help us) the society pages of newspapers. Gallantly, Mr. Cohn refrains from placing the blame for America's atrocious tastes on the slender shoulders of America's womanhood. No, indeed. As he sees it, editors of women's magazines, radio script and advertising copy writers should get hep to themselves and what they turn out; had better wake up to the fact that most women—well, more women, anyway—"can stand just so many clouds with serial silver linings."

But let Mr. Cohn tell you in his own words:

"You are saddened when you think how many women living on a diet of women's magazines—fed but undernourished—fall victim of mental pellagra. You are depressed when you realize that those who swallow their fiction pills undoubtedly feel a momentary glow, only to be let down in the end because they have derived little from their reading which enriches their lives or squares with experience. The saving grace perhaps is that the magazines supply an antidote against the pains they create. The reader who is let down by the contents may turn to the advertising pages, where beauty is to be found at the drug store and the waning affections of a husband may be aroused by a lemon pie whose recipe is provided by a thoughtful and lovesick flour-making corporation."

In his highly illuminating and diverting chapter on society pages, Mr. Cohn turns his attention first to the Capital City and the fact that The Washington Post some time ago carried "a shattering, if not unladylike announcement" that it was finished with playing up society as such and would henceforth throw the spotlight on persons doing war work, rather than on parties and paper-thin sandwiches, and long lists of social climbers who attended one and consumed the other.

As Mr. Cohn sees it, "The Washington Post's mild revolution may be indicative of a post-war revaluation of values; a wiping out of the cheapness, vulgarity and shabbiness that have afflicted our national life for the past 25 years; a prelude perhaps to a time when those who are of significance to society will be celebrated rather than those who are 'in society.'"

But as a prelude to this he has examined many examples of the society page—"this journalistic phenomenon"—thoroughly and has selected some saccharine excerpts to prove his point; namely, that if the old-fashioned type of society page should drop out of existence entirely "its loss, while painful, may still be bearable. For, as Mrs. James Farley once said of the city where the society-page revolution began: 'There is less here than meets the eye.'"

Woman's Part in Postwar World

Seriously speaking, the book supports a number of theses, each one of which is pointed out in the introduction and reemphasized toward the conclusion. In other words, what Mr. Cohn tries to prove—and does—through a series of essays on American popular taste is that the basic relations between American men and women leave much to be desired; that men are more to blame for this than women (since they, the men, want to be indulged not loved); that the actual status of American woman, "emancipated" though she is, is much lower than her alleged status and her influence is relatively weak; and that women had better become aware of the fact that their great postwar role should be that of civilizing and humanizing agents.

A native of Mississippi, Mr. Cohn is now what might be termed a "part-time Washingtonian." He spends much of his time here and is adviser to the British Ministry of Information. His latest book is dedicated to the former Commandant of the Navy Yard, Admiral George Pettengill and Mrs. Pettengill. His next, incidentally, will deal with another phase of American life—the influence of the automobile.

"I've never been able to understand why so many writers are always wanting to get away from America to find something to write about," Mr. Cohn told me the other day. "Most interesting things in the world seem to be in this country."

Churchill Is Honored After Speech

Following his speech before a joint session of Congress yesterday at noon, Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain was entertained at luncheon by Senator Tom Connally and Representative Sol Bloom. The affair was held in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee room.

Present were Vice President Henry A. Wallace, House Speaker Sam Rayburn, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Lord Halifax, British Ambassador; Senator Alben Barkley, Senator Charles McNary, Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Walter George, Representative Joseph W. Martin, Representative Luther Johnson, Representative Charles A. Eaton, Representative John W. McCormack, Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, Sir Ronald Campbell, Lord Cherwell, and Comdr. Thompson and Mr. Rowan, secretaries to the Prime Minister.

Mrs. McEnerney Honors Sister, Soon to Be Wed

Mrs. Charles H. McEnerney entertained at a buffet luncheon on Tuesday in honor of her sister, Miss Catherine Cushwa of Williamsport, Md., whose engagement to S. Calvin Dickerhoff, of Old Mill Stream Farm, Lebanon, Pa., was recently announced.

Mint juleps were served in the garden, and little tables had been set up on the terrace and the veranda.

Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador; Mme. Michels, wife of the Chilean Ambassador, and Senora de Caceres, wife of the Honduran Ambassador, were in the company, and others were Senora de Munilla, Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould, Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mrs. Paul Linebarger, Mrs. E. L. Huffman, Mrs. George Trible, Mrs. Harmer Reeside, Mrs. Harry Duncan, Mrs. William F. O'Donnell, Mrs. Henry O'Brien, Mrs. Katharyn Fuqua, Mrs. R. C. Leary, Mrs. Kirk Smith, Mrs. Magruder MacDonald, Mrs. Earle Mackintosh, Mrs. Dow Harter, Mrs. C. E. Murray. Mrs. William Chapman, Mrs. John Shugrue, Mrs. David K. Cushwa, sister-in-law of the hostess, and Mrs. Howard Young of Frederick, Md.

Ensign Newhall to Wed British Officer

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Newhall of Williamstown, Mass., announce the engagement of their daughter, Ensign Jane Newhall of the WAVES, to Lieut. Col. Arthur P. C. Lyons of the Royal Army Service Corps.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Sir Henry and Lady Lyons of High Wycombe, Bucks, England, and is at present attached to the British army staff in Washington.

Plans Being Made For Benefit Dance

Miss Shirley Collegeman and Irving Fleishman will entertain the committee at her home, 5016 Fourth Street, to formulate last-minute details for their War Bond Floor Show and dance to be held at the Shoreham Hotel on Tuesday, May 25, at 8 o'clock to raise the cost of a Flying Fortress. Miss Betty Flegman of Alpha Lambda Phi and Bernie Frank of Sigma Phi in Baltimore are coming to Washington to assist the committee and unite the bond sale between the cities.

Timely Personalities

Guild Benefit To Be Held On June 7

Arrangements are being completed for a concert, benefiting the Chamber Music Guild, to be held on June 7 at the Luxembourg Legation.

The benefit is to be held under the patronage of the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. de Gallais. Final arrangements and the artists to be heard will be announced at a later date.

At a recent meeting held at the legation, Mrs. Thomas Burke was named head of the Benefit Committee. Mme. Alberto Brunet and Mrs. Stuart C. Godfrey were selected as vice chairmen and Mrs. Foster Adams as secretary.

Generally assisting on the committee are Senora de Michels, wife of the Ambassador of Chile; Mme. Fotitch, wife of the Ambassador of Yugoslavia; Mme. Diamantopoulos, wife of the Ambassador of Greece; Mme. Hurban, wife of the Ambassador of Czecho-Slovakia; Mme. Kwapiszewska, wife of the Counselor of the Polish Embassy; Mme. Serge Krizman, Mme. Karel Cervenka, Mrs. Cavendish Welles Cannon, Mrs. Carl A. Droop, Miss Vera Bloom, Mrs. Burke Summers, Mrs. Thomas K. Finletter, Mrs. John Lockwood, Miss Henrietta Sherwood and Mrs. Stanley Woodward.

Senorita Cristina Michels will head the Junior Committee. Mrs. Edwin M. Watson, Mrs. W. E. Pattison and Mrs. Marcel Ancher will form the program and invitation committee.

The entertainment committee is headed by Mme. de Alencastro-Guimaraes, Mrs. James Pomeroy Hendrick and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim. Mrs. Marshall Dierssen will handle publicity, while Ellen Wood, young American poet, will have charge of the ticket committee.

Others on the general committee include Mme. Adolfo Scilingo, Miss Cornelia Bowie, Mrs. Egbert G. Leigh 3d, Mrs. Courtney Brown, Mrs. J. Frank Bowling, Mrs. Herbert Breakey, Mrs. Kenneth Watson and Mrs. Milton King.

Mrs. H. M. Walton of Takoma Park, Md., has been spending several weeks with her son-in-law and daughter, Prof. and Mrs. Herbert A. Walls, jr., in Berling, Mass. Dr. Walton, who is now on the West Coast, is expected to return here soon.

Senora Arroyo To Be Feted At Dinner

Senora de Arroyo, wife of the President of Ecuador, who is visiting in Washington, will be guest of honor at a dinner to be given this evening by Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim.

Senora de Arroyo, who is planning to spend several weeks here before visiting other cities, had tea with Mrs. Roosevelt last Saturday afternoon, and the day before Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, entertained her at the tea hour. Mr. and Mrs Nelson Rockefeller are also planning to entertain for the visitor.

Colonel and Mrs. Guggenheim will give a dinner Saturday evening for Miss Dorothy Spencer of New Orleans, who will arrive tomorrow to be their guest for the weekend. Miss Spencer, a frequent visitor to Washington, was here a few weeks ago, stopping at the Sulgrave Club. She is hoping to be able to find a suitable country home nearby with enough acreage for lily fields, the flowers for which she has made a reputation for herself as a horticulturist.

Miss Mary Katherine Schaum Is Wed to Lieut. D. L. Korn

Miss Holladay and Miss Buckner Are Among Other Recent Brides

Making their home in Cape May, N. J., where the bridegroom is stationed, are Lieut. Donald L. Korn, U. S. N. R., and the former Miss Mary Katherine Schaum.

The bride is the daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. James L. Ballard, formerly of Corpus Christi, Tex., now of Washington. Lieut. Korn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. August Korn of Michigan City, Ind.

Their marriage took place on May 15 in the Lutheran Church, with the Rev. G. E. Lenski officiating. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a madonna blue silk frock. Her bouquet was of white orchids matching her headpiece that held a bow of white veiling. Matron of honor was Mrs. Berkley Blogg, wearing a talisman pink costume and carrying an arm bouquet of talisman roses. Lieut. R. B. Hoffman served as best man.

The bride attended National Park College, where she was a member of Zeta Eta Theta and Delta Phi Omega. Lieutenant Korn received his degree from the law school at Indiana University. His fraternities are Delta Tau Delta and Gamma Eta Gamma.

Phillips—Holladay

After a brief wedding trip, Lieut. and Mrs. James Richard Phillips will make their home in Nyack, N. Y.

Their marriage took place here on Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Louis Underwood. The bride is the former Miss Johnnie Jo Holladay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Holladay of Birmingham, Ala., and Lieutenant Phillips is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Phillips of Ensley, Ala.

The Rev. C. E. McGaughey officiated at the 5:30 ceremony in the presence of a few intimate friends. The bride was attired in a beige suit with brown accessories and a corsage of orchids.

Henderson—Buckner

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Ann Buckner to Corpl. William Ashford Henderson took place on May 12 in the Chapel at Fort Belvoir, Va. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver F. Buckner of Oneonta, Ala., and Corporal Henderson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Henderson of Andalusia, Ala.

Herbert Victor Webb gave his sister-in-law in marriage. She wore a powder blue suit with white accessories and her corsage was of orchids and lilies of the valley. Miss Imogene Daugette was the maid of honor, and Sander Abramson, jr., served as best man.

A reception followed at the Annapolis Hotel.

Vallette McNair Engaged to Wed Lieut. David Boyd

Capt. Frederick V. McNair, U. S. N., retired, and Mrs. McNair announce the engagement of their daughter, Vallette, to Lieut. David Boyd, U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Vinton Watkins Boyd of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The bride-elect attended Gunston Farm School, Centerville, Md., and Miss Woodward's School in Annapolis, Md. She was graduated from the Annapolis High School in the 1934 class. On her paternal side Miss McNair is the granddaughter of the late Rear Admiral Frederick V. McNair, one time superintendent of the United States Naval Academy, and Mrs. McNair. On her maternal side she is a direct descendant of Chief Justice John Marshall of Virginia.

Lieutenant Boyd attended the Carnegie Institute of Technology, where he was on the varsity boxing and football teams. He was graduated in 1936. The wedding will take place June 19.

Are Dinner Hosts

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith entertained last night at dinner in honor of Comdr. and Mrs. M. E. Berthold. Among the guests were Capt. and Mrs. Ross Cooley, Mrs. Lawrence Skinner, Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith, jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Lathron. The dinner took place in the Statler Hotel.

New Dance Series For Navy Officers At Sulgrave Club

The first in a series of dances for out-of-town naval officers stationed in Washington will be held Saturday evening at the Sulgrave Club, sponsored by the District Council of the United States Navy League.

Miss Bonnie Farber, who is here from Philadelphia with the Office of Coordinator of Inter-American Defense, is chairman of the officers' dance committee. The senior hostess committee chairman is Mrs. Atherton Macondray, and Mrs. William T. Mann is chairman of the junior hostess committee.

Meyer Davis' Orchestra is coming down from New York to play for this first dance, the success of which will determine procedure of succeeding dances. Invitations have gone out to a large group of young matrons, debutantes and postdebutantes with express admonition to the junior hostesses that they be on hand at the Sulgrave Club at 8:30 prepared to dance straight through from 9 to 12.

Mrs. Sevier's Garden To Be Open on Tour

For the first time in many years the historic garden of Mrs. John Sevier, 3124 Q Street, is to be open to the public on the second tour of old Georgetown Gardens, Sunday, May 23, from 2 to 7 o'clock.

Planned by Major l'Enfant when he laid out the City of Washington, the original boxwood and giant trees still stand. The place was built by Washington Bowie, one of the Governors of Maryland, and the old double iron gates in the middle of the block were the entrance through which carriages used to roll along the box-lined driveway in the good old days. The garden is famous for its great rose beds, and the blooms will be at the height of their beauty on the tour day.

Another interesting and contrasting garden to be shown is that of Mrs. Ernest Lewis, 3099 Q Street, which is built on top of the garage, a tiny, fascinating jewel of a garden.

The other seven gardens listed by Mrs. Robert F. Whitehead, tour chairman, are those of "Evermay," 1623 Twenty-eighth Street; Mrs. Herman Hollerith, 1633 Twenty-ninth Street; Mrs. John Ihlder, 2811 P Street; Mrs. Henry Leonard, 3038 N Street; Miss Katherine Dougal, 3030 P Street; Mrs. Howard C. Davidson, 3238 R Street, and Mrs. William B. Poland, 1675 Thirty-first Street.

Tickets may be secured at Mrs. Whitehead's home, tour headquarters, or at any of the nine garden gates. Proceeds will go to Georgetown's only settlement, Children's Home, which is doing a big wartime social service job.

Double Wedding To Take Place Here On Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Maloney announce the engagement of their daughters, Helen Marie, to Edward A. White of Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles White of Paterson, N. J., and of Marjorie Jane to John William Kraemer, son of Mrs. Wilhelmina Kraemer of Baltimore, Md.

The sisters will be married in a double ceremony on Saturday in the Nativity Church.

Miss Chisholm Is Bride-Elect Of Naval Officer

Of interest here is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Catherine Muriel Chisholm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hugh Chisholm of Yonkers, N. Y., formerly of Bron Derw, Llanrwst, Wales, to Ensign John Daingerfield LeBourgeois, U. S. N. R., son of Mrs. John Leslie Hall of Washington and the late Comdr. Henry Blow LeBourgeois of New Orleans.

Miss Chisholm is a graduate of Scarborough School, Scarborough-on-Hudson; the Traphagen School of Art and the McDowell School of Design in New York. Ensign LeBourgeois is a great-grandson of Henry Taylor Blow, one of the first three Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and of the late John Bathurst Daingerfield of Alexandria, Va. The bridegroom-elect is an alumnus of St. James' School in Maryland and of the University of Virginia.

Plan Summer at Long Island Resort

When summer settles upon Washington in earnest, ocean breezes at East Hampton, L. I., will lure several Washington residents who have already leased cottages there.

Lieut. Comdr. Dan Platt Caulkins and Mrs. Caulkins, with her daughter, Miss Wendy Burden, have taken Mrs. Harry Hamlin's Gansett House on Egypt Lane; Robert E. McCormick, who has been doing special work in Washington for the Government since Pearl Harbor, will send his children off to spend the summer at East Hampton in Mrs. Harry Hamlin's cottage, Rowdy Hall. They will be under the watchful eye of their grandmother, Mrs. Dudley Roberts, who has rented her own house and has taken a smaller place for herself.

D.C. P.-T.A. Reaffirms Program On Juvenile Delinquency

The District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers reaffirmed its announced program of assisting in every way possible the correction of juvenile delinquency and venereal disease problems, as it met yesterday in the final session of its thirtieth annual convention to adopt a slate of resolutions and elect new officers.

The new officers are Mrs. P. C. Ellett, president; Mrs. Frank Borden, first vice president; Mrs. M. B. Fetzer, third vice president; Mrs. Dorothy Whipple, fifth vice president, and Mrs. Mildred Percy, seventh vice president.

Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer told the convention war tensions are revealing "fundamental weaknesses in our whole social structure," with increased juvenile delinquency as one of its more serious consequences. She blamed the increase on "parental indifference" as well as the war. She said no single palliative could remedy the situation, but only well-rounded community programs throughout the country. She spoke during the afternoon session, held at Constitution Hall.

Mrs. Meyer said she knew of cities "where more than 2000 children do not go to school because there is no room in schools that already have two or three daily sessions." The mass migration to war centers has made some dislocation inevitable, she said, "but on the whole plans for handling so vast a problem . . . have not been integrated in Washington, nor have the Government departments seen the picture as a national whole with accuracy.

"The main point wish to make today," she told the Congress, "is that we should have a joint committee of all the major Federal departments who will visualize the social protection of the warworker as a whole on a national basis, and put an end to the hit-or-miss procedure that still obtains on our home front."

Speaking at the dinner meeting last night at the Statler Hotel, Lucille Foster McMillin of the Civil Service Commission said that working women of today will remember this wartime experience in training their children to work with their hands as well as their brains.

Furthermore, she said, the wives, sisters, mothers and sweethearts of the men fighting will carry over from this war a determination actively to help win and preserve the peace in the postwar world.

The Congress awarded certificates to 23 public schools in the District which have instituted programs to promote health education among students.

Rationing Should Not Affect Child's Diet

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Whoever else suffers denial during food rationing, we mustn't let the babies or the children have any part of it. And this is not a hard prescription to fulfill; baby foods are not rationed to any extent. The baby has his own ration book, and according to my advices, he has 48 points, which means 48 small cans of processed food, or 24 large cans.

This would include pureed vegetables, fruits, meat and vegetable combinations for the baby's or young child's diet. Grocers will undoubtedly have better balanced stocks during the period of rationing than they did before.

On the other hand, baby's diet cannot be changed or rearranged, as the adult's must, to meet changed circumstances.

A baby is a very high-powered engine. It needs a lot of fuel—far more than an adult. A normal infant will not thrive unless he receives approximately 50 calories per pound of body weight per day. This would mean in the case of an adult weighing 150 pounds, 7500 calories a day and the calculated average for a person of moderate work is about 2500 calories.

So the first requirement of any baby's diet is the amount of food it gets, which should be per pound three time as much as an adult. The protein requirement of babies is also higher than an adult's; children have a requirement of 2½ to 3 grams per kilo of body weight. This would mean that a child who weighs 30 pounds would require 45 grams of protein a day, or 1/10 pound.

The protein requirement is basic. The energy requirement of the baby will largely be made up from the carbohydrates, especially sugars, such as milk sugar, ordinary sugar, cane sugar and malt sugar. The reason that many special baby foods keep the baby happy and in good weight is that they have large quantities of easily digested carbohydrates; in any milk formula extra sugar should be added.

Other basic requirements for baby food are the minerals and vitamins. In general these are usually well taken care of in any baby's formula. For children and even for babies it is well to remember that pigmented or colored foods are those which contain vitamin and mineral salts. This was the basis for the spinach craze a few years ago. The dark green of spinach indicates iron; so does the yellow of egg yolk. Thus carrot juice or pureed carrots are also an indication of vitamins and mineral salts.

Improvement in infant feeding has come from augmenting cow's milk and even mother's milk with some substance which represents mineral and vitamin elements such as cod-liver oil and pigmented vegetable broths. Raw cow's milk fails of being an ideal food for infants in two particulars: It is relatively indigestible unless a buffer substance is added, and it contains no iron. Many infants fail to thrive on cow's milk on account of this insufficient iron content. Unless the milk is irradiated to produce vitamin D, the child also should have vitamin D in the form of cod-liver oil. Cow's milk also does not usually contain enough sugar.

The final requirement of any milk or other food formula for children is that it should be uncontaminated by harmful bacteria.

Leg Make-up For Summer

Sun-tanning on beaches won't be possible for most of us this summer. Since pleasure driving has been curtailed treks to sunny sands will be few and far between. Even finding time to acquire a beautiful tan in your own back yard may be a problem. But don't let these hazards stop you from baring your legs knee-deep to keep cool and to save on the wear and tear of hose.

Don't wait until the hot days appear to think about the general type of leg makeup you will use. Don't wait until the moment of application to make legs ready for their first paint job of the year.

A smooth surface is just as necessary for a finished job in leg makeup as it is in any kind of decorating. Don't be guilty of glossing over hairs or fuzz. Use a depilatory, wax, abrasive, or whatever method you like. Don't think you can do this eradicaton at the beginning and have it last through the summer.

Body oil dries out through the cold winter months. So restore that oil by applying a lotion or emollient cream. You will find many reliable ones at the cosmetic counters. If you have pump bumps and heel calluses, be sure to give them attention, for they won't look well in sandals and play-shoes.

Practically every cosmetic company is offering a leg make-up. They fall into two general types—the transparent and the opaque. The transparent is a stain that colors the legs and gives the appearance that you have spent long hours on the beach. The opaque variety is usually an emulsion. This gives a velvety, fabric-like finish much like a stocking.

The directions for application come with the leg make-up. But there are a few "musts" to be observed if you want a job that will stand up for wear. Don't be weary when you make the application, for speed is essential. It takes quick, long even strokes to achieve perfection. It takes drying time for the film just as it does for nail lacquer. You know what happens if you don't let nail lacquer get completely dry.

Wartime Wedding Gifts

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

If once you thought you had a gift problem when wedding times rolled around, you must look back on those prewar days with considerable envy right now. Where once the gift-giver could be guided by custom and the limits of her purse, today she is faced not only with hurry-up weddings, live-at-home brides, assembly line brides, but with the added worry of finding the gifts she wants after she has made up her mind. Unfortunately there can be no good news about "luxury" items until peace comes. Today gift-giving is largely a matter of luck in finding leftover stocks—in china, silver, linen or furniture. Right now there are more of these around than you might expect, though selections are not so wide and it's a question of taking what you find. Merchants shake their heads and sigh about what they'll have when present stocks are sold.

Suitability, too, arises to plague the wedding gift-giver. In these days of uncertainty most brides must postpone any new home-making until victory. Many are living back at home with their parents, going to work every day, with little space or time for storing handsome household gifts. What price kitchen or linen or china showers if the giftee will have no kitchen or dining room to show off her loot? What point in the old standbys—fine, small furniture or table silver, if the bride will live in one small furnished room off the Army post while waiting for the dreaded "embarkation day" and then return to her parents for the duration.

Meals for Two

Brides who have been through this mill state that there are some things, however, that delight their souls—and prove very useful. A small kit of table silver (possibly with bright, plastic handles and steel blades to be used later for steak roasts and the like) is welcome; a large handsome tray (both for meals-for-two service and for decorative value in bleak rooms) tops many a list; yards and yards of fine bright chintz to be whipped up into camouflaging slip covers, swag draperies and couch covers and which can be packed in a trunk for quick moves brings a smile to the face of the lieutenant's new wife. Thinking in terms of what will make a furnished room into a happy nest for newlyweds—don't overlook handsome lamps, providing transportation isn't too big a problem.

Fine linens, of course, are always welcome and packable—and enduring. Even the stay-at-home bride should not be denied the pleasures of an honest-to-goodness hope chest. A half dozen fine percale sheets (with monograms or colored borders) and a change of pillow cases could be carried along in trunk or suitcase and provide much pleasure and the touch of home. Beautiful linen napkins and place mats or blithe informal luncheon cloths will also cheer many a duration dump. Clocks are obvious for weddiings, but what could be better? Most any good clock will be useful, especially an electric clock, which ou might still find if you shop around. Or a good leather traveling clock. Or a beautiful old china clock.

One custom of the years must not, however, be laid aside. Wedding gifts must be beautiful and worthy of the bride—and gifts for the years, not of the moment.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn

"Please tell me whether my bidding on this hand was correct," writes D. C. "I sat East in a rubber-bridge game and held these cards:

♠ J 9 8
♡ J 2
♣ A Q J 9 5

"North was dealer, and the bidding went:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

"There would have been nothing said about the bidding if West hadn't taken ten tricks, but he did, just to embarrass me, it seems. He then gave me an indignant look and said: "May I ask why you didn't raise my spades?"

"I explained that I held only 1½ high-card tricks, all in one suit, and not very good support for what might not be a long spade suit. But he wasn't impressed by my argument. Are you?

No, we are not. When West bids two spades it should be easy for D. C. to raise to three. Since his club bid was forced by the take-out double, it might have been made on four small clubs and a blank hand. Therefore, his highcard holding has not been disclosed to North. Three trumps are ample support, for North must hold at least five spades to bid them at this point.

One Summer's Romance

BY RITA HANSEN

CHAPTER XVI

She felt tears of tenderness rising in her throat at his sentiment. She has never realized Mark was so sentimental. She said softly "What are you trying to say Mark?"

"Only that . . . well, maybe you might sell the place to me. I'd certainly like to have it, Lisa.

It was a shock at first, the idea of selling the old place, the house on the hill that had been Alden for four generations. But, looking at it, practically, it was the only sensible thing to do. The house was old, and needed almost a thousand dollars' worth of repair. And she couldn't keep up the farm. Then, too, there were the expenses that kept piling up in New York. She had been spending even more than the contract salary that had seemed so huge at first. And she ought to have some money put aside for her wedding, for a trousseau and things. Actually, when it came right down to it she needed money.

She talked it over with Mark that afternoon and he came the next day with the forms and contract and paid her cash for the whole thing. Just before she signed the papers, she had a fleeting curiosity about where Mark had gotten that much cash and why he was willing to spend anything for a farm that wasn't any good. But she dismissed it as an unworthy thought, for it was complimentary to think that she had meant that much to Mark.

She took a weekend off and went back to the house to arrange for the packing and storing of her furniture and personal belongings. The house was sad and dusty looking, like a gaping black wound and she and Effie worked all day on the edge of tears. Then Sunday, while she was waiting for the train, she broke down and cried her grief into Effie's lap. "It's silly," she sobbed, "I am Cinderella and I've got everything . . . I should be happy . . . I don't know why I'm crying!"

"I don't know either . . . If you're really sure you're in love with Mr. Bradford, for good."

"Oh, yes, Effie . . . I'm sure of that! I don't know, there just seems to be something wrong."

"Say, by the way," Effie asked, with her usual bluntness, "why isn't this playwright of yours in the army? He's only about 33, isn't he?"

"Oh, he tried to get a commission, but he wasn't in good enough physical condition . . . too thin, I guess. Anyway, Johnny's more important at home, writing beautiful plays!" She dismissed a subject that had been privately bothering her. For Johnny seemed to pay no attention to what went on in the world. He lived in the make-believe one he had made and even a war didn't bring him out of it. However, she told herself, whatever Johnny did was all right. She wouldn't want him to be different.

When she got back to New York, the show was going into its last week of rehearsal. They had costume fittings and the sets began to arrive and everybody got worse and worse at rehearsals. Lisa especially felt the strain. She noticed that almost every day Julie came and sat in the darkness at the back of the theater. She never came down and spoke to anyone. She just sat there. As though she were waiting.

She was tired all the time now and the day of the opening she spent in bed. She got to the theater early and sat very still in her dressing room. Half an hour before curtain time, Johnny knocked at her door.

"Come in, darling." She turned around in her chair and reached up her face to be kissed. Instead he took her two hands and held them tightly. "Don't you even say hello?" she teased.

He said seriously, "Lisa, I've got something to tell you that can't wait any longer. I have to tell you now."

Her heart froze at his first words; she found herself breathing hard. "Johnny, oh Johnny, what is it? What's the matter?"

He looked at her steadily. "I have just decided that I am absolutely and irrevocably in love with you, now and for all time, and I'm going to marry you, no matter what you think about the matter!" With her hands still in his, she felt a heavy gold ring slide onto her finger. It was a square-cut sapphire set in diamonds. At last, she thought wickedly, the gossip column was right.

"Johnny, Johnny, you darling!" she breathed, while her lungs opened to the air and her heart went back to normal. "I thought you were going to fire me at least! Oh, darling, darling!"

They only had a few moments before he had to leave so Lisa could make up and get into her costume. When she kissed him goodby at the door she felt almost too good to contain herself in the tiny room. She held the ring to her lips, waltzing in ecstatic circles. She'd give that first night crowd a show that would have them standing on the seats! Tonight, for Johnny, she could do anything!

There was another knock and before she could get to the door Julie walked in, cool and lovely in silver crepe and white fox. "Well, well," she murmured, "congratulations, on the ring. Johnny's a smart boy giving you a big build-up to make sure you'll give a performance . . . Good technique."

"Miss Brent, I'm very busy just now," Lisa began with dignity.

"Really? Well, I just want you to know that I still think I'm the one who ought to be walking out on that stage tonight. And I used to think I'd be the the one who wore that ring. But that doesn't matter. I won't say a word if you're good tonight, but if you let that play down, I promise I'll kick your teeth in!"

New Definition Of 'Educational' Zoning Requested

The encroachment of manufacture and trade associations taking up headquarters in restricted residential areas of Washington under the guise of "educational" institutions has led the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to ask the District Zoning Commission for more specific definitions of educational institutions, John Nolan, jr., Park and Planning Commission official said yesterday.

Sixteenth Street, especially, is being given over to national associations of bottlers, truckers and the like, who are able to move in because of Corporation Counsels' interpretations of the loose wording of the zoning regulation that permits certain educational institutions to be housed in the restricted areas, Nolen said.

To check this movement, and still not to ban such institutions as the National Geographic Society and the Carnegie Foundation, the Park and Planning Commission suggested that educational institutions be defined in the zoning regulations as "a college, a university or a private school having a curriculum equivalent to that of a public school, or nonprofit institutions of higher learning or culture devoted to the arts and sciences, not including commercial or business organizations, associations or offices or headquarters thereof or of their agents."

The Zoning Commission replied that it did not feel public hearings and consideration could be given the subject until after the war.

Nelson Defendant In Suit Filed by Banned Oil Firm

Donald Nelson, chief of the War Production Board, was named defendant in a suit filed in District Court yesterday by S. A. and Harry Himelfarb, owners of the Federal Oil Co., seeking both a temporary and a permanent injunction in a WPB order of last February 27 prohibiting delivery or gasoline sales to the company.

Deliveries were ordered suspended after WPB charged the company accepted an excess of 550,000 gallons of gasoline in the period between April and July, 1942.

The 12 gasoline stations involved subsequently were forced to close.

The WPB blamed the violations on the company on the grounds company trucks picked up excess gasoline.

Yesterday's suit was not filed until all appeal machinery of the War Production Board was exhausted, Attorneys Leo A. Rover and Benjamin Tepper, counsel for plaintiffs, said.

'Falling Asleep' Records Help to Capital Slumber

To combat wakeful nights, Dr. Max Mann, long-time Morpheus specialist, has made a number of 12-inch recordings that insist monotonously that the listener is falling asleep, falling asleep. A short dose of that, says Dr. Mann, is enough to make the most insomnia-ridden bureaucrat drop off in practically no time.

Dr. Mann told a Post reporter yesterday that about 2000 people—from royalty to Hollywood stars and people who just plain can't sleep—have found relief and relaxation from his records.

Dr. Mann has had no more than 10 minutes of sleep since he arrived here several days ago. He's been busy seeing people Users of the Mann system report that it works well and that the records are twice as easy to carry home on crowded buses as are copies of the Congressional Record—if it's sleep you want.

Abram H. Cannon Named Bishop of Mormon District

Abram H. Cannon, assistant director of personnel, Department of Interior, has been elected new bishop of the Chevy Chase Ward, Washington Stake, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, it was announced Tuesday. He succeeds Bishop Riley A. Gwynn, who has served since creation of the new ward three years ago.

Other members of the Chevy Chase Bishopric are Ralph S. Roberts, first counselor; Dr. W. N. Johannessen, second counselor; Edwin A. Potter, clerk, and Rosel H. Hyde, assistant. Ezra T. Benson is president of the Washington State (diocese).

Other Mormon congregations in Washington are at the Washington Chapel, Sixteenth and Columbia Road Northwest; Arlington (Va.) Village Hall and the Dodge Hotel.

Citizens Propose Liquor Dispensaries

A resolution favoring a dispensary system for liquor sales in the District rather than the present store licensing system was adopted Tuesday night by the Columbia Heights Citizens Forum. The resolution also opposed the sale of wine and beer on Sundays.

Another resolution was adopted which asked for the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the Capitol in September. The meeting, the forum's last until October, was addressed by the Rev. Flint Kellogg, rector of St. Stephen's and the Incarnation Church, who also delivered the benediction.

Basil Manly Renominated

President Roosevelt renominated Basil Manly of 5059 Sedwick Street Northwest to another five-year term as a member of the Federal Power Commission.

Manly has been member of the commission since 1933. A veteran in the Government service, Manly has served in various capacities since 1908.

As an expert economist for the Bureau of Labor Statistics Manly made first recommendation to Congress for abolition of the seven-day, 12-hour work day then in force.

Mrs. Gallagher Elected President Of Women's Bar

Mrs. Nadine L. Gallagher, attorney in the special war policies unit of the Justice Department, is the newly elected president of the Women's Bar Association of the District. She succeeds Helen Goodner, Justice Department attorney, who was filling the unexpired term of Mary Agnes Brown, now a member of the WAACS.

Other officers elected for 1943-44 at a meeting in the Mayflower Hotel are:

Doris R. Williamson, vice president, attorney in the criminal division of the Justice Department; Marion Carr, recording secretary, employe of the Civil Service Commission; Margaret Earley, treasurer, attorney with the OPA, and Sara Mero Williams, corresponding secretary, who is associated with a local law firm.

Florence Curoe, Veterans' Administration attorney, and Delia Sheldon Jackson were named to the board of directors.

Mrs. Gallagher, graduate of the Washington College of Law, is a member of Phi Delta Delta, women's international legal fraternity, of which she was former president of Beta Chapter in Washington.

Ensign Hancock, Formerly Missing, Now Listed as Dead

The Navy casualty list released yesterday reported as dead Ensign William Oven Hancock, jr., 27, of Washington. Ensign Hancock was reported missing last December when the bomber of which he was copilot failed to return.

Sixteen other casualties were announced, including two others dead, seven wounded and seven missing, bringing to 23,995 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Pearl Harbor.

A native Washingtonian, Ensign Hancock lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Hancock, 3600 Park Place Northwest, before he enlisted in the Navy. He was married here last October to Miss Janet Thayer Feiker, two months before his disappearance.

Ensign Hancock was graduated from Central High School, attended the University of Maryland, George Washington University and the University of North Carolina, where he did graduate work. A former Post copy boy, Ensign Hancock later was an English instructor at Dickinson Seminary, Williamsport, Pa.

24 Indicted Here In Effort to Halt Vice Racket

Twenty-four persons were indicted by the District grand jury here yesterday in what was termed a climax in efforts to clean out the vice racket in the District, after recent charges by the House District Committee that Washington was one of the breeding places of infection.

The indictments charged white slave violations and conspiracy to violate the law and mentioned numerous cases where women were transported here for immoral purposes.

Headquarters of the vice plot were said to be a small restaurant in the Fourteenth Street Northwest area, and bellhops, waiters, cab drivers and alleged prostitutes were named in the indictment.

Those indicted on white slavery charges were Edward R. Dixon, Joseph W. Blount, Thomas Terrett, Victor Zieloskowski, Maxwell Sherman, Anthony Christopolous and Donnis A. Reardon. They also were indicted on the conspiracy charges, along with Peggy Brown, Peggy Ann Brooks, Ann Geraldine Braulette, Rita J. Heiss, Morla Rogers, alias Mitzie Barron; Betty Lee Morrison, Jean Thompson, Judy Hunt, Beverly Martin, Mary Gordon, Ira Weitzel, Arthene Thomas, William C. Glover, Bernard G. McGoldrick, Jack B. Terrell, Walter Wells and Morris Greenfield.

Canteen Invites Servicewomen to Party on Sunday

Women will be invited to enter by the front door of the Stage Door Canteen Sunday for the first time, when all women in uniform of the armed forces are bidden to open house 2 to 5 p. m.

Until now the canteen has entertained servicemen only, and women were admitted by an alley door to act as hostesses or help otherwise.

Hostesses will see that servicemen and women meet, dance, play games and generally make themselves at home together.

The mixed open house is an experiment, not a precedent, the Canteen reports.

Funds to House 1,100,000 Workers Sought by NHA

The National Housing Agency revealed plans for sheltering 1,100,000 warworkers in the United States during the coming fiscal year, in discussion of a request for 400 million dollars before the House Buildings and Grounds Committee.

John B. Blandford, jr., administrator, told the committee that on the basis of War Manpower Commission estimates 940,000 dwelling units will be needed.

The 400 million dollars increase in Lanham Act funds would finance 200,000 of these units, Blandford said. This would include 40,000 family dwelling units produced through conversion of existing structures under Government lease, 90,000 temporary family units, and 70,000 single units.

And Nothing Can Be Done About It

CLIFF TOLD ME A FUNNY STORY TODAY ABOUT AN OLD FELLOW WHO LIVES ON HIS STREET
SAID HE SAW THE OLD BOY IN FRONT OF HIS HOUSE ONE DAY AND ASKED ABOUT HIS HEALTH
"IT AIN'T WHAT IT OUGHT TO BE," HE SAID. "I FIND MY STRENGTH IS FAILING"
"IT USED TO BE THAT I COULD WALK AROUND THE BLOCK EVERY MORNING"
"BUT NOW LATELY, SOMEHOW, WHEN I'M ONLY HALF WAY ROUND, I FEEL SO TIRED I HAVE TO TURN AROUND AND COME BACK"
HM! I DON'T SEE HOW THAT SAVED HIM ANY WALKING. IT WAS JUST AS FAR BACK. HE MIGHT JUST AS WELL HAVE GONE AROUND THE BLOCK

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — No Heart Specialist — By Milton Caniff

DOC, WHAT'S THE REAL DOPE ON THIS BLONDE RYAN AND GOODE BROUGHT IN?
WHAT'S THE MATTER, JOHN, WORRIED ABOUT 5th COLUMNISTS?
OF COURSE... A PRETTY GIRL COULD GET PLENTY OF INFORMATION FROM THESE LONELY KIDS!
SHE'S A LEGITIMATE CASUALTY... HEAD WOUND, SHOCK AND EVIDENCE OF HAVING BEEN DRUGGED...
WHAT IF ONE OF THESE JUNIOR OFFICERS SHOULD FALL IN LOVE WITH HER—FINE PROBLEM FOR A TASK FORCE COMMANDER...
AT THIS POINT THE MEDICAL OFFICER SHOVES OFF—IT'S THE CHAPLAIN'S BALL FROM THERE ON!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

I'M AFRAID THAT'S ALL I CAN TELL YOU, TOM!—MADAME ZODIAC LOOKED AT THIS SERVICE PIN AND TALKED A LOT ABOUT MY "BRAVE SON OVER THERE!"
AND PROMISED TO GIVE YOU MORE NEWS FROM HIM IF YOU'D COME BACK.
THAT'S THE WAY I HAD IT PEGGED! LOU VARZONI RUNS A BIG RING OF FORTUNE TELLERS! THEIR HEARTLESS DUPING OF SERVICE MEN'S MOTHERS, WIVES AND SWEETHEARTS IS MAKING HIM RICH!
WHAT A VILE, CONTEMPTIBLE BUSINESS!
WE'RE GOING TO SMASH IT, MRS. WORTH! BUT WE NEED CERTAIN ADDITIONAL EVIDENCE! DO YOU HAVE A SMALL SNAPSHOT OF YOURSELF? SO BIG?

MICKEY FINN — Progress! — By Lank Leonard

I'M AFRAID YOU'RE GONNA LOSE YOUR BET WITH PHIL, CLANCY! HE'S REALLY MAKIN' PROGRESS WITH THAT WIDOW!
AND HE'S WON EVERY BET THAT HE'S MADE, CLANCY, SINCE HE STARTED WEARING THAT LUCKY CHARM!
IF I WAS CLANCY, I'D EITHER SWIPE THE LUCKY CHARM OR I'D SEND A WIRE TO HOGAN, THE PLUMBER!
CLANCY WANTS TO WIN ON THE LEVEL, SLATTERY—BUT I THINK HE'S USING POOR JUDGMENT!
I THOUGHT PHIL WAS ONLY KIDDING AT FIRST, MRS. FINN, BUT NOW I REALLY THINK HE'S SERIOUS!
HE IS SERIOUS, FLOSSIE—AND I'VE JUST FOUND OUT WHY! HER HUSBAND LEFT HER $50,000!!
YOU'RE NOT JUST INTERESTED IN ME BECAUSE OF MY MONEY—ARE YOU, PHIL?
DON'T BE SILLY, TESSIE! AS LONG AS I WEAR THIS LUCKY CHARM I'LL HAVE ALL THE MONEY I WANT!

MR. AND MRS. — The Start of a Restful Evening — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

WANT TO LOOK OVER THE PAPER? I'M THROUGH WITH IT
THANKS. I DON'T MIND
OH, JOE, THERE'S A MARVELOUS SALE OF LIVING-ROOM FURNITURE. JUST LISTEN TO THIS—
I'M NOT BUYING FURNITURE JUST NOW
AND HERE'S A SALE OF FUR COATS! MY COAT WILL NEVER LAST ANOTHER WINTER. LISTEN TO THESE PRICES—
CAN'T STAND MENTION OF FUR COATS IN MAY
SUCH OPPORTUNITIES! AND THERE ARE SO MANY THINGS WE SO DESPERATELY NEED SAY—CAN'T YOU EVER READ A NEWSPAPER WITHOUT BEING REMINDED HOW DESTITUTE WE ARE?

DIXIE DUGAN — It Can't Hurt to Ask — By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Striebel

HOLD IT, FELLAS—HERE COMES LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY!
MORNING! MORNIN'
I JUST OVERHEARD YOU'RE GIVING MISS DUGAN THE COLD SHOULDER—MAYBE I SHOULD, TOO—WHAT'S SHE DONE?
BEAT IT, STOOL PIGEON!!

RIGHT AROUND HOME — By Dudley Fisher

IT SEEMS TO ME, MYRTLE THAT WITH ONLY A FEW MORE WEEKS OF SCHOOL YOU'D WANT TO MAKE EVERY MINUTE COUNT.
REMEMBER, LEARNING IS THE KEY TO SUCCESS!
KNOWLEDGE IS POWER!
THAT EXPLAINS IT!
I JUST BLEW A FUSE IN THE POWER PLANT!

JOE PALOOKA — Where Was I? ? ? — By Ham Fisher

JERRY—COME BACK HERE—JERRY, YOU'RE DELIRIOUS—
LEMME GO, YA GOOF—I BUMPED ME HEAD ON A RAFTER—AN' THEY PICKED ME UP AN BROUGHT ME IN—LEMME GO—

SUPERMAN — Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

SO COLLINS DIDN'T KEEP HIS MORNING APPOINTMENT WITH CHALMERS! ALL OF WHICH STRENGTHENS MY FIRST BELIEF THAT COLLINS MAY BE THE VICTIM OF A "NONAME" PLOT!—
YOUR OFFER OF CO-OPERATION TO CLARK AND ME, MR. CHALMERS, MEANS A LOT HE'S ARRIVED? SEND HIM RIGHT IN!
ER...DO YOU MIND IF WE DRAW THIS INTERVIEW TO A CLOSE.
NOT AT ALL.
YOU'VE BEEN MOST HELPFUL..
BUT AS CLARK AND LOIS LEAVE CHALMERS' OFFICE, A FAMILIAR FIGURE BRUSHES PAST THEM....
(—COLLINS!!)
(—THEN HE'S PERFECTLY SAFE! MY MISGIVINGS WERE JUST FOOLISH FANCIES!!)
YOU SEEM DISTRACTED, CLARK
JUST A SLIGHT HEADACHE.
(—SOMETHING PRODDING AT MY SUBCONSCIOUS MIND...VAGUE...ELUDING! SOMETHING ABOUT COLLINS! IF I COULD JUST GRASP IT!—)

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

INSPECTOR, MY MAKE-BELIEVE WIFE WANTED SOMETING IN THIS PACKAGE KID MAILED FROM TOPPER'S!
WHY-OF COURSE! THE MAIL PLANE BROUGHT IT JUST BEFORE YOU GOT HERE, KING!
HMM—AS I WAS LEAVING TOPPER'S I MET MERRY AND A DOCTOR STARR—THEIR PLANE HAD BEEN FORCED DOWN..
MAC, IT'S MY HUNCH THOSE TWO ARE THE "ROGUE" DIAMOND THIEVES!

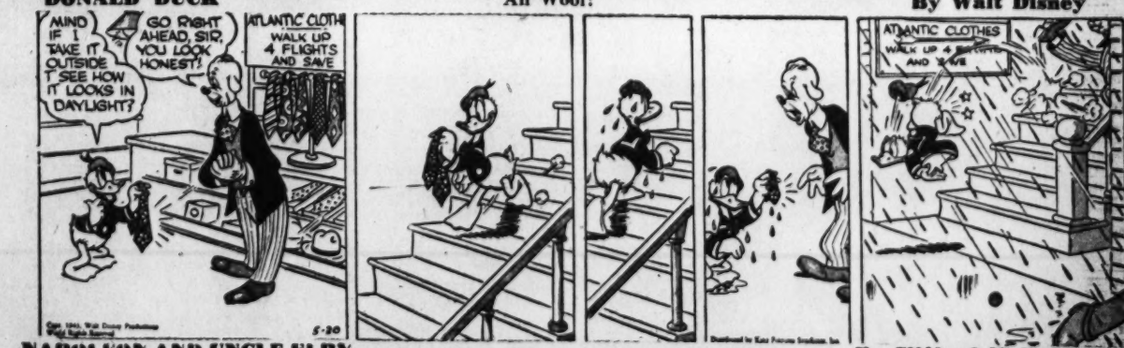
DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Rescued — By Frank Martinek

ABOARD CANADIAN CORVETTE AS OFFICER ISSUES ORDERS TO WHEELSMAN.
ENGINES FULL SPEED AHEAD!
MEANWHILE...WINSLOW'S PLANE LANDS ON OCEAN SURFACE AS HE COMMANDS...
THROW OUT THE RUBBER RAFT!
LOOK AT THOSE SWELLS!
WE'RE IN THE SAME SPOT OUR BUDDY EDDIE RICKENBACKER WAS IN.
RETURNING TO THE CORVETTE, WE HEAR...
MEN OVERBOARD! TWO POINTS OFF PORT BOW.
ALL HANDS STAND BY FOR RESCUE!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — By Saunders and Woggon

YOU SEEM LIKE A VERY SMART YOUNG MAN, ROPER—!
CAN THE COMPLIMENTS, MR. FLINT—YOU'VE GOT A HEAD-LOCK ON ME—GO AHEAD AND APPLY THE PRESSURE!
QUITE SO!—AHEM! YOU ARE AN INSPECTOR AT FALCON AIRCRAFT, I BELIEVE—?
YES, SIR!
IF I FORGOT TO TURN YOU OVER TO THE POLICE AS A COMMON THIEF, WOULD YOU BE WILLING TO CARRY OUT CERTAIN—ER—SECRET INSTRUCTIONS THERE FOR—FRIENDS OF MINE?
SURE! WHAT CAN I LOSE?
IF YOU TRY TO DOUBLE-CROSS US, YOU WILL LOSE MORE THAN YOUR LIBERTY!—COME TO CALL ON GALE TOMORROW NIGHT, DURING THE EVENING I SHALL MANAGE TO GIVE YOU YOUR ORDERS!

DONALD DUCK — All Wool! — By Walt Disney



MIND IF I TAKE IT OUTSIDE TO SEE HOW IT LOOKS IN DAYLIGHT?
GO RIGHT AHEAD, SIR. YOU LOOK HONEST!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride

CAN'T YOU GO ANY PLACE WITHOUT THAT CONFOUNDED BONE?
THERE! I KNEW YOU WOULD DO THAT! YOU'VE LOST IT!
SHUT UP, YOU BIG BABY! I'LL TRY TO FISH IT OUT.
